SUMMARY.

German newspapers show that the country is deeply stirred by the British law of compulsion.

Some recognise that this is a great change, and that England means business.

A party of British civilians who have been released from the Ruhleben Concentration Camp has reached Holland.

They state that a marked change for the better has taken place in the conduct of the German soldiers towards the British.

It is believed that Germany's confidence in victory is now shaken, if not shattered altogether.

The British repelled an enemy bombing attack about Armentieres and the Lille railway.

The French artillery destructively bombarded the enemy positions on the plateau of Nouvrons, north-west of Soissons.

Mr. Philip Gibbs says the British artillery is engaged in a daily battle along its entire line.

The Germans occasionally bombard Nancy with 15-inch naval guns.

The Russians have captured Czartorysk and a height westward of the town.

The Austrians, using asphyxiating gases, attacked north-east of Czernowitz (Bukovina), but were repulsed.

The battle which is raging in Bukovina is the fiercest that has taken place in this region since the war began.

German prisoners declare that the cannonade is worse than the bombardment on the western front in September.

Count Reventlow, writing in the "Tages Zeitung," says the Russian offensive in Bessarabia has been well prepared.

The Russians, he remarks, have great reserves of men and artillery.

If the offensive succeeds, Count Reventlow continues, Greece and Roumania will join the Entente.

It is reported in Athens that Austria, Germany, and Bulgaria have completed plans for an immediate attack on Salonica.

Athens newspapers are gratified at an announcement by the Allies that the enemy consuls have been released.

The Allies are reported to have arrested the enemy consuls and agents at Mitylene.

A Cettinje communique says that furious fighting has taken place in the Berane district, Montenegro.

The enemy's forces comprised 20 battalions, with many guns and machine guns. They suffered heavy losses.

An Austrian communique says that the Austrians have driven the Montenegrins from positions north of Berane.

A British submarine from the Sea of Marmora entered the Golden Horn and considerably damaged the arsenal.

The workmen and the inhabitants of the quarter fled in a state of panic.

The London "Daily Telegraph's" military correspondent blames Sir Ian Hamilton for the Suvla failure.

Lieut.-General Stopford has demanded an inquiry into the Suvla operations last August.

The Lord Mayor of London is making a stirring appeal for enlistment. He welcomes recruits at the Mansion House.

Sir George Reid, in his address to the electors of St. George's, Hanover-square, favours the compulsion Bill.

The "Pall Mall Gazette" says Sir George Reid's return will secure a timely and unanimous tribute to the gallant Commonwealth.

Mr. Bowles has retired from the contest. He says he felt that the election of an Australian would be a compliment to Australia.

Germany has replied relative to the sinking of the Lusitania, agreeing to pay compensation for American lives lost.

It is contended that the destruction of the Lusitania was an act of reprisal against the British blockade.

It is unlikely that America will protest against the sinking of the Persia.

The New South Wales loan has closed. Though the underwriters receive over 75 per cent., the result is regarded as satisfactory.

Mr. Fisher, who has been interviewed at Colombo, said recruiting in Australia was excellent, and compulsion was not required.

Recruiting in Sydney during the past week showed a large increase, 2372 men having enlisted for the seven days.

The "Wallabies," 173 strong, arrived in Newcastle on Saturday, and were accorded an enthusiastic welcome.

These recruits are not coming to Sydney. They are to form the nucleus of a new military camp at West Maitland.

Bombala was decorated with bunting on Saturday in honour of the "Men from the Snowy River." They leave for Bibbenluke to-day.

The muster at French's Forest on Saturday was disappointing, only 26 workers attending in response to Dr. Arthur's appeal.

There are already a number of applications for soldiers' farms.

Mr. Hughes has warned disloyalists that anything done to prejudice recruiting will be visited by condign punishment.

Resolutions passed at meetings advising people not to fill in the recruiting cards was, he remarked, a most ill-advised proceeding.

A German was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and fined £100 at Parkes for using seditious language.

A smash-up of goods rolling stock occurred at the [illegible] marshalling yards on Saturday through two trains coming into collision.

The impact was so great that several trucks were piled on top of each other and other trucks were smashed.

The accident was indirectly the cause of the loss of life of a soldier, who was travelling by a passenger train.

While [illegible] over the platform rail to get a view of the wreckage he fell on to the line and was killed.

Up to the end of December 371,809 income tax returns had been sent in.

Extensions of time have been granted in many cases, and the returns are now coming in [illegible].

The second trade fair organised by the Chamber of Commerce will be opened at the Sports Ground on Wednesday.

A ballot is to be taken by the Illawarra [illegible] as to whether work should be resumed on the old conditions.

The Balmain branch of the Federated Ship Painters and Dockers' Union opened a new [illegible] in Mort-street on Saturday.

A [illegible] camp is being established at [illegible] under the decentralisation scheme. [illegible] will number 1200.

The residents of Manly, on the heights, were without water on Saturday afternoon and Sunday.

The British Government has agreed to take [illegible] part of the 200,000 tons of wheat [illegible] by Britain and France.

Mr. Hughes regards this decision as of importance, as it will provide employment and save [illegible].

The whole of the men at the State brickworks have gone on strike, owing to the dismissal of an employee.

The Federal Treasurer is adopting a novel means to ensure the success of the second Commonwealth war loan.

He is appealing to every citizen in receipt of an income of £500 a year or over to subscribe something.

The lumpers of Williamstown engaged in loading wheat struck again on Saturday for extra overtime pay.

A new award for quarrymen and labourers has been issued. Increases have been granted.

The City of Florence, which passed Cape Banck yesterday, signalled that she had been in collision with a schooner.

At the lawn tennis country carnival Richmond River defeated Tamworth.

In the first-grade cricket matches Petersham, playing against University, scored 585 runs for three wickets.

T. J. E. Andrews made 232 not out and J. M. Taylor 174.

At the Canterbury Park races on Saturday Herringbone won the New Year's Gift and Ton Tere the Canterbury Handicap.

Forecast.—Cooler over the southern and coastal districts, with southerly winds; otherwise hot and sultry; scattered rain and thunderstorms.

FARMER'S, SYDNEY.
1840—SEVENTY-SIX YEARS—1916.

THERE IS A PERSONAL APPLICATION TO THE READER IN THE COSTUME BARGAINS at FARMER'S CASH BONUS SALE.

The Bargain Values are truthfully magnificent. The reductions are the reverse of ordinary—in fact, they may well be termed magnificent.

And this, in spite of the fact that the styles are in keeping with Farmer's position as the House of Distinction—the Leaders of Fashion.

In addition to these heavy reductions there is the further 2/ in the £ Cash Bonus on every purchase made in this department, which makes the

BARGAINS OF SUFFICIENT IMPORTANCE TO BE ATTRACTIVE EVEN TO THOSE WHO ARE LEAST AFFECTED BY THE NEED FOR ECONOMY.

EXCEPTIONAL VALUE IN SMART VOILE DRESSES, check, spot, or stripe effects, in Black and White. Bodice has high Roll collar and tucks down front of plain White Voile. New-shaped Raglan sleeves, set in with narrow lace, wide skirt gathered on to hip yoke with ruche. Waist also finished with ruche.
Usual Price, 13/11. SALE PRICE, 8/11.
And less the Cash Bonus of 2/ in the £.

WONDERFUL BARGAINS IN LONDON-MADE VOILE DRESSES, smart stripe effects of Black and White, Navy and White, or Saxe and White. BATTLE OF PRZEMYSL.

5000 feet Authentic War Pictures, taken with

RUSSIAN AND AUSTRIAN ARMIES.

Real, live, true war pictures, dealing with a phase of the gigantic operations of which we have seen least in films, with the Russian and Austrian Armies in PRZEMYSL, THE CARPATHIANS AND GALICIA. THE RUSSIAN PICTURES ARE THE FAMOUS "CHICAGO TRIBUNE" FILMS, to get which R. R. McCormick, the well-known war correspondent, and his staff travelled with the Russians first in their victorious march through the Carpathians, and then in their dogged retreat, whilst A. K. Dawson accompanied

THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN FORCES when Przemysl fell.

YOU SEE BOTH SIDES OF THE BATTLE OF PRZEMYSL AT ONCE.

You are in the Russian trenches, watching the artillery fire at one moment, and in the Austrian lines, witnessing the awful effect of the bursting projectiles the next. The figure of the Arch-Duke with the Austrians is clearly recognisable.

SO, TOO, ARE THE MANGLED BODIES OF HIS OWN MEN SENT TO DEATH TO GRATIFY HIS OWN AND THE KAISER'S AMBITIONS.

OLYMPIA. OLYMPIA. OLYMPIA. OLYMPIA. OLYMPIA. A GRAND NEW PROGRAM, Including THE NEW EXPLOITS OF ELAINE. OTHER MAGNIFICENT ATTRACTIONS.

THE PICTURE BLOCK THEATRES. Specials in To-day's New Programs. CRYSTAL PALACE ALL THIS WEEK. "THE BETTER WOMAN." The Third of the Equitable Features. With Miss Lenore Ulrich, the charming Broadway star, as Kate Tripler, the unkempt girl of the mining camps, who by deceit wins a city man from his society fiancee, and pits her passionate affection against the tender love of the other woman in the conflict for possession of the man's soul. Hours of Screening: 11.7 a.m., 12.47, 2.27, 4.7, 5.47, 7.27, and 9.7 p.m.

LYRIC THEATRE. "MY OLD DUTCH." Albert Chevalier's dramatic masterpiece transferred to this theatre after a big week at the Crystal Palace. No picture has ever received such praise from the critics as "My Old Dutch." The finest piece of character acting ever filmed is the manner in which everyone described the picture. Hours of Screening: 11.7 a.m., 12.47, 2.27, 4.7, 5.47, 7.27, and 9.7 p.m.

COLONIAL THEATRE. "THE VALKYRIE." A drama of the battles of life—not out on the red fields of Europe, but in the home, in the office, and in our everyday affairs. Produced by the Thanhouser Company in 2 acts.

EMPRESS THEATRE. "NEW EXPLOITS OF ELAINE." Second Story, "The Cryptic Ring." Another sensational two-reel episode in the search for the missing seven million dollars. Kennedy finds the key to the hiding place, but in pursuit of the Chinese, he is sent crashing down the yawning abyss between two sky-scrapers to the street, hundreds of feet below. Did he die? How did he escape?

PERFORMANCES CONTINUOUS: 11 A.M. TO 11 P.M. The Greater J. D. Williams Amus. Co., Ltd. W. Barrington Miller, General Manager.

AMUSEMENTS.

NEW ADELPHI THEATRE.

WHY ALL THIS TROUBLE ABOUT A LORD MAYOR WHEN EVERYBODY IS AGREED THAT DICK WHITTINGTON SHOULD BE ELECTED TO THE POSITION?

Every Evening at 7.45 you can forget all your troubles if you see GEORGE MARLOW'S dazzling pantomime,

"DICK WHITTINGTON AND HIS CAT."

If you want to beat the blues,
If you want a joyous time,
Come down to the Adelphi;
See the Marlow Pantomime.

Say! Carrie Moore is charming.
My! Dan Thomas is a shriek.
Oh! the jokes are so funny;
You'll be laughing for a week.

The acrobats are marvels.
You will gasp at the McLeans;
You'll be enthralled with pleasure
At the many gorgeous scenes.

The girls are genuine fairies,
From the realms of Naked Truth.
When you see their fair limbs flutter,
You'll be bound to murmur "Struth!"

And you'll go home saying, "Papa,
Since the day that you were one,
There's never been a panto
Can compare with Whittington.

Producer, LESTER BROWN.

Box plan at Nicholson's till 5 p.m., afterwards at White Rose, Adelphi-buildings. Prices, 5/, 3/, and 1/. Early doors to back stalls and gallery, 6d extra.

RELIGIOUS ANNOUNCEMENTS.

SECOND Coming of Christ, Lord Willing, Conferences, Gospel Union Hall, Resumed early in February.

THREE SPECIAL OFFERS.

ONE FOR EVERY PURSE, 12/6, 15/6, 21/, 25/6.

GET YOUR PHOTO. TAKEN NOW.

Wet or Cloudy Weather makes no difference to us.

FIRST OFFER.—6 Cabinets, 6 Postcards, and an Enlargement, finished in first-class style, and far better than is usually sold at double this price. Only 12/6. Excellent value.

SECOND OFFER.—12 Bromide Cabinets and a Beautiful Enlargement for 15/6. Please note that this is a remarkable offer, and one worthy the attention of those desirous of an up-to-date and Artistic Picture.

THIRD OFFER.—A SPLENDID PRESENTATION PICTURE, SOMETHING THAT WILL BE AND REMAIN THE PRIZE OF YOUR COLLECTION. THE PHOTOGRAPHS ARE THE SAME SHAPE, BEAUTIFULLY FINISHED. AN IDEAL OF ART.

This Photograph is the most artistic production of modern times. The combination is a white mount with a matte surface, a neat plate mark, a delicate art-grey centre plate, a beautiful black and white photograph, and an Art Cover with a Grecian Head in bold relief. This is, without doubt, a combination worthy of the greatest esteem.

NOW SEE THE PRICE.

The 12 Cabinets as above, and the 1916 Art New Shape Enlargement, for 21/.

THIS IS OUR 1916 SPECIAL OFFER.

We beg to inform our customers that each of these 3 exceptional offers shall have our very best attention, the lowest equally with the highest in price, and we guarantee that the work shall be equal in every way to that supplied at other Studios at double the money. Each shall be a credit to our good name, and be worthy of our well-known reputation for high-class artistic work. This is our guarantee.

PRACTICAL OFFICE TRAINING.

As a result of Mr. Sydney A. Stott's visit to Canada and the United States last year for the purpose of investigating Business College methods, Students of STOTT and UNDERWOOD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE will receive the advantage of a Special Course in Office Training.

Business men are demanding well-trained young Ladies, and it is our aim to give our Students the most thorough and practical business training possible.

Mr. Sydney A. Stott is in daily attendance, and will give any desired information.

College re-opens TO-DAY.

STOTT AND UNDERWOOD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE, (The Original Stott), 70 Pitt-street, Raine-chambers. 70 Pitt-street.

SHORTHAND and Typewriting, Individual Tuition. Miss M. M. Swann, 114 Hunter-st, nr. Macq.-st.

TRAIN. TRAIN. TRAIN.

At this period in the history of our country it is more than ever necessary.

Why not realise success in your own life and start to train NOW for a better position? Take the first step towards success.

ENROL AS A STUDENT TO-DAY AT STOTT and HOARE'S BUSINESS COLLEGE.

We admit that in our desire to direct your attention to the careful chosing of a Business College we have made some rather caustic remarks. But the statements made were fully substantiated and strongly backed on by absolute facts, which were sufficient justification.

HERE ARE A FEW COGENT REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD ENROL AT STOTT AND HOARE'S.

The attainments of our students for the past year have been in full accord with the brilliant records achieved by Stott and Hoare's graduates in the past. Some of the results for 1915 were:—

SHORTHAND DEPARTMENT.—226 PASSES in Speed and Theory Examination. Also the I.P.S.A. GOLD MEDAL and the PITMAN BRONZE MEDAL were won by students of this College.

Two young ladies passed for appointments in the Commonwealth Public Service, at £200 per annum. One young man student (under 21 years of age) secured top place in the State Court Reporter's Examination and secured a position carrying a salary rising to £275 per annum.

TYPEWRITING DEPARTMENT.—At the last Commonwealth Typists' Examination our Typewriting students swept the board in securing

NINE OUT OF ELEVEN PASSES.

One of our students gained top place in the State Typists' Examination, and several others secured passes.

COACHING DEPARTMENT.—For Public Examinations 218 passes were obtained by this department in University, Commonwealth, and State Public Service, Naval and Military, and other educational examinations.

Four students were presented for the Cadet Midshipmans Examination, of whom THREE WERE SUCCESSFUL.

TECHNICAL DEPARTMENT.—In Public Accountancy and Local Government Examinations

69 PASSES WERE OBTAINED.

During the year 1915, 2011 students received instruction in one or more of our 350 Courses of Instruction, while in public competitive and qualifying Examinations

890 PASSES WERE OBTAINED.

704 GRADUATES IN POSITIONS,

which places us in the proud position of having found remunerative billets for 12,000 students since the Employment Bureau was instituted.

These are facts which cannot be controverted, and are worthy of the earnest attention of all who desire a sound business training.

BECOME A STOTT AND HOARE STUDENT.

A NEW TERM COMMENCES TO-DAY—TO-DAY.

Begin to study with a firm resolve that you will make yourself efficient in the profession which you have chosen. Our practical training methods—an efficient tutors—our proved successful courses of instruction—will help you just as they have helped thousands of students.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

EQUIPPED WITH
PALING'S
PLAYER PIANOS.

It is simply astonishing how easily the most difficult music can be produced on one of PALING'S PLAYER PIANOS. This is a great feature of their construction, and one that you cannot afford to overlook. They are so easy to manipulate that even a child can play one. You should call in and try them over to-day; hear the beautiful tone-quality, and examine their wonderful construction. You can buy one on easy terms if you wish. Catalogues are posted free on request.

THE MAKER'S NAME IS THE GUARANTEE.
CARNEGIE'S PIANOS. CARNEGIE'S PIANOS.
An anonymous letter would be regarded mistrustfully—why not an "anonymous piano?" There are numerous makes (more numerous since the war broke out) that bear neither the maker's name nor the country of origin. Could you confidently buy such a piano? We are able to offer a good variety of different styles, yet every instrument bears the MAKER'S name as well as our own. Amongst them are included the British-made Hopkinson, Bell, Squire and Sons, and Marshall and Rose Pianos.
Easy Terms Arranged.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

ENGLISH AGENCY.—The Undersigned, established upwards of 60 years, confine themselves exclusively to a General Commission Business, are well acquainted with Australian requirements, and possess special facilities for purchasing goods to the best advantage in the English and Continental markets.
Indents should be accompanied by cash remittances or bank letters of credit, to ensure full trade discounts. Accounts sales of produce under consignment rendered promptly, and net proceeds remitted or invested to order.
The Shipping Department has been largely developed of late years, and where indents are sent direct to manufacturers the shipment and insurance of the goods are effected upon the most favourable terms.

"Come to bed now!" she said, very quietly and firmly, as though she were speaking to a child; "don't try to think about any worries now. Just come to bed. After a night's sleep you may be able to decide everything and think it all out without difficulty."

"Decide everything!" A dreary laugh broke from the other woman, a laugh so desolate that Meg's loving heart ached for her. "I shall not sleep. It is absurd to talk to me of sleeping. How can I sleep when—when——" Again her sentence broke off abruptly, but she rose to her feet, as Meg touched her arm and helped her up, and she allowed the girl to put all the scattered papers into the writing-table drawers and lock them up. Then, leaning heavily on Meg's arm, she moved slowly upstairs to her room, walking like a person in a dream, still with that dazed look in her eyes. In a dream-like fashion, too she allowed Meg to help her to undress and to put her into bed, and she lay back on her pillow with a sigh of relief and closed her eyes. But she opened them almost at once.

"Does it show?" she exclaimed. "The mark on my forehead, does it show?"

"It is only quite a small mark, madam—it will show very little," Meg answered. "It looks scarcely more than a scratch."

"I shall stay in bed in the morning. My head aches now; it will be worse to-morrow. If I lie here, and in the dark, no one will see—if I say I have a bad headache which is true enough, no one will know that I—you are to keep silent," she broke off to add; "promise me that not a soul shall hear a word of anything that has happened to-night."

"I promise," Meg answered, and Mrs. Tredway's eyes looked into hers almost wistfully.

"I believe you are to be trusted," she said with a sigh, and closed her eyes again, whilst Meg switched off the light, and went softly away to her own room; her thoughts very full of the woman she had left. The girl herself could not sleep. Until the sun was shining into her room she lay thinking of the strange happenings of the last few hours; wondering what had taken Mrs. Tredway to her boudoir in her dressing-gown; wondering still more who the intruder could have been who as far as she could understand must have let himself out of the front door in the dead of night; wondering why he had departed, apparently without taking any booty with him. It was all very strange, very inexplicable, and no solution of the puzzle came to Meg's tired brain.

"He couldn't have been a burglar," she said to herself, as she was getting up. "He certainly could not have been just an ordinary burglar. Then, who was he? What did he want? And why did he come?"

CHAPTER X.
MEG'S ERRAND.

"Just exactly like my luck! I particularly wanted to go and choose my wedding dress to-day, and now mother must needs have a very bad headache, and she can't come with me. And of course she thinks she must be there when I do choose it."

Connie spoke with childish petulance, her eyes fixed on the glass in which she could see her own reflection, whilst Meg piled the soft masses of her hair into that orderly disorder which so eminently became her fair and delicate loveliness. The bride-to-be was in no better temper this morning than on the previous day, and it still left a good deal to be desired; and poor Meg, tired out after her sleepless night with all its anxiety and alarm, looked at Connie's frowning face in the glass and felt sorely tempted to give her hair a vicious tug, or scold her as she might have scolded a naughty child.

"You look like a dying duck in a thunderstorm," Connie went on, her glance turning from her own reflection to that of her maid. "Good gracious," she said snappishly, "I do wish you would cheer up. I hate having people with dismal faces about me. If you are in love or in trouble or anything do, for pity's sake, try to forget about it whenever you come into my room. I can't stand depressed people. I should have thought that you ought to know that your own affairs ought never to be allowed to interfere with your work."

"I am sorry if I look dismal, miss; I did not mean to do that, but I am rather tired this morning," Meg tried to speak brightly. "I have no troubles of my own. I am only tired; I did not sleep well."

"You and mother seem to have been doing the same thing, then," said Connie, with a covert sneer, and at her words Meg involuntarily started. "Mother declared that she hadn't slept a wink, and that her head is splitting; goodness knows why she must needs have lain awake. There was no need for it; and she has got her room in total darkness, and talks in a die-away voice. Oh! it is too annoying, too absurd. By the way," the girl added, after a moment's silence, "she asked me to send you in to her. She wants to speak to you about my tea-gown. She has some of her own lace that will do. You'd better go to her when you have finished my hair."

When, a few minutes later, Meg entered Mrs. Tredway's darkened room, and went quickly to the bedside, her heart beat a little quickly, she wondered whether her mistress would refer to the strange episode of the previous night, or ignore it altogether.

"You wished to see me about some lace, madam," she began, but Mrs. Tredway waved her hand impatiently.

"I only mentioned the lace because I wanted to see you. The lace was simply an excuse. I had to see you. I must speak to you. I meant to keep it all to myself; but I find I can't do that. I shall have to take you partly into my confidence. But I should like to know first of all what you were doing downstairs last night when you found me? What business had you to come into the drawing-room at that time in the morning?"

"Miss Connie sent me down for a book. I was going to look for it when I heard your voice."

"Connie does not know that you found me—ill in the boudoir? You have not told her anything about what happened?"

"Certainly not, madam. I have said nothing to anybody. When I fetched the water for you I took Miss Connie the book she wanted. But I said nothing to her. She did not know there was anything wrong; she does not know anything now excepting that you have a bad headache."

"She must not know; if possible she must never know—at any rate not yet, not till after the wedding. Remember—you are to hold your tongue about all you saw and heard. We must hurry on the wedding, that is the chief thing to be done, to hurry it on. But first listen. No—fetch me the packet of lace out of the right-hand drawer in the chest of drawers by the fireplace. If Saunders comes in and sees the lace spread on the bed she will think I am talking about Connie's tea-gown; she must not think anything else. She must never guess we are discussing any other matter." The feverish voice roused all Meg's sense of pity. Though in the dim light she could barely see Mrs. Tredway's face, she realised that it was very white and drawn, and that her eyes were full of misery. Her hands moved restlessly over the coverlet, as though she found it impossible to lie still, and the impression she left upon Meg's mind was that of great unhappiness mingled with fear. With a great longing to help and comfort the sick woman, Meg brought the packet of lace to the bedside, and with an instinctive gesture of tenderness she laid her hand on the hand that was restlessly pulling at the sheet.

"I will do my best to help you," she said earnestly.

"I believe I can trust you. I don't want to trust anybody, but I think I can depend on you. Only it is so much to trust to a girl. And yet you have honest eyes; I don't think you will play me false. Listen." Mrs. Tredway dragged herself up on her elbows, and spoke in rapid undertones. "I had meant to go myself to the Great Central Hotel to—to see someone on business. But I can't go. I can say I have a headache; and it is true, my head is banging like a threshing machine, and all the room is going round with me. I couldn't go out, and I am so afraid that if you do not go he will come here, and he must not do that—above everything, he must not do that."

"Do you want me to go to the Great Central Hotel instead of you?" Meg asked when Mrs. Tredway paused with a frown, as if she had lost the thread of what she was saying.

"Yes; I want you to go; someone must go instead of me, and I think I can trust you. It must somehow seem as if you were just going to Madam Laura for me about Miss Connie's dress. Nobody here must guess that you are doing any special errand for me. It will be quite easy to let Connie and Saunders suppose that I wanted the lace sent to Madam Laura." There was a certain friendliness about her last words, as though she had momentarily forgotten she was speaking to her daughter's maid; but in a minute her speech resumed its customary sharpness. "Go to the Great Central Hotel and ask for Mr. Matthews. Insist upon seeing him, say it is a matter of importance. And when you see him tell him you have come as my messenger, that I sent you. Tell him I am ill—too ill to go out. And—" She paused and moved more restlessly before continuing. "Tell him I will send him everything he wants if he will only give me time; but pray him—implore him—to give me time. Beg him to keep silence, and I will give him all he wants. Beseech him to avoid all publicity—it is most vitally important that nothing should be known. Go—go quickly now; at least, first I must tell you about Madam Laura; you must really go there. Yes—this lace is what I want. It will not do if you only pretend to go. Connie is sure to ask exactly what Laura said." Again her voice had grown friendly, almost confidential; there was a wistfulness in it very strange to hear from the lips of the usually imperious woman. "You must go to Laura." Her voice changed with extraordinary rapidity as, after a preliminary knock, her own maid entered the room.

"I was telling Deane that this lace will do well for Miss Connie's white tea-gown, Saunders," she said, her fingers visibly shaking as they unfolded the strip of lace Meg had laid on the bed. "I think it will be a charming finish. You had better go round with it now to Madam Laura, Deane," she added, pushing the lace across to Meg; "she ought to have it as soon as possible. Explain to her what I thought about it. I should like you to go with it now; take it at once."

"Very well, madam," Meg replied, noticing that strained feverishness in Mrs. Tredway's voice. "I will go directly," and gathering up the lace she put it back into its paper wrappings, Saunders' eye watching her until she left the room. There was something which did not please Mrs. Tredway's maid about this conversation between her mistress and the young ladies' maid. Saunders had lingered for a moment outside the door before knocking, and she had observed that Mrs. Tredway was not speaking to Meg with her usual haughty insolence, but in accents that were not only gracious, but almost deprecating. Saunders' suspicious nature was immediately on the alert. Being herself of a petty and mean nature, she concluded that others were mean and petty, and her small soul imagined that the new maid was scheming to oust her and to take her place. Therefore she determined viciously that if it were in her power to do the pretty maid an injury she would assuredly do it. As she put it into her own mind, "I'll be even with the sneaking, interfering hussy; she needn't think she's coming to poke her nose into other people's business here. I'll soon cook her goose for her, see if I don't."

THE GERMAN FICTION.

SINKING STILL ALLEGED.

The Germans seem to be intensely annoyed by the fact that the representatives of leading newspapers appearing in Allied and neutral countries were invited to visit and inspect the British Grand Fleet (remarks the "Morning Post.") They are especially irritated by the announcement, which has now been circulated all over the world, that these newspaper correspondents were on board his Majesty's ship Tiger. The German Admiralty insists that this vessel was sunk by German guns in the action in the North Sea on January 24, and the German newspapers naturally wonder at the effrontery of the British authorities in suggesting that a German official statement is incorrect. A leading Nationalist newspaper published at Berlin has already declared in its most pompous manner that the British Admiralty is endeavouring to mislead the world, and it added that if the journalists in question really visited or saw a warship named the Tiger this was not the Tiger that was sunk by the Germans in the North Sea.

This declaration has apparently not produced the desired effect outside Germany, for the "Kolnische Zeitung," the organ of the German Foreign Office, now takes the matter up. It bases its article on the report published in the "Novoe Vremya," a leading Petrograd newspaper, of the visit to the British Fleet paid by the London correspondent of that journal. After a long introduction, composed mainly of sneering remarks about the British and Russian Navies, the German semi-official organ tries to make the Tiger disappear by means of a new trick. "We note with particular interest," it writes, "that the Russian journalist visited the battleship Tiger, and found it quite uninjured. We know," it declares emphatically, "that the Tiger was sunk in the naval battle off the Dogger Bank on January 24," and it adds that "the English have probably shown the Russians a vessel which has in the meantime been rechristened the Tiger."

The "Kolnische Zeitung" obviously fears, however, that its statement may not be universally accepted, for it advances an alternative explanation. It suggests that the vessel sunk by the Germans may not have been the Tiger, and that it was the New Zealand, a cruiser of the same class. The New Zealand, the semi-official journal observes, has not been mentioned since that engagement, and it considers that its view is supported by the fact that the Russian journalist, when referring to the patriotism of the oversea Dominions manifested by gifts of battleships, spoke of the cruiser Australia.

The "Kolnische Zeitung" has been incited by a remark made by the Russian correspondent about the sobriety that prevails on board the British naval vessels to pour a torrent of invective over the officers and men of the British Navy. It endeavours finally to counteract the impression made on the world by the reports published by the foreign journalists, its main suggestion being that the British officers who entertained the latter contrived that they should have too much to drink.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

QUARRYMEN'S AWARD.

A new award for quarrymen and labourers employed in and about quarries has been issued. A minimum wage of [illegible] has been secured, and increases have been granted to nearly all branches of the industry. For quarrymen a week's work has been fixed at 44 hours, with 48 hours for other classes of labour. Quarrymen and scabblers will receive 1s 8d per hour, and guttierers 1s 9½d. Boatloading in rain is to be paid for at the rate of 2s 6d per hour, time worked in excess of the ordinary hours to be paid for at the same rate. For other work overtime is to be paid at the rate of time and a half for the first two hours and double time afterwards.

HAIRDRESSERS AND SATURDAY AFTERNOONS.

A number of members of the Hairdressers' Union are advocating the compulsory closing of all saloons on Saturday afternoons, and at a recent meeting of the union the matter was discussed. No finality was reached, however, further discussion being held over. It was argued by those in favour of the new departure that it was unfair that hairdressers should be debarred from benefits enjoyed by most other workers.

FLOUR MILL EMPLOYEES.

At the last meeting of the Federated Millers and Mill Employees' Union it was decided to apply to the Engine-drivers' No. 1 Board for an increased wage for flour-mill engine-drivers. An extra 12 per cent. is asked for. A recommendation from the executive of the union condemning the Attorney-General's bread monopoly scheme was agreed to.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE TIVOLI.

Singing for the first time at the Tivoli on Saturday, Mr. Peter Dawson had a full measure of success. The genial artist included Gounod's "Vulcan's Song," from "Philemon et Baucis," in his numbers at the matinee; not forgetting the famous "Santley Shake." This operatic selection was sung by Santley, with orchestral accompaniment, under the conductorship of Signor Roberto Hazon, at the first concert in the Sydney Town Hall. The date was Saturday, November 30, 1889. Sir Charles, at the age of 82, is still hale and hearty in the old country. His pupil withdrew "Vulcan's Song" when he faced the crowded Tivoli audience on Saturday night, and Mendelssohn's lively "I'm a Roamer" was brightly sung in its place, with an unfamiliar "top note" finish. Mr. Dawson's other songs were "Rose of My Heart" (Hermann Lohr), "Cornish Floral Dance" (Katie Moss), and "Mountains of Mourne" (Percy French). Although a humorous English-Irish song, the Percy French composition touches a tender chord as each verse ends plaintively "where the mountains of Mourne sweep down to the sea." The pianoforte accompaniments were admirably played by Mr. Horace Keats.

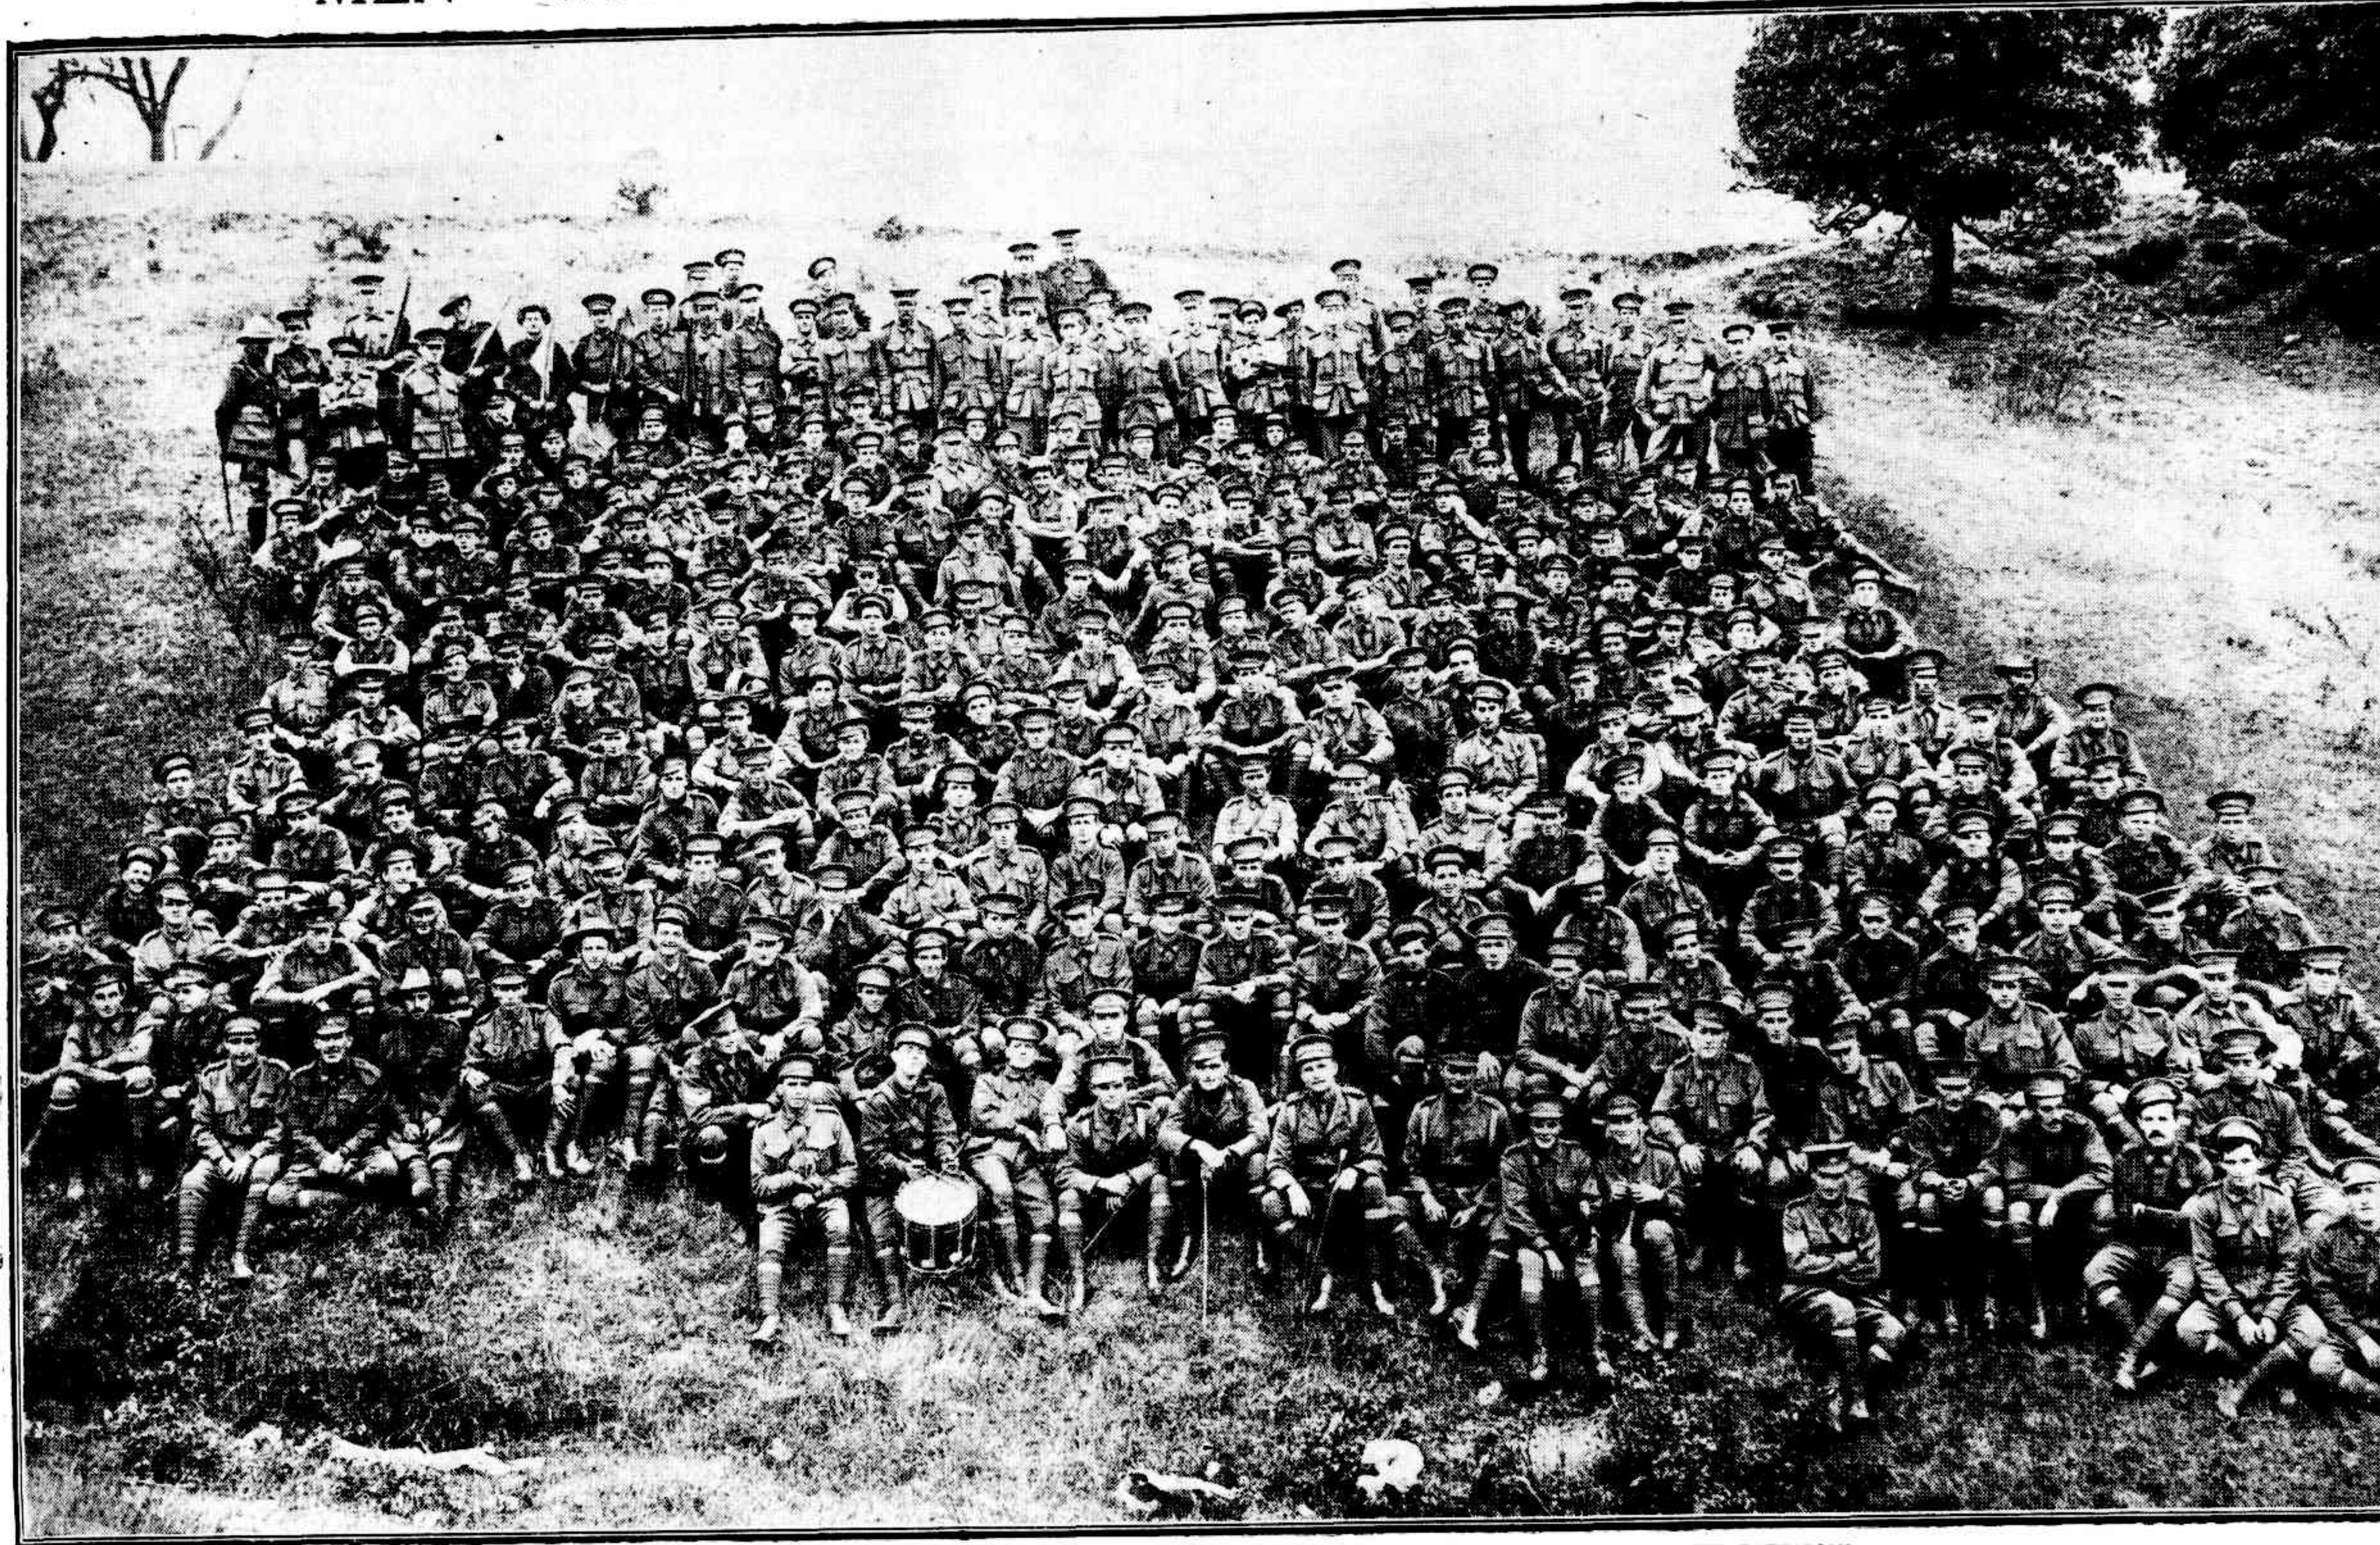

Mdlle Nadje, an American product of physical culture, who combines strength of jaw with the gentle art of walking up and down a staircase on her hands, and Jack La Vier, who is billed as "The Talkative Trapezist," were the other newcomers. Steering clear of "dumb show" circus feats the unconventional type of performer from America served up his turn in the style of a burlesque. The unceasing chatter of the over-head bar cannot be classed as high comedy. Coy de Trickey, "the Cinnamon Girl," and Nolan and Nolan, comedy jugglers, are re-appearing.

ORGAN RECITAL.

Mr. Ernest Truman, the city organist, provided an attractive programme at the Town Hall on Saturday evening, but the recital was not adequately supported by the public, barely one-third of the accommodation of the hall being taken up. Those who did patronise the performance, however, showed cordial appreciation of almost every item. The first four numbers on the programme were given by request, and opened with a fantasia on "Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni), the theme being capably interpreted by the organist. The audience apparently preferred what may be termed the more "popular" selections and the music of the pathetic duet, "Home to Our Mountains," from "Il Trovatore" (Verdi), aroused enthusiasm. The "William Tell" overture (Rossini) and the sextette from "Lucia di Lammermoor" (Donizetti) were also highly appreciated. In the second part Mr. Truman's masterly treatment of the gavotte from the "Gondoliers" (Sullivan), in which the Duke of Plaza Toro shines so prominently, evoked an encore. "Take a Pair of Sparkling Eyes," from the same opera, proved a felicitous reply. The paraphrase from "Carmen" (Bizet) was also well received, and the "Soldiers' Chorus" from "Faust" was played as an extra. The grand "Storm Fantasia" (Lemmens), with realistic thunder, lightning, and rain effects, was a contribution which enhanced the success of the entertainment.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

FRONT "FISHTAIL" AT RANDWICK.

All but five targets at the Randwick range were in use on Saturday afternoon, when the March quarter opened, and these were not utilised owing to a shortage of markers. A front "fishtail" wind blew throughout the afternoon, with sufficient trickiness in it to disconcert many of the marksmen, especially at the long ranges, where most of the shooting was done. A bad mirage was also experienced. The majority of the clubs held club shoots, the others putting in practice for the forthcoming grade matches and the Metropolitan Union's prize meeting.

The following were the best totals compiled at the respective distances:—1000yds (36in bull's-eye): 47 out of 50, by W. Brophey (Wunderlich), 33 out of 35 by J. Garnett (Yorkshire Society); 900yds (36in), 62 out of 70, by F. Greer and T. Finley (Randwick Literary Institute), including a seven-shot "possible" by the former; 800yds (36in), 59 out of 70 by F. C. Evennett (Registrar-General's Department); 700yds (20in), 63 out of 70 by R. W. Knox and 34 out of 35 by P. Ettingshausen (both of Parramatta); 600yds (20in), 33 out of 70 by W. Dinnie and D. Patience (Cockatoo); 500yds (20in), 38 out of 40 by E. Hayes (Palace Emporium), 66 out of 70 by H. V. Hart (Press), and by F. C. Bolton and W. Brogan (Lands Department); a seven-shot "possible" by W. R. Cox (North Sydney); 400yds (20in), 64 out of 70 by R. Formby (Rockdale); 300yds (8in), 63 out of 70 by Captain Vautin (Lands Department); 32 out of 35 by S. J. M. Heap (Legion of Frontiersmen); 200yds (8in), a seven-shot "possible" by Captain Suffern (Legion of Frontiersmen).

From the 1000 yards mound the Wunderlich Club carried out its combined first club shoot of the quarter, and the final shoot for the Fraser shield, each man firing ten shots. The best score off the rifle was made by W. Brophey, who registered but three points less than the possible, and when the handicaps were added he still retained his position at the head of the list, reaching bursting point. H. Robertson, who scored 48 off the rifle, with the assistance of his handicap (11 points) also burst, and filled second place. When the totals of the former shoots were added Robertson headed the list for the shield, and will hold it for the year. The Metropolitan Railways Club held its first club shoot of the quarter, 14 shots in two stages. H. Markellie, with 27, 29—56, was the top-scorer, beating H. Buchanan, with 25, 30, by 1 point.

The Yorkshire Society Club decided a club shoot, seven shots each at 900 and 1000 yards. D. Kirk, with 27, 29—56, put up the best total, E. Garnett, with 29, 25, being second on the list. At 1000yds J. Garnett, one of the oldest shots on the range, dropped but two points in his seven shots. Firing under similar conditions in deciding the first club shoot of the March quarter M. P. Madigan, of the Post and Telegraph Club, who top-scored, obtained 28, 29—57. S. H. Bower, who occupied second position, registered 24 at 900yds, but dropped only 2 points at the maximum range.

From the 900 yards mound a 14-shot two-stage club shoot was decided by the Randwick Literary Institute Club. F. Greer, with 27 and a "possible," and T. Finley, with 28, 34—62, being placed at the head of the list. Greer was a spoon winner in the A grade, and H. Davies in the B grade. In a 14-shot club shoot by the Western Suburbs Club, George Keevers, who dropped but nine points, beat W. Griffiths and J. Sutherland by one point for the position of honour on the list. Randwick club members each fired 14 shots in two stages in deciding the first club shoot of the quarter. Captain J. R. Wallace put up the best scores, 27, 32—59. The principal prizewinners were C. Fisher, Captain Wallace, and C. Hollyer.

At 800 yards the Registrar-General's Department club held a 14-shot two-stage club shoot. F. C. Evennett, with 30, 29—59, top-scoring. E. S. Macdermott, who scored 26, 32—58, was second on the list.

From the 700 yards mound 39 members of the Parramatta club competed in a combined first quarterly and annual shoot, 14 shots in two stages. The best totals (32, 31—63) were put up by R. W. Knox, S. L. Hobbs, and W. Price, who each scored 27, 31—58, being next in order on the list. P. Ettingshausen, who scored 56, registered one point less than the "possible" in the second stage of his shoot. In a 14-shot two-stage club shoot by the Belmore club, R. J. Marsh, with 25 and 30, put up the best score off the rifle, and also headed the list when the handicaps were added.

At 600 yards Cockatoo Naval Dockyard club held a 14-shot practice shoot, W. Dinnie and D. Patience heading the list with 59 points each. A seven-shot, eight men a side, match was also fired between teams composed of members of the club who were over and under 40 years of age respectively. The under 40 men won by 18 points, their score being 215, J. Marr and T. Goodel, with 31 each, top-scoring for their side. D. Macfarlan, with 33, was the best of the over 40 men.

From the 500 yards mound the Auburn Club carried out a 14-shot club shoot. A. Rae and W. C. M'Nab, with 61 points each, being on top. In an eight-shot club shoot by the Palace Emporium Club, E. Hayes dropped but two points. A. Barnard was second with 75. The Press Club held a 14-shot two-stage practice shoot, H. V. Hart, with one point less than the "possible" and 32, putting up the best total. W. Frazer, a rapidly improving shot, with 32, 29—61, was the next best. In a similar shoot by the North Sydney club, W. R. Cox, with 30 and a "possible," headed the list. The Lands Department Club decided a 14-shot club shoot, F. C. Bolton and W. Brogan, who top-scored, each obtaining 66 points.

At 400 yards the Rockdale club held a 14-shot two-stage B grade club shoot, the best figures (34, 30—64) being compiled by R. Formby.

The Lands Department club's final shoot for the December quarter, 14 shots at 300 yards, resulted in Captain Vautin heading the list with 63 points, followed by H. Magee with 61, and C. A. Orwin with one point less. In the sixth stage of the Metropolitan club's grade competition, Martini-Enfield rifles only being used, J. Buchan, with 35 points, led in the A grade, F. Davies, with 41, in the B grade, and W. Lett, with 33 points, in the C grade. E. M. Mason won the Walters challenge cup, J. Buchan being the runner-up. The prize given by J. W. Martine, the secretary, was won by himself, but he has decided to make it the prize for the first member who scores a "possible" in any competition shoot on the club's miniature range.

The Legion of Frontiersmen club held a practice shoot, seven shots each at 200 and 300 yards. S.I.M. Heap, with 34, 33—67, top-scored, followed by Captain Suffern, with a "possible" and 31.

AIR PILOTS.

HOW TO OBTAIN BRITISH COMMISSIONS.

A number of enthusiastic aviators or prospective aviators have left for England during the past few months in the hope of joining one of the Imperial air services, while the Royal Australian Flying School at Laverton, in Victoria, is also training men as pilots and mechanics. It is announced that a squadron may shortly go to the old country, and, though officers and men may have qualified here, it is more than likely that they will first of all be drafted to one or other of the British training grounds for a final polish.

With regard to the Royal Naval Air Service and the Royal Flying Corps, it is often said that the commissioned ranks of both corps are now being filled by officers from other regiments or from the navy respectively, and that commissions are no longer given to civilians, whatever their qualifications. This, according to an Imperial authority, is not correct. While it is true that the waiting lists for both services certainly are lengthy, it must also be borne in mind that these services are very rapidly expanding, and that the number of pilots needed, if not at the moment, at any rate in the very near future, can hardly be found otherwise than from civilian sources, so that it may be taken that suitable civilians have every chance of becoming service pilots. These appointments are the most sought after in the service, and, for the benefit of those who possess nervous female relations, it might be stated that a flying service commission is not a death warrant. On the contrary, one often hears of officers in flying corps state that "nothing would induce them to risk their lives in the trenches."

There is also a widely prevalent idea that if a man goes home with a pilot's certificate he has only to call at the Admiralty or the War Office in order to be commissioned right away. This also is incorrect. The possession of a ticket is not by any means the sole passport to the service. In the past a good number of enthusiasts have fallen into the error of believing this to be the case, and have in consequence spent a good deal of money upon learning to fly, only to find, when they have done so, that they were in some way or other unsuited for commissioned rank.

The authorities state that the best type of man acceptable to the flying services is the mechanically-inclined sportsman. He must be, of course, physically fit; in particular, his eyesight must be beyond reproach. The sort of man that is needed is one who, in the days prior to the war, was not afraid to drive high-powered cars and motor cycles at excessive speeds. He must be able to keep his head and to act quickly in all emergencies, and ought to possess mechanical aptitude, combined with a knowledge of petrol engines. Horsemen, it is stated, make excellent pilots, which accounts for the fact that Australians always seem to do well when they take up aviation.

In the case of a man with a ticket wishing to join the Royal Naval Aviation School, application must be made to the Director, Air Department, Admiralty, Whitehall, S.W., and should be by letter, as personal interviews are not granted except by appointment. A form of application for a commission will then be sent, and when that has been filled in and returned the candidate will be instructed to appear before the Selection Board at the Admiralty. If the board decides in his favour he will have to undergo a medical examination and a searching eyesight test. If successful he will be granted a probationary commission at once, and sent to one of the naval training schools, receiving a £10 kit allowance and 10s a day.

To obtain a commission in the Royal Flying Corps the applicant fills in the ordinary form of application for a commission as used in the regular army. This may be obtained from the War Office or any officer commanding a unit at home. When the form is filled in it should be forwarded to the Director of Military Aeronautics, War Office, Whitehall, S.W., who will then request the candidate to call for a personal interview. If he is particularly lucky he may get appointed at once or sent to a military flying school for instruction. His pay while on probation is at the rate of 15s 6d a day, and, if granted a permanent commission, will also receive a £75 allowance to cover his expenses in learning to fly when his commission is confirmed.

NEW DENTAL BOARD.

A special "Government Gazette," issued on Saturday, announces the constitution of a new Dental Board for New South Wales. The appointments, which take effect from January 12, Wednesday next, are as follow:—Messrs. Donald Smith (president); Alfred Burne, D.D.S.; Austin William Cleary; John James Kelly, M.D., M.S., Queen's Univ., Kingston, Canada; Montague Alfred Noble; and Arthur Aubrey Palmer, M.R., F.R.C.S. Edin., L.R.C.P. Lond., M.R.C.S. Eng.

MARRIAGE ALLOWANCE.

IN AUSTRALIAN NAVY.

The Naval Board has promulgated the following information with regard to the marriage and other allowances in the Commonwealth naval forces which petty officers and men have been anxiously waiting for.

To all married sea-going chief petty officers, petty officers, and other ratings of the Royal Australian Navy, with less than five years' man's service, an allowance of 1/ per diem will be granted as from June 1, 1915, and during the currency of the war, under the undermentioned conditions:—

(a) Wife to be resident in Australia.

(b) Allowance not to be paid to a rating unless he declares a monthly allotment in favour of his wife of at least £2 10s per month.

(c) Allowance not to be drawn when lodging allowance is drawn, nor when the man is provided with married quarters.

Widowers under five years' man's service, with two or more children, shall receive from June 1, 1915, and during the currency of the war, the full allowance of 1/ per diem, payable under similar conditions to married ratings. Widowers, under five years' man's service, with one child, shall be paid 6d per diem also from June 1 of last year.

Payment of an allowance of 1s per diem to chief petty officers, petty officers, and other ratings on similar lines to that mentioned in the foregoing will be made as from June 1, 1915, in the case of:—

(a) Mother to be solely dependent on her son's earnings for support.

(b) Mother must reside in Australia.

(c) Allowance not to be paid to a rating unless he declares a monthly allotment in favour of his mother of not less than £2 10s per month.

(d) Allowance not to be drawn when lodging allowance is paid, and

(e) Allowance not to be paid when married allowance is drawn.

Ratings eligible to receive the allowance should make application through their commanding officer to the Naval Secretary on the forms which will be provided in duplicate. The mother of an applicant for this allowance will be required to sign a statutory declaration before a justice of the peace or commissioner for declarations that she is solely dependent on her son for support.

SOLDIERS' WIVES.

DIFFICULTY IN SECURING ALLOWANCES.

Many soldiers' wives complain that they experience the greatest difficulty in securing their money from the Defence Department. Payment is made by money order, and it is stated that as often as not the postmaster receives his order to pay, but the woman fails to receive the draft entitling her to collect the money. "The system is altogether too complicated," said one woman yesterday. "From what I know personally and also from what I learn during my frequent visits to the Barracks, these money orders are going astray continually. At the present moment money is due to me. My money order is lying at a suburban post office, but as I have not received my portion of the order the local postmaster is unable to give me the money. There are dozens of such cases every day. In Melbourne another system is in operation and everything works smoothly. There the women are supplied with certificates with little squares marked out bearing the dates on which payment will be made during the ensuing three years, and on the specified pay days if the certificate be presented at the post office, it is stamped and the money handed over at once. No trouble—no worry, and the certificate shows at a glance if the woman have received her wages regularly.

"No endeavour is made at the Victoria Barracks to carry on the operations of the pay office in a business-like manner. On every occasion on which I have visited the Barracks—my visits are far too frequent for my liking—there has been a big crowd of women fighting and jostling each other to be attended to at the pay window. No steps are taken to see that the women file in and out of the office in an orderly manner and the result is that only the heaviest and most robust in the crowd are attended to at all promptly."

SUMMER SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The school of music, which commenced on December 28, terminated last week. One hundred and thirty students attended the lectures, which were conducted by Professor Tearne.

FRUIT FOR WOUNDED SOLDIERS

About a thousand circulars, soliciting contributions of fruit and vegetables, have been sent out in the Pennant Hills, Thornleigh, Normanhurst, and Beecroft districts, as well as to the orchardists of the outlying districts. The total number of contributors of fruit and vegetables so far are 22, some of which have given several lots. One of these is at Woolbrook, 317 miles from Sydney on the Northern Line, who sent a contribution of six cases of apples. In addition, about a thousand circulars, soliciting donations of cash, to those who are unable to give fruit and vegetables, have also been sent out in the district. The total number of those who have sent cash donations is eight, and they have contributed altogether £7/10/, of which one lady gave £5/5/. There have been no expenses to come out of the contributions other than the cost of purchasing fruit and vegetables at the markets.

DIVISIONAL ENGINEERS AND SIGNALLERS.

In consequence of the rapid growth of the Divisional Engineers and Signallers' Fund, the depot at Room 20, 2nd floor, Equitable-buildings, will in future be open daily, except Saturday, from 11 till 4 p.m. On Saturday, January 22, a military continental will be held at the Sydney Sports Ground in aid of the fund. Massed bands, military displays, and vocal items, will constitute the programme. Returned wounded soldiers, by applying at the depot for an invitation, will be admitted free of charge.

SERGEANT EDGARD PUECH.

M. Noe Puech, of Montpelier, Albert-street, Randwick, and of Woolbrokers'-chambers, Young-street, city, a well-known Sydney French resident, has received advice that his son, Sergt. Edgard Puech, who left Sydney soon after the war commenced, to fight for France, has again been mentioned in despatches. Sergeant Puech had on three former occasions rendered services which gained official recognition, but this time his name appears in the Army Corps despatches (Cite a l'ordre du Corps d'Armee). The action which gained him the distinction is referred to in the despatches as follows:—"With invincible courage, he, in the course of a violent attack, rose on the parapet, and, electrifying his half-section, carried them all with him, thus hurling back the furious German infantry attack launched against his trench on October 30, 1915."

Domestic happiness and the problems of married life usually depend on simpler matters than novelists realise. Such simple matters as Cockle's Pills can set right.—Ad

MR. BRUNTNELL.

MR. WADE APPEALS FOR LOYALTY.

DRUMMOYNE SEAT.

Mr. Wade yesterday made the following statement in reference to the action of Mr. Bruntnell in resigning from the Liberal party as a protest against the party selection for the Drummoyne seat:—

"I regret to hear of Mr. Bruntnell's decision to sever his connection with the Liberal party, but I fail to understand the reasons that prompt him to take such a step, and I venture to think that in his own interests he is making a serious mistake. Mr. Bruntnell has for years been associated with the Liberal party, and few men can claim to have been more loyal and zealous supporters of Liberalism than himself, and whatever may be the ideals that appeal to him individually, they never distorted his grasp of the general situation. No doubt he is disappointed at the result of the selection by the central executive. We may fairly assume that every candidate is equally disappointed. The task of the executive, on whom this responsibility rests, is always very difficult. It is impossible to forecast the precise extent of support a candidate enjoys without detailed counting of heads; but in arriving at a true estimate of the relative strength of candidates I think the impartial opinion of the executive is more likely to be correct than that of the individual candidate. At any rate, the selection of one man in preference to the rest is bound to disappoint those who fail, and possibly even offend them; but if everybody who is disappointed in his expectations is forthwith to announce himself as opposed to the Liberal party, then organisation becomes a farce. I am convinced that Mr. Bruntnell, on further reflection, will realise his action was precipitate, and there is no more reason for his cutting himself adrift from the party than for any one of the other five candidates who failed to secure the selection.

"However, the basis of the Liberal Association is sufficiently broad to allow individual members to express and even act upon differences of opinion. No penalty is imposed on any man who acts in accordance with his convictions, and I hope the day is far distant when the ... sober judgment, and loyalty to principle which has characterised Mr. Bruntnell in the past will induce him to forget the temporary smart of defeat and again throw in his lot with the party."

FIELD GLASSES.

Prismatic and field glasses continue to be handed in at the barracks, and Major Page, D.A.Q.M.G., had by noon on Saturday 543 pairs in hand, all of which will be utilised by officers going to the front. The Major is also anxious to obtain as many cases for field glasses as possible, as in some instances people have forwarded glasses without cases, with shoulder strap attached. In spite of the fine response already made, it must not be forgotten that a steady supply of no fewer than 50 pairs of glasses must be provided every month for reinforcement officers.

DEATH OF A STEWARD.

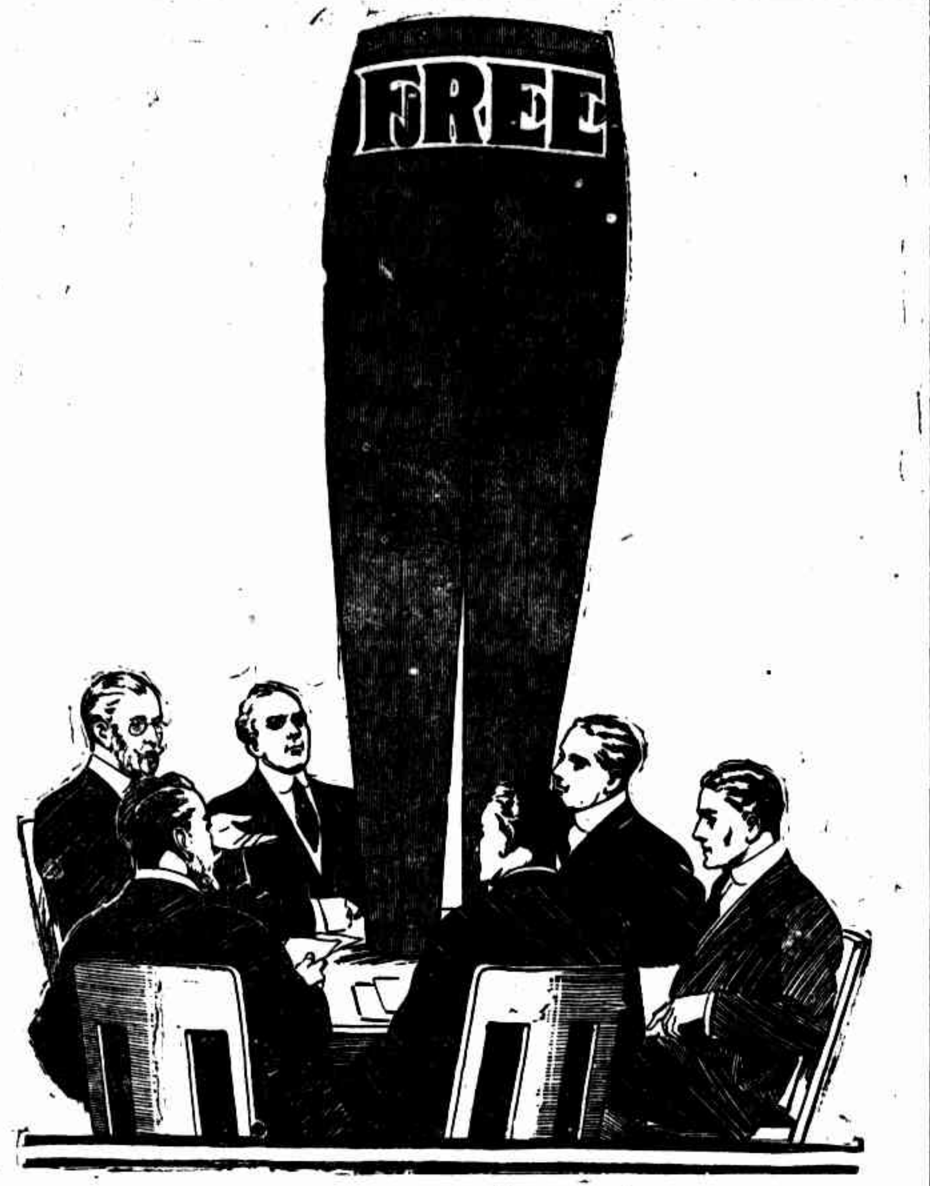

PERTH, Sunday.

Albert Ruffey, a steward, employed at the Naval and Military Club, died from a gunshot wound in the head yesterday morning. Two letters, one addressed to his wife and one to the committee of the club were found in his pocket.

1916

"Economy the Order of the Day."

The most natural, and one of the VITAL CONSIDERATIONS for this year is, the "Practice of ECONOMY" wherever and whenever possible; for it takes no telling that 1916 has ushered in a period of Uncertainty and Stricter Economy for all.

Realising this, a few months ago we revived our GREAT TAILORING OFFER OF EXTRA TROUSERS FREE WITH ALL ORDER SUITS.

Get the Most Out of Your Clothes Expenditure.

We had one great object in view: not only to "BRING MORE GRIST TO THE MILL" in view of the fact that we have large staffs to keep employed, but to make the SOLUTION OF THE ECONOMY PROPOSITION EASIER FOR ALL MEN who are anxious to get the most out of their Clothes Expenditure.

In addition, we foresaw that with over 100,000 men at the Front and the War still undecided, Business would be Slacker.

Extra Trousers Free

with all Order Suits at

60/-, 63/-, 70/-, 75/-, 84/-, 95/-, 105/-

But by giving BIGGER INDUCEMENTS in the shape of EXTRA TROUSERS FREE we secured a much greater volume of Business. This, in spite of Diminished Profits, leaves us on the "Right Side of the Ledger" in the long run, and well able to keep strong on our "Never Lost Sight of Policy" of, LARGER TRADE—SMALLER PROFITS.

Order Your FOUR GARMENT SUIT To-day.

Order NOW, and make sure of having nearly DOUBLE THE LIFE IN YOUR SUIT, FOUR GARMENTS AT THE PRICE OF THREE, and a Suit which the Best of Men would be proud to wear—the product of the MOST EFFICIENT TAILORING SERVICE IN AUSTRALIA.

ST. GEORGE CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP.

The final of the club championship was played on Saturday, and was won by F. Gorman, who beat W. Kenwood 31 to 28 after a close contest all through.

CRICKET.

PETERSHAM'S GREAT SCORE.

DOUBLE CENTURY BY ANDREWS.

The outstanding feature of the seventh round of grade matches, which commenced on Saturday in fine, hot weather, was the high score put up by Petersham for the loss of but three wickets. Their total against the University XI. stands at 585, of which Andrews made 232 not out and Taylor 172.

The marked contrast was the form shown by the North Sydney batsmen, who, batting first against Redfern, were dismissed for the small total of 113. R. Jones, making his first appearance with North Sydney, batted neatly for 20 not out. F. Rix was again in fine form for Redfern, scoring a brilliant 48. North Sydney fielded brilliantly, Frendin's catching of Smith one hand in the outfield being a great effort.

Middle Harbour opened on a good wicket against Glebe. Prior was the top scorer with 40. Middle Harbour's first innings resulted in 272 runs, and Glebe had made 120 when play ceased, without losing a wicket.

Sydney and Balmain had a close first innings struggle at Rushcutter Bay, Balmain only passing their opponents' moderate total of 124 on the last wicket.

The principal batting in the Waverley-Western Suburbs match was done by Carter, who got 74 for the former in fine style. Gregory and Kippax also batted well, getting 34 and 61 respectively.

The batting was very slow at Hampden Oval, particularly in the early stages. One hour's play produced 40 runs, and two hours 97 runs. The Gordon batsmen showed little enterprise, [illegible] being in 2 hours for 49.

Home Dressmaking Week at DAVID JONES'

Accomplished without the aid of a dressmaker.

The economical and practical advantages of home dressmaking are only realised by actual experience.

THIS week David Jones' Dress Material and Silk Showrooms (1st floor) are transformed into one large "Ready-made" Department. The display is a complete one, showing the materials—all economically priced—patterns, styles, and trimmings; also finished garments of every description, cut from actual patterns stocked, and made up exactly as you are easily able to make them at home.

Expert assistants will be in attendance to give you full information (without the least obligation on your part to purchase) regarding most suitable fabrics, exact quantities, cost, etc. For those who would like the garments cut out to measure, and tacked ready for sewing, our ready-to-make department is at their service at very nominal charges.

The "David Jones" sewing machine will be demonstrated and fully explained all day long. With this machine you can do every kind of work that is possible on any higher priced vibrating shuttle model; it is guaranteed for 10 years, and the price is only £5/12/6.

Whether you are in the habit of making your garments or not, this unique "Home dressmaking exhibition" will prove of particular interest, and we specially invite you to pay a visit.

EACH DAY

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

FEEDING WHEAT TO SHEEP.

In part of the American wheat belt this season, owing to the prolonged summer rains, growers were able to thrash very little of the wheat from the stook, as is done usually. Most of the farmers were considered lucky if they were able to get their wheat cut and stacked between showers. In some districts, where the most severe storms raged, hundreds of acres of wheat were cut with mowing machines or left on the ground. Confronted with the problem of using this straw and grain, the farmers who have other grain and good hay found that feeding lambs was a remarkably profitable solution. Some costly mistakes showed the necessity for caution, however. The first experimenters made errors which their neighbours were quick to profit by. One man who allowed his lambs free access to a partly scattered stack for two hours one afternoon found three dead and 60 scouring the following morning. One great sheep feeding centre was the scene of considerable wheat feeding last year. Those who had the loose grain in stacks found it best to haul it to the lambs, allowing a very small amount at first and gradually increasing the ration until they were getting from three to five pounds of grain and straw per head each day, according to the grain content of the heads. Many feeders, who had not attempted to cut the lodged grain, pastured the green stuff and the old wheat together. However, it was found dangerous to leave lambs unaccustomed to this feed on the paddocks for more than 30 minutes at a time.

BAGO FOREST.

The potentialities of the Bago Forest, near Tumbarumba, have become more generally realised as a result of the recent visit of his Excellency the Governor-General. Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson made no secret of the favourable impression he received from an inspection of the mountain ash to be found in this forest. In our report at the time reference was made to the intention of a syndicate to work the forest for timber in a proper manner. A light tramway is to be constructed from the forest to Gilmore, on the Cootamundra-Tumut railway line, a distance of 21 miles. Mr. W. Kershaw, who is responsible for this enterprise, in which he has interested some Sydney gentlemen, informs us that the construction of the tramway line is to begin immediately. It will be built of wooden rails, which will be obtained along the route, with a 2ft 6in gauge. Worked by a locomotive tractor, the tram will draw one hundred tons of timber, doing one trip a day. There is a fall of about 3000 feet from the forest to Gilmore.

THE RABBIT TRADE.

Although having millions of rabbits Queensland has never encouraged the sale either locally or overseas of dead rabbits. The administrations in the past have held the view that to encourage the commercial side of the rabbit industry means to perpetuate the pest, by making it worth while for those engaged in the trade to see that the rabbits never died out. It was provided in the Rabbit Act that no person could sell rabbits without a permit from the Central Rabbit Board. Whatever results have accrued, it is clear that to the present Queensland has not been troubled with the cry of vested interests whenever it has been necessary to take any steps to deal with the rabbit pest. This time has passed, as the present Minister for Lands in Queensland has completely reversed the procedure. He has announced that he will encourage in every possible way the utilisation of rabbits, and he has overridden the central board and insisted on the issue of licenses to as many trappers as will come forward. Already a large number of rabbits are being destroyed adjacent to the railway lines, and it is probable that cold storage space will be provided in the west to store the rabbits pending their consignment to port.

MIXED FARMING.

(BY C.O.M.P.)

The farmer, with only a limited area of land at his disposal, would be well advised to make a close study of the utility of mixed farming. The year we have just experienced furnishes excellent testimony of the value of this system, for, to the writer's certain knowledge, some farmers, in areas regarded as drought-stricken, who went in for mixed farming last season, made their best returns for years. This is no idle boast, but purely a relation of fact, recounted solely with a view to causing farmers to think. The farmer who pins his faith entirely to wheat on a small area, with a few sheep as a side line, as many of our farmers do, is making a great mistake, and the sooner he sees the error of his ways the better for everybody. The Bathurst Experiment Farm furnishes a useful object lesson on the value of mixed farming and rotation cropping, for on this area a demonstration plot of about 180 acres is kept for the purpose of showing farmers the most payable methods to adopt. Half this area is sown with wheat and oats for hay and grain crops each year, the remainder being placed under a green crop, which is sown in the early autumn. Algerian oats is preferred by the manager for a green crop, as it is found that this is the surest crop to grow, and about the best for feeding purposes. The land under the green crop is ploughed up about October, thus giving it a short fallow of about five months before the grain and hay crops are sown.

Of course this system is not one that could very safely be adopted in the dry areas, but throughout the safe wheat districts it is certainly one well worth a trial. On the Bathurst farm excellent results have been achieved. Last season the wheat crop on land worked under this system returned 27 bushels per acre. There is little doubt that if farmers would adopt the system of sowing the areas cut for hay on their holdings with a green crop such as Algerian oats, or if the land is poor rye might be used, the carrying capacity of such an area would be considerably increased, for everyone knows that, during most years, the carrying capacity of mown areas is next to nothing. Small farmers have got into the habit of paying too little attention to the sheep side of their business, depending almost solely on wheat for an income.

Under a proper system sheep should return nearly as much as wheat, for if proper precautions are taken to conserve fodder a dry spell need not be feared. Indeed it is as the result of a dry spell, when our surplus sheep have died off, and such a condition of affairs, exists as at present prevails, that the farmer who has taken care to keep his sheep alive makes headway. Oats for grain will also be found not only payable, but a good crop to rotate with wheat, for it kills diseases such as takeall, as well as providing something in the nature of a spell for land worn out for wheat. Oats on the farm for fodder for all kinds of stock is always a good standby, and if a bin or silo is kept for the purpose of storing it in bulk little damage is done to it by mice. Such a place is always a good investment, for it is only a matter of holding oats for a while when a good price is assured. Oats pays to grow at anything over 2s per bushel, but if storage facilities are provided on the farm no farmer need sell them for less than 3s per bushel.

PASSIONFRUIT FOR AMERICA.

SUCCESSFUL EXPERIMENT.

During last October a trial shipment of 12 boxes of passionfruit was despatched by the Department of Agriculture to the Trade Commissioner at San Francisco (Mr. N. Neilsen) in order to test the demand for this fruit in America, and at the same time to determine the best methods of packing. Three styles of packing were adopted—viz., wax wrappers, ordinary wrappers packed tightly with cork dust and cork dust only.

A report which has been received from Mr. Neilsen indicates that the fruit arrived in the very best condition. The fruit in the wax and ordinary wrappers was excellent, but that packed in cork dust only was riper than that in the wrappers, a small percentage showing signs of becoming shrivelled.

The trade representative distributed the fruit to the best advantage for publicity purposes, and great prominence was given in the newspapers to the arrival of the consignment and the edible value of the fruit. Samples were delivered to the leading hotels and fruit merchants, and as a result numerous inquiries have been made for further particulars. It is understood that several inquiries are being sent to Sydney regarding further consignments. As a result of circulars sent to the fruit importers, one of the leading importers is sending a representative to Sydney early this month to look into the fruit trade.

Mr. Neilsen also forwarded a copy of the American law in regard to the sizes of fruit cases for the import trade, and this may be perused on application at the Department of Agriculture.

RAISING FAT LAMBS.

THE DORSET HORN CROSS.

With reference to the practical test in marketing lambs at Homebush, recently completed by the Department of Agriculture, the sheep and wool expert, Mr. J. Wrenford Matthews, supplies the following notes in the "Agricultural Gazette":—

The lambs were raised at the Yanco Experiment Farm, and the consignment included only Dorset Horn crosses. For several years past the department has had the Dorset Horn together with other breeds, under close observation at the various experiment farms in connection with cross-breeding. Previous reports already pointed to the profitableness of the breed for early lamb production, and the prices which were obtained at the recent sale again show the value of the breed for the purpose indicated. As the result of these tests, the Dorset Horn was selected as the most suitable cross for Yanco conditions.

The following are the particulars of the drop:—Dorset Horn rams were mated with Longwool crossbred ewes. The lambs were dropped between April 27 and May 27. They were sold on October 14, and were thus between 20 and 24 weeks old at the time of offering. Originally it was intended to offer the lambs in the wool, but owing to the grass seeds falling before arrangements could be made for despatch, it was found necessary to shear the lambs prior to their being offered. In the lot were included, altogether, 67 lambs. The difference, however, between the youngest and eldest of the drop necessitated classification prior to offering. Accordingly 52 were offered in one line, leaving a balance of 15, which were sold at a lower value.

A record was taken of the weight of the wool, which was sold in the open market. The lambs cut on an average 3lb 10oz of wool, which realised 8½d per lb. The following computation shows the value of the lots separately, as well as the average value which represents that of the whole drop:—

No.	Price Realised.	Value of Fleece.	Aggregate Value.
52	20/10	2/7	23/5

67 lambs thus realised the average price of 22/11.

Commenting on the sale of the lambs, the selling agents made the following remarks:—"The market, although the supply was large, was a firm one throughout, especially for good quality. On arrival of the lambs we saw that they were fed and watered, and went very carefully through them, and classed as we thought best to suit buyers' requirements here. Naturally with the variation in their ages, the lambs were a little irregular in size, but condition and quality left nothing to be desired; they were exceptionally well-grown quartered lambs, and the only thing noticeable as compared to the general average of lambs coming forward was that they were a bit big in the bone, but, of course, this would be due to the cross they represent.

"We should estimate their average weight at the market here about 50lb dressed, possibly a little more, and as far as their suitability for the market is concerned, we have no hesitation in saying that if lambs can be produced of their quality, weight, and size, at the age of 20 to 24 weeks, they are sure to find a ready sale at very remunerative prices, more especially as the prospects ahead point to meat values keeping at a satisfactory level in so far as the producer is concerned and from our experience we have not seen any lambs that could compare for size and weight at the age of these, and, therefore, we consider this cross must prove a very good one, and worthy of being largely gone in for."

THE BATHURST DISTRICT.

YEAR OF RURAL PROSPERITY.

DAIRYING SUFFERS.

BATHURST.—Coupled with that of 1914, the past season completes a period of rural prosperity of which the Bathurst district was sadly in need. The 1915 season was certainly one of the best ever experienced in this part of the State; it was ushered in under favourable and exceptional circumstances—high prices and increased acreage. The early autumn rains allowed of early ploughing, and caused a prolonged and favourable sowing period, throughout which the rains were sufficient to ensure seasonal germination. Nevertheless, the not unusual critical stage during the maturing of the crops was experienced, this being during November, in which month practically no rain fell, while hot scorching winds were frequent. Many crops suffered severely, making hay as they stood, and rendering them unfit for grain production, while patches and individual plants throughout some of the growths perished right away. These circumstances were mostly responsible for most of the farmers cutting for hay, while the drought of the northern districts created a considerable demand for chaff, and thus firmed the market. The farmers who sold early secured excellent prices, while the figures now quoted are also above the normal. A number of farmers were also influenced in the direction of hay cutting by the Government wheat pooling scheme, of which many appeared shy. The grain procured from the crops that have been left has generally anticipated expectations, and the prospects of the grain market at the present time seem to be more favourable than that for hay.

The Bathurst district may, perhaps because of its proximity to the metropolis, be classed as a hay rather than a wheat growing centre. It produces both well, but the profits have been for hay for some seasons past. A trip over the plains reveals the bounteousness of the season in the numerous well-built stacks dotting the landscape. Chaffcutting plants are removing many of these, and the railway stations and sidings are congested with the produce, and are unable to handle the big quantities coming forward. Farmers have now learned to become philosophic, and are passively leaving their produce to the powers that be to transit it whenever opportunity permits.

Some heavy crops have been harvested from fallowed land, from three to four tons being reached. The rainfall as registered in the city did not come up to the average, being only about 21 inches, or two or three inches below that of the past fifty years. The areas which had been fallowed withstood the dry November best, thus further proving the value of the system. Yet, too few fallowed areas are to be seen throughout the district. Whereas the farmers with the fallowed areas set out with full confidence, the others are entirely dependent on the irregular rainfall.

The maize crops of the past season proved a comparative failure, and as this has frequently happened during late years, except, perhaps, on irrigated areas, growers are asking whether it would not be more profitable to resort to winter cereal crops. Latterly the rains have been insufficient for the maize crops, those at present growing being considerably backward. Other crops upon the lowlands, such as potatoes, tomatoes, and pumpkins, have also suffered from adverse climatic conditions.

Pastorally, the season has proved satisfactory, normal conditions prevailing in the pastures. The grazier reaped the benefit of high prices, which may be termed phenomenal. Some of the district wool reached record figures.

THE FLYING FOX.

SINGLETON.—Flying foxes have proved a greater nuisance this summer than ever before known. One of their camps was located at Glennie's Creek a few days ago, and a party of 14 residents accounted for about 1000 before their ammunition gave out. People living in the neighbourhood say that if the authorities would only supply ammunition the nuisance could be very soon considerably decreased, as plenty would volunteer for the work of destruction. The foxes are supposed to have been driven in largely by the outside bush fires.

THE WHEAT SCHEME.

STATEMENT BY GOVERNMENT AGENT.

ALBURY.—In regard to the published statements concerning the difficulty experienced by farmers in obtaining certificates for their wheat, a representative of the "Herald" waited upon Mr. P. D. Burrons, head of the milling firm of John Burrons Proprietary, Ltd. He stated that, as far as his firm was concerned, there had been no difficulty. He added:—"We are issuing certificates, and sent out the first on Tuesday. These certificates are negotiable. All the holder need do is to take them to the bank, and convert them into cash."

In reply to a suggestion of the farmers' conference that only interim receipts were issued in the country, and that the money was not available until the official receipt arrived from Sydney, Mr. Burrons said:—"We are principal agents for the Government, and our certificate is equivalent to cash. When a sub-agent buys he certifies to the quality, and we issue the certificate on the weights. If there is any delay, it is the sub-agent who is concerned, as the money is only paid on the certificate of his principal."

ROLL OF HONOUR.

FLAGS UNFURLED AT BURWOOD.

There was a large congregation at St. James' Presbyterian Church, Burwood, yesterday morning to witness the breaking of two flags of honour by the minister of the Church (the Rev. R. Scott West), Moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly. The ceremony was to commemorate the action of those who have volunteered and are fighting the Empire's battles. The flags, the Union Jack and the Australian flag, were each inscribed with the names of members of the congregation in the A.I. forces, including the names of four women who are engaged in nursing the sick and wounded soldiers in Egypt. High up on the walls, but not too high to read the names, which are woven on silk, the soldiers' names being in red and the nurses' in blue, the flags were hung. In years to come the Churches will be the repositories of the flags of the regiments that have participated "in the great endeavour," as the Moderator put it yesterday, with the names of the battles in which the men have won renown inscribed on them. The famous regiments of the old land are thus commemorated, and now Australia is following the excellent example. Although the colours are not carried in battle now the flags still tell of the deeds of the regiments.

On the flags in St. James' Church, Burwood, there are over 50 names, and these are to be added to. Among the names are those of Lieut. Buchanan, who was mentioned in despatches by Sir Ian Hamilton in connection with the landing at Gallipoli in April last. Almost every branch of the Empire's defences is represented. One Australian, after a brilliant career in the engineering school at the University, is now a lieutenant-engineer on H.M.A.S. Melbourne; others are attached to the A.A.M.C. At the service the Moderator was assisted by Chaplain-Captain the Rev. George Chalmers.

Preaching from the text "We will rejoice in Thy salvation, and in the name of our God we will set up our banners" . . . Psalm 20, verse 5, the Rev. R. Scott West said that the text was taken from an old-world war sermon. They were there to commemorate those who had realised their duty outside of themselves, who had been spoken to by a voice of patriotism and duty. They had taken up their cross, and he reminded his hearers of the word of St. Paul, "No man liveth unto himself and dieth unto himself." Germany was being defeated by the workman from his bench, the farmer from his plough, and the clerk from his desk. These men had seen the vision of Him that was the Leader of all that was good and true. They had heard the call, and gone out in answer to it. The flags they were unfurling were an appreciation of that great sacrifice.

Mr. West broke the flags, and the choir and congregation sang the Te Deum. The service concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

DRUMMOYNE SEAT.

Speaking before the Dulwich Hill Brotherhood yesterday afternoon, Mr. Walter Bentley said that the reason he was offering himself as a candidate for the Drummoyne election was his keen desire to see the military forces saved from the curse of drink. His conscience caused him to fight against the supineness of the State Government, which had, up to the present, defied public opinion and military necessity.

Mr. T. Hoskins, M.L.A., said that he had the surprise of his life on entering Parliament when he saw members watching like a cat watching a mouse to ascertain if it would be safe to vote in a certain way without imperilling their party.

Mr. James Marion said that in Victoria he had learned that as a result of the earlier closing of liquor bars the drink bill had decreased 35 per cent.

MANLY WITHOUT WATER.

On Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday the residents of Manly, who reside on the heights, were without water. The heat made matters much worse. Alterations are being effected at the local reservoir, and it is understood the supply was cut off. Had notice been given to the residents personally before the water was cut off a great amount of the inconvenience would have been avoided. This is the second time within a few months that Manly residents have been similarly treated by the board.

LORD MAYORALTY.

STILL UNSETTLED.

The Lord Mayoral deadlock still continues. As far as the Government is concerned nothing has been done since the Cabinet meeting on Thursday last. Ministers are to hold a Cabinet meeting to-morrow, when the appointment of a Lord Mayor will again be the principal business.

Since the matter was postponed by the Ministers on Thursday last it has been under discussion by the Labour aldermen of the newly-elected City Council. These aldermen have met once or twice at the headquarters of the Political Labour League at Macdonell House, evidently to consider some question defined by the Premier on behalf of the Cabinet. It is believed that the Labour aldermen were asked straight out to nominate another candidate in the place of Alderman Meagher. But whether this is correct or not, it has been learned that these aldermen decided to stick solidly to Alderman Meagher as their choice of Lord Mayor. This decision may be said to enhance Alderman Meagher's chances of appointment, though there is still room for the suggestion that he will not receive Cabinet endorsement.

The names of a number of aldermen have been suggested as being candidates with more or less Ministerial support. It is quite possible that the matter will not be settled at to-morrow's Cabinet meeting.

CLOTHING DEPOT.

GOVERNMENT SENDS £1000 TO LONDON.

The Premier announced on Saturday that the Agent-General had been instructed by cable to make, on behalf of the Government, a donation of £1000 to the New South Wales clothing depot in London.

The New South Wales clothing depot helps deserving cases that come to it from the Soldiers and Sailors' Families' Association, the Children's Aid Committee, the Church Army, and the Salvation Army. In addition, the depot sends necessaries to the Australian troops in the East, to Australians wounded in London and discharged from hospital.

The New South Wales Ladies' Committee was formed by Lady Coghlan, and is being continued by Mrs. B. R. Wise.

TRADE FAIR.

The Sydney Chamber of Commerce is organising a trade fair to be opened at the Town Hall on Wednesday next by the Governor, Sir Gerald Strickland, and to be continued daily for a week. Encouraged by the previous fair held last September, which was an exhibition of goods made in Australia, Great Britain, and by our Allies to replace those previously supplied by enemy countries, the executive of the Chamber of Commerce has decided on this second fair. It will follow on much the same lines, but be considerably more comprehensive in its scope, and doubtless more interesting to the public generally. The entire proceeds are to be given to the various battalion comforts funds in the city.

MR. BLACK AT NEWCASTLE.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Mr. Black, Chief Secretary, who welcomed the "Wallabies" upon their arrival at Newcastle on Saturday afternoon, afterwards inspected a private hospital at Merewether which was offered for a children's hospital at a rental of £2 per week, but decided not to accept it. He inquired into the consumptives' dispensary at Cook's Hill, and has decided to extend the work. Mr. Black also inspected the old police station at Merewether, and promised that if funds were available he would have a new one erected. On Sunday he visited Lake Macquarie on a fisheries inspection, and examined a prawn push net.

PAINTERS AND DOCKERS.

On Saturday the Balmain branch of the Federated Ship Painters and Dockers' Union opened a new hall and office in Mort-street, Balmain. Representatives of a number of trades-unions were present. Success to the union was proposed by Mr. T. Brown. Mr. R. Mahony, secretary, in replying, said that in the early history of the union, painters received 35s a week; now they were paid £3 12s a week.

IN MEMORIAM.

LONG.—In loving memory of our dear father, who was drowned at Narrabeen on January 10, 1915. Gone, but not forgotten. Inserted by his loving sons, Charlie, Frank, Eric.

LONG.—In loving memory of my dear son and our dear brother-in-law, Frank Long, drowned at Narrabeen, January 10, 1915. Inserted by his fond mother and sister-in-law, Ma and Wynne.

MAXWORTHY.—In loving memory of our darling daughter, Minnie, Myra Maxworthy, who departed this life January 10, 1915. Inserted by her sorrowing mother and father.

MEYERS.—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life January 9, 1915. Inserted by her loving daughters, Henrietta, Margaret, Mary, and Louisa. Rest in peace.

MOORE.—In loving memory of our darling son, George Henry, who departed this life January 9, 1913. Inserted by his loving mother and father, and brother.

PAGE.—In memory of my true friend, Charles Page, who died on January 9, 1915, aged 76 years. At rest.
No sympathy is needed now;
Your cares are all at rest;
But happy they who now can say
They loved and served you best.
Inserted by J. H. Evans.

PINSON.—In loving memory of my dear father, Richard T. Pinson, who departed this life January 9, 1913.
We miss thee from thy house, dear father,
We miss thee from thy place;
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face.
Inserted by his fond son and daughter-in-law, Richard and Florrie Pinson, also grandchildren, Walter and Dick.

PINSON.—In loving memory of our dear father, who departed this life January 9, 1913, aged 64 years.
Your memory is as dear to-day
As in the hour you passed away.
Inserted by his loving son, Thomas Henry Pinson.

RANDELL.—In loving memory of my dear wife, Jane Randell, who died at her residence, 67 Belmont-street, Alexandria, January 10, 1915, aged 62 years. Dearly loved; sadly missed. Inserted by her loving husband and family.

STORIS.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mary Ann Storis, who departed this life January 9, 1915, aged 87. Inserted by her loving daughter, Mary Johnson.

SULLIVAN.—In loving and affectionate remembrance of our dear sister, Bertha Sullivan, who passed away at Waterfall, after a long and painful illness, on January 9, 1915. At rest. Inserted by her loving sister, Julia, and brother-in-law, Herbert Chatburn, Mona, and Elsie.

TRAVERS.—In loving memory of my dear husband, Emanuel Travers, who died January 9, 1913. R.I.P. Inserted by his loving wife, Alice Travers, Primrose, Abbotsford-street, Kensington.

VISSER.—In loving remembrance of Wee Bernie (Berend Gordon), who fell asleep January 8, 1905, the dearly-loved and only son of Mr. and Mrs. Berend Visser, aged 1 year and 2 months.
He is not dead—the child of our affection—
But gone unto that school,
Where he no longer needs our poor protection,
And Christ Himself doth rule.

VISSER.—In loving memory of my dearly loved and only brother, Little Bernie (Berend Gordon), who was suddenly called home to be with Jesus, January 8, 1905. Inserted by his lonely sister, Annie Marie Visser, 57 John-street, Pyrmont.

WENCK.—A tribute of love to the memory of our dear mother, Tess, who departed this life January 10, 1912. Never forgotten. Inserted by her loving son and daughter-in-law, Fred and Emmie.

WENCK.—A loving tribute to the memory of my dear mother, Tess, who passed away January 10, 1912. Never forgotten. Inserted by her loving daughter, Winnie.

WENCK.—A tribute of love and remembrance to the memory of my dear mother, Tess, who passed away January 10, 1912. Always remembered. Inserted by her youngest daughter, Ursula.

WHITE.—In loving memory of my dear friend, William Ernest White, who departed this life January 10, 1914. Inserted by his loving friend, M. E. H.

WHITTEMORE.—In loving memory of my dear father, who departed this life on January 9, 1911. Inserted by his loving son and daughter-in-law, William, Lillie, and little grandson, Willie.

WING.—In sad but loving memory of our dear daughter, Lucy Vera Melva Wing, aged 14 years, who departed this life January 10, 1911.
All is sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts to-day,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has for ever passed away.
Inserted by her loving father and mother and brothers, Harry, Arthur, Jack, Fred.

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH.

Just as a section of the workers of Great Britain is endeavouring to divide the country into two camps on the subject of conscription, so a section of the workers of Australia—a small and unimportant section, we believe—appears determined to divide the people of the Commonwealth into two camps on the same subject. But the dissenting workers of Great Britain take quite a different stand from the dissenting workers of this country. They are straight-out non-conscriptionists. For some reason or other they fear the introduction of the compulsory process, their idea no doubt, being that it is but a short step from compelling one man to go to the front to compelling another to make munitions in a factory at a soldier's wages and with a soldier's disregard for hours and conditions of labour. But we do not propose to discuss the point of view of the British worker further than to point out that it is fundamentally different from the point of view of his Australian confrere, or, rather, that section which is endeavouring to check recruiting by stimulating class prejudices, and attempting to create class distinctions that in reality do not exist. The Australian Labour official does not say as his British prototype says: "We will have none of this conscription," but he says: "We workers will give our lives when you wealthy men give your money." In other words, they say that they believe in "conscription of men," but only when it is accompanied by "conscription of wealth."

It is interesting to analyse this somewhat invidious suggestion. Anyone can see that it affords a splendid excuse for the man who is looking for one. "I will go," he asserts, "when so-and-so hands over £1000," or any sum you like, which means that he will not go at all, but is not man enough to say it. In general there can be no doubt that those who are so insidiously propagating the conscription of wealth idea are non-starters when the recruiting sergeant comes round. But assuming there are some who are quite honest in their conviction that the wealthy should give their money as some set-off to the poor giving their lives, what does the argument amount to? It is based upon the assumption that the wealthy either have no lives to give, or are not giving them, which is palpably untrue. There can be no doubt at all that the wealthy have been just as patriotic in proportion to their numbers as the poor. It might even be proved that they have been more patriotic. But we have no wish to stress this idea. This war is not regarded by the community as a rich man's war or a poor man's war, but a war of justice against injustice, of humanity against inhumanity, of chivalry against barbarism. May it not be that the just, humane, and chivalrous men of this community are neither the rich nor the poor, but comprise the bulk of both?

If the matter be regarded from another point of view, it equally fails to stand criticism. Possibly the proponents of the conscription of wealth idea have in their mind's eye not the wealthy man who is still young enough and fit enough to shoulder a rifle with the rest, but the wealthy man well up in years who is long past the fighting age, and they say in effect: "Why should we, the workers, give our lives while you rich men do not give your money?" Here, again, they fall into two blunders. If the youthful rich who don khaki are acknowledged as a fair set-off against the youthful poor with whom they fight side by side, with, we hope, no distinction but such as arises from military prowess, then only those beyond the fighting age remain to be considered. Neither give their lives; one only has aught else to give. And this wealth is to-day freely given Those who talk glibly of conscription of wealth forget that wealth is being mobilised to-day for war purposes as effectively as is possible. What are war taxes but a form of wealth conscription? Wealthy men in this community are being forced to hand over, say, 6s 8d in the pound, or one-third of their incomes to the Federal and State Taxation Commissioners, and they are doing it with good grace, in view of the purpose for which the money is being used. Money is being poured into the various war loans, which, if we lose the war, will possibly be worth no more than the paper on which the indebtedness is inscribed. True, in the meantime, interest is being paid, but millions of the money lent could not have been lent on any other terms. Could life insurance offices, banks, or trustees holding fiduciary money lend it free of interest, as has been suggested? Not if the life office hopes to pay the face value of its policies when they fall due, or the bank return the money to its depositor when he calls for it, or the trustee to hand over the capital entrusted to his care without deduction, having given the beneficiaries, possibly widows and orphans, their expected income in the meantime. No, we have conscription of wealth to-day in a very real way: to go further would really mean confiscation.

FREIGHT BURDENS.

As the war progresses so does the cost of freight. Paradoxical as it may seem, our complete mastery of the sea is the principal cause of that progress in freight charges. That mastery enables us to widen the operations of our land forces, and the transport thereby rendered necessary absorbs much more tonnage than would the mere transfer of troops to the ports of France. With one-third of the world's tonnage swept off the seas, with an increase in the amount of merchandise to be carried—munitions of war of all kinds from America and Australia—with the transport of vast armies across thousands of miles of ocean, the intensest competition that ever the world has known is prevailing for freight. In the early days of the war the additional war insurance, the cost of delays at ports owing to the scarcity of labour or the congestion of shipping, and in some instances higher rates of pay, all helped to increase freight. But freight has advanced far beyond the point where these factors have influence. It is competition and competition alone which is now increasing the rate. The result is extreme profits to the shipowner. Our cables inform us that the gross earnings of Danish shipping last year were greater than was the capital cost of the ships. Steamers have more than doubled in value, and sailing vessels, which before the war were finding a growing difficulty in obtaining employment, are now sought after with almost as much avidity as steam vessels. The poorer nations are becoming fearful that their mercantile marine may be swallowed up by their richer neighbours offering tempting prices. To prevent such a disaster we find Spain refusing to permit the sale of any of her merchantmen.

To-day freight from New York to Australia costs from £6 to £7 a ton. Under normal conditions it would cost £1 to £1 10s a ton. What this increase means may be more readily grasped when it is stated that the freight paid on some shipments now on the water between New York and Australia was more than the vessel in which the shipments are coming cost to build. Another instance makes the fact perhaps still more realisable, because it concerns a commodity with which we are all intimately concerned. In our commercial column the other day it was pointed out that whereas, before the war, the merchant here paid 6s 9d for each case of kerosene delivered to him, to-day the freight alone on each case of kerosene from America exceeds by 3d that total pre-war cost. Nor is the American freight market singular. A few weeks before the close of the year the English shipping companies employing what used to be known as tramp steamers, put up the highest class to £4 10s a ton, and the lowest to £2 10s, or more than double pre-war rates; and the latest information from our own quarter of the world is that freight from Australia will be augmented in a like degree. An example which touches us very closely is that of wheat. In place of a normal freight of 25s a ton, the freight is now at least 85s a ton, which means that were the freight normal the farmer would obtain 1.6d per bushel more for his wheat than the market can give him to-day. Not in all cases do these extraordinary profits go into the pocket of the shipowner. The first charterer often reaps where he has not sown. A few months ago a coal charter of many ships for a long period ahead was halved—that is, half the vessels were released—on payment of £80,000, and only recently a charter of three small vessels was handed over to a Sydney firm on payment of double the original charter money.

Such enormous freights constitute an appalling charge on the interchange of products, and their incidence is giving rise to consternation among the mercantile community. The question on every merchant's lips is where will it end? There must come a time when freight will rise no further, because the price of goods will be so increased that people will not buy them. Such a position is being slowly reached, and that end will be hastened should the spending power of the bulk of the people be curtailed. Already there is noticeable a slackening of the desire to carry out improvements on farm and pastoral holdings, and in industrial centres there is the feeling that the machinery will last just a little longer. In short, most of the leaders of industry, whether primary or manufacturing, are slowing up with their improvements and repairs, which means a decreased consumption of all manufactures of metals. But, if the slowing up proceeds too far, there will be brought about a deterioration in the means of production. The question will be, what will cost more—to allow this deterioration to continue, or to pay the cost of amelioration? But before this stage is reached we should by our ingenuity have overcome some of the evils which high freights inflict. So we shall become more self-dependent and self-reliant. Whether a control of freights would be serviceable is open to question. Only British freight could be controlled by Great Britain. If freight to neutral countries were controlled, then we would be acting in the interests of neutrals and curtailing the advantages of our shipping to the Empire, while if freight to the Empire Dominions and the Allied countries were controlled, the inevitable result would be to drive freight into carrying the neutral trade, because in the neutral trade it would obtain a better return. Hence, control would be the last resort. There is this consolation, that the high freights on trade with neutral countries by increasing the cost of our services to those countries diminishes the trade balances against us. So the unfavourable character of the exchange against Great Britain is decreased, and the cost of exchange is lowered.

WAR LOAN.

APPEAL TO CITIZENS.

OFFICIAL CIRCULAR.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Federal Treasurer (Mr. Higgs) is adopting a novel means to ensure the success of the second Commonwealth war loan. He is making a personal appeal to every resident of Australia who is in receipt of an income of £300 a year or over, to subscribe something. The appeal is in the form of the following circular letter, which is to be sent out, accompanied by a copy of the prospectus of the loan. The letter reads:—

"As Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Australia I respectfully invite you to subscribe to the Commonwealth second war loan of £10,000,000. Australia requires this sum, and a great deal more, to enable the Government to pay for the equipment, transport, and maintenance of 300,000 gallant soldiers who freely risk their lives for the defence of our hearths, homes, and country. Up to the present, and since the never-to-be-forgotten April 25, 1915, when our troops stormed the heights of Gallipoli, our casualties number 35,507 killed, wounded, ill, missing, or prisoners of war. The duty of every citizen in this great crisis is to do everything within his power to prevent his country passing under the yoke of German militarism, and I therefore urge you to lend the Government, which represents your country—the land of your birth or adoption—the land you live in—as much money as you can. You are not asked to advance money without interest. The Australian £10,000,000 second war loan carries interest at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum. The terms of the loan, which are set out in the accompanying prospectus, are so liberal, that the net return on your share of the loan throughout the whole period will be £4 13s 10d per cent., free of income tax. The Government and the Australian people are pledged to repay you what money you lend, both interest and principal, and confidently appeal to you, believing that as Australia has not been found wanting in men, neither shall she be found wanting in money."

PERSONAL.

Senator Grant left by the Katoomba on Saturday afternoon for Fremantle with a view to seeing personally the work in progress on the western section of the overland railway.

Colonel David Miller, C.M.G., I.S.O., V.D., the new Commandant of Camps in this State, took over command of Liverpool and Casula camps on Friday from Colonel Kirkland. Colonel Kirkland will, however, stay on in the camps for the next few days to complete the transfer.

Captain Charles F. Henderson, R.N., has been appointed as commodore, second class, in charge of H.M.A. naval establishments, Sydney.

Mr. George S. Arthur, who has retired from the management of the Sydney branch of the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company, was made a presentation by his fellow underwriters at a meeting held at the Royal Exchange recently.

RAILWAY SMASH.

TRAIN COLLISION AT CLYDE.

ROLLING STOCK DAMAGED.

At the Clyde marshalling yards on Saturday morning a smash-up of goods rolling stock took place, two trains coming into collision.

A goods train was being made up, and when all the trucks were assembled the engine was backed into it, but before it was coupled up the brakes of the trucks were released, and at once the train started off on a down grade, making great pace as it went on.

Frantic efforts were made to sprag the runaway, but without avail, and finally it crashed into the centre of another goods train, which was standing across the line.

The impact was so great that several trucks were piled on top of each other, while other trucks were badly smashed. The goods train which was run into then started off—or at least the portion of it that was not telescoped, and it was only brought up by sprag-ging, in time to avert another collision.

The sprags that were inserted were broken like twigs, and a splinter from one struck and injured Examiner Evans on the face. Other shunters had narrow escapes.

A breakdown gang was soon on the spot clearing away the wreckage and repairing the roadway. Altogether about 17 trucks were damaged.

A SOLDIER KILLED.

Unfortunately the accident was indirectly responsible for the loss of the life of a soldier, who was travelling in a passenger train. Whilst leaning over the platform rail to get a view of the wreckage he lost his balance, fell on to the line, and was run over. His left arm was severed, and he was also severely injured about the head. He was conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital, Auburn, but died before being admitted. A letter found on the deceased soldier bore the address, "Private D. Whann, C Company, 20th Battalion, 7th Reinforcements, Casula."

INCOME TAX RETURNS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Commissioner of Taxation (Mr. M'Kay) states that up to December 31, 371,809 income tax returns were received from persons liable to render them. Extensions of time have been granted in a large number of cases, and returns are being received daily as these extensions expire. The Commissioner points out that the Act provides a penalty of 10 per cent. additional taxes in cases where returns are received after the due date for lodgment, November 30, 1915, and no requests for extension of time have been made.

The returns are distributed amongst the various States in the following numbers (in the case of returns rendered to the central office the income is derived in more than one State):—Central, 10,023; New South Wales, 132,191; Victoria, 113,478; Queensland, 44,800; South Australia, 33,970; Western Australia, 28,237; Tasmania, 9465; Papua and Northern Territory, 135. Total, 371,809.

SCIENCE.

A FEDERAL BUREAU

TO HELP INDUSTRY.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE COMMITTEE.

The establishment of a Commonwealth Bureau of Science and Industry to consider and initiate scientific researches for the promotion of primary or secondary industries in the Commonwealth, is the principal recommendation in the report presented to the Prime Minister by the sub-committee of the conference which has just concluded sitting in Melbourne on the question of the application of scientific research to the problems of industry.

This and other interesting information concerning the conference, was given in an interview yesterday by Sir Thomas Anderson Stuart, who was one of the New South Wales representatives at the conference. He returned to Sydney on Saturday.

Sir Thomas referred to the announcement by Mr. Hughes on December 22, that he was prepared to spend up to £500,000 on a national laboratory, and that he proposed to take practical steps towards starting the laboratory before he left for England. "I found that no committee had been called together to advise the Prime Minister in the matter," said Sir Thomas. "I was therefore forced to enter a protest against any such complex undertaking being started without competent advice. This matter was put before Mr. Hughes by four delegates from the conference, who pointed out the necessity of careful consideration before anything was done, especially before appointing people from the old country as officers of the proposed laboratory, as had been suggested. It was this suggestion that brought me to my feet. The conference was therefore summoned to meet again on January 5, and a sub-committee, consisting of 12 members, of whom I was one, was appointed. That sub-committee carried the following resolutions:—

1. There should be a Commonwealth Bureau of Science and Industry.

2. The primary functions of the bureau should be:—

(a) To consider and initiate scientific researches in connection with or for the promotion of primary or secondary industries in the Commonwealth.

(b) To make recommendations from time to time to the Government for the establishment or development of special institutions or departments of existing institutions for the scientific study of problems affecting particular industries and trades.

(c) To promote the immediate utilisation of existing institutions, whether Federal or State, for the above objects.

(d) The establishment of national laboratories.

(e) The general control and administration of such laboratories when established.

(f) The establishment and award of industrial research, studentships and fellowships, which may be either travelling fellowships or attached to particular institutions.

(g) The co-ordination and direction of scientific investigation and of research and experimental work with a view to the prevention of undesirable overlapping of effort.

(h) To advise the several authorities as to the steps which should be taken for increasing the supply of workers competent to undertake scientific research.

(i) To keep in close touch with and seek the aid of all Commonwealth and State Government departments, learned and professional societies, and private enterprises concerned with or interested in scientific industrial research.

(j) The collection of industrial scientific information and its dissemination amongst those engaged in industry.

(3) All discoveries, inventions, improvements, processes, and machines made by workers directly employed by the bureau should be vested in trustees appointed by the Commonwealth Bureau of Science and Industry as the sole property of the bureau, and should be made available under proper conditions and on payment of gratuities, or otherwise, for the public advantage.

(4) That the present Commonwealth laboratories be not interfered with, but that when found necessary a new laboratory be established, for the purpose of fixing and comparing standards, and that the latter be placed under the control of the Commonwealth Bureau of Science and Industry.

(5) To draw attention to any new industries which might in its opinion be profitably started.

(6) The sub-committee to suggest the main lines of a constitution for the institute and the provisional machinery for work until the institute be formed.

(7) That the institute should be established under Act of Parliament.

(8) That the number of scientific directors be three, and that they be ex officio members of the council.

It was also resolved that the name of the proposed organisation should be the Commonwealth Institute of Science and Industry.

"The question of encouraging the teaching of science in primary and secondary schools, as well as the questions of technical training and apprenticeship and the supply of an adequate number of properly-trained artisans, were also discussed by the sub-committee," went on Sir Thomas. "In the report that was presented to the Prime Minister special attention was called to these matters."

"When Mr. Hughes started out on this matter," proceeded Sir Thomas, "he had in his mind only—or practically only—a national laboratory; but he came to see things in a different light. It was pointed out that all the Australian universities already had departments of research, and that they could be utilised for research, even apart from teaching; because hitherto Australian professors have been expected to do so much teaching and administration work that the amount of time and energy left for research work has been reduced to a minimum. It was urged that research and teaching should go hand in hand—they should not be divorced.

"Mr. Hughes came to recognise," he concluded, "that it was not so much an institution such as a laboratory that we wanted, as it was the organisation of our present resources for scientific investigation. The organisation that has been determined is that there should be a Federal Council. One of its first works will probably be the establishment of a laboratory for standardising all manner of instruments, weights, measures, and so on."

MR. HUGHES' STATEMENT.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) attended a meeting on Saturday of the Advisory Committee appointed to prepare a scheme for the establishment of an industrial science bureau, and discussed with the committee some of the recommendations in its first rough report. He stated afterwards that as those recommendations were very far-reaching and of great importance, he had asked the committee to allow him time to look through them carefully, and to meet him again on Wednesday, when he would be in a position to make some suggestions on behalf of himself and the Cabinet.

PRIME MINISTER.

LEAVING BY R.M.S. OSTERLEY.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Arrangements of the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) for his departure to England are now almost complete. He will leave for Sydney by boat on Saturday next, and, after a few days in the New South Wales capital, will return to Melbourne and will travel overland to Adelaide, where he will join the R.M.S. Osterley.

Members of the Federal Cabinet have presented Mr. and Mrs. Hughes with a handsome suit case each, the presentations being made on Saturday by the Minister for External Affairs (Mr. Mahon), who is the only Minister who was a member of the first Watson Labour Ministry.

THE CHAMPAGNE.

FRENCH VICTORY.

WONDERFUL DEFENCE WORKS

The wonderfully constructed German trenches captured by the French in the autumn offensive in the Champagne are described by Mr. G. H. Perris in the "Daily Chronicle," who also relates that the enemy only held their rear positions, and escaped complete disaster by the narrowest margin.

There is only one considerable town in the region, Chalons-sur-Marne, the Aldershot of France; and though it is so full of soldiers that you can hardly get into its old-fashioned hotels, evidently very few men of the two large armies which share the guardianship of the Champagne front can reach even the very modest pleasures that it is able to offer (says the writer). Northward from the line of the Chalons-Ste-Menehould-Verdun railway there stretches to the great divide a bare and bleak district, ending on the left or west in a gently undulating chalk moorland, and, on the right, about Massiges, in hills and dales also patched over with plantations of small fir trees.

The German trenches, scores of miles of which are now in the possession of the French, are very wonderful works. As an achievement of military engineering they have never been equalled and only approached at isolated points like the Labyrinth near Souchez in Artois. We now know that, by the narrowest of shaves, the German second line saved the armies of von Fleck and von Ditfurth from a still completer disaster on the evening of September 25; that, according to one German witness, a general retreat must have been ordered if the French artillery could have kept up its terrific bombardment for another couple of hours. Yet the German second line was, in fact, of trifling strength compared with the front positions.

The latter had been strengthened and extended continuously for more than a year. Over a front of 18 miles, from two to three miles deep, every fold of the ground had been used to the best effect to create fields of fire that no assailant could cross alive.

Four particularly powerful salients stood out upon this front, the foremost trenches being doubled and even quadrupled, while the numerous approaches were fitted for lateral defence; and the whole system, with its supporting blockhouses and fields of barbed wire, was fed by many miles of field railways.

It was a wonderful piece of work, and one or two isolated points of it still remain in the hands of its authors. I take it I shall be complimenting them if I say that they have not attempted any considerable counter offensive in Champagne, in part because they knew they would have to recapture their own as well as the French fieldworks, old and new. Nevertheless, when all is said that justly can be said for the German engineers, it is to be remarked that their scientific scheme had a purely defensive character, and led to an overweening confidence just as surely as, at the beginning of the war, years of regimentation under iron discipline had led to an overwhelming confidence in a certain mechanical kind of offensive—the assault in mass-formation.

You can see how they must have felt when you examine the dug-outs which were the officers' quarters and the men's shelters. The typical French or British dug-out is a perfunctory hiding-place, sunk shallow in the side and bottom of the trench, or buttressed up with sandbags, stones, cement, iron-plates, and any old thing that comes handy—with a scorn characteristic Tommy calls them "funk holes." The German officer looked down a long staircase of 30 steps, for all the world like the tunnels leading down to the tombs of the Theban Pharaohs in the desert beside the Middle Nile; and in all probability he felt a glow of patriotic pride as he thought of the marvellous offspring of the wedding of militarism and mechanical science. In a few years the peasants of Champagne will dig up some of these tunnels and subterranean caverns, which are at present lost under tons of debris of the French bombardment; they will find the bodies of officers who were resting there when the earth fell in upon them. Not that they had lacked anything of courage; but the telephone wires being broken by the preparatory cannonade, they could not always be warned in time that the entrance to their tunnel was being broken in.

They thought they were going to be safe in these holes for ever; or, at least as long as was necessary to obtain satisfactory terms of peace. It was not an irrational calculation, for the strength of scientific field works can hardly be exaggerated. But it made too little of the French spirit, and even in the purely mechanical domain it overlooked some very simple but important factors. The broad result we know, though only the German Government can reveal the full roll of their losses. The original armies of defence, numbering some 120,000 men, were practically extinguished. The rear positions were successfully held, as I have said, by the narrowest shave, and new lines established by reinforcements brought piecemeal from other parts of the western front, from the German depots, and even from Russia.

Jena and Austerlitz and many another bloody field on which the greatest of soldiers won his fame were child's play compared with this terrific encounter. Yet the French officers speak of it temperately, without a shadow of boasting over their 25,000 prisoners and 150 captured cannon. We had the pleasure of being received for a few minutes by the General, one of the army commanders who has held his post throughout the war, and the utmost he could be persuaded to say about the victory was that "it had evidently achieved important results, moral as well as material."

RECRUITING CARDS.

MUST BE FILLED IN.

MR. HUGHES'S WARNING.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The Prime Minister gave a plain warning on Saturday to disloyalists that anything done to prejudice the success of the Government recruiting scheme would be likely to result in swift and condign punishment being visited upon the offender.

Referring to resolutions that had been published from time to time urging people not to fill in the recruiting cards, Mr. Hughes said: "I have noticed, with very great regret, that resolutions have been passed at certain meetings advising persons not to fill in these cards. This is a most ill-advised proceeding, and one that is calculated to prejudice the recruiting scheme and so endanger the welfare of the country. At some of these meetings the recruiting scheme of the Government was referred to as 'conscription.' Anything more utterly misleading than that it is impossible to imagine. The whole scheme is voluntary, and rests upon voluntary principles. It differs from what is called conscription as night differs from day. The best proof of that is that the Labour party in England, being now faced with conscription of single men, has declared itself in favour of a further resort to Lord Derby's scheme, which in essentials is similar to that of the Commonwealth.

"I feel sure," added Mr. Hughes, "that those who move and vote for such resolutions, and who speak in such a strain, have no desire whatever to do injury to their country, but that they are misled by specious misstatements of the real position. I want to point out, however, in the clearest and most unambiguous terms that those who are concerned in such resolutions place themselves within the law, and are liable to prosecution under the War Precautions Act."

DEFERRED RATE CABLEGRAMS.

The Deputy Postmaster-General states that the Pacific Cable Board advises that the Atlantic companies notify the temporary suspension and acceptance of the deferred rate traffic. Deferred rate messages for the United Kingdom, via Pacific, are accordingly suspended.

"OVER THERE."

BELGIUM UNDER INVADER'S HEEL.

PRUSSIAN TYRANNY.

From somewhere "over there" comes the roar of the guns—a dull, intermittent thundering that rolls towards us over flat pasture lands of Flanders (writes Leonard Spray, an English correspondent on the Dutch frontier). It may be only an acoustic deception, but surely the invisible messengers of war—and death—are nearer. So, too, thinks my neighbour.

"They are driving the Germans back, monsieur; is it not so?" she asks—this poor Belgian exile. That is the question that is always on her lips. For long, weary months she has been here, she and half a dozen fellow exiles. There are hospitable English homes that would gladly give them welcome, and where they would share the comforts that are lacking in the shelters and barges that are their present abodes.

So I have often told them. But the reply is always the same. "No, monsieur; we must wait here until 'they' have gone. Then we can go back home at once."

So here they sit, day after day, week after week, month after month, listening always to the distant guns, or watching the aeroplanes that look like tiny birds as they swoop and swerve in the far distance. Generally they are silent and impassive, but sometimes they weep silently after these lengthening days of alternating hope and despair as they think of their little homes or wonder what is happening "over there."

Their own menfolk are playing their part in the battles that they hear but cannot see. Always they cherish the hope that they will see their husbands and fathers marching with the army of delivery, but sometimes comes the doubt that perhaps they are lying dead "over there," where the sun is setting blood red over a blood-red land.

Others are thinking not of the soldiers in the firing line, but of their less fortunate compatriots—their friends or relations among those 6,000,000 men, women, and children, not in the narrow strip of Belgium that is still their own, but in all the rest of the unhappy land which groans under the yoke of the invader. How fares it with the people in Brussels and in Bruges, in ruined Dinant, in fire-swept Termonde, under the blood-stained walls of Louvain?

Little of comfort is there in the news that occasionally steals across the guarded frontier. It is a monotonous story—monotonous, I mean, in that the "motif" never changes. The details may vary, but the main outline is always the same. Harsh tyranny and petty persecution is the text of all the tales. What you realise as the meaning of it all is an attempt to break the spirit of a people. In previous despatches I have told of the fines and punishments, the proclamations and restrictions, the unending stream of rules and regulations.

Another Prussian method of trying to shatter the morale of the people is the publication of false news. Some time ago I met a native who had just returned from "over there."

"Is it true," he asked me, "that the French have been terribly defeated in the Champagne?"

I told of the contrary, of how our gallant Allies had captured trench after trench from the enemy in that district. "What makes you think differently?" I asked.

"Well," he replied, "I have just come from Bruges. The walls are placarded with a bulletin stating that the French have been routed in the Champagne, that thousands were killed and wounded, and 5000 taken prisoners."

Compared with the "news" issued in Belgium the "German wireless" is a fount of truth and purity. The productions of the latter, however strong their merits as works of imagination, are always "touched up" by the master of fiction who drafts the bulletins that decorate the hoardings of Belgium. Here is an example, which appeared not so long ago on the walls of Tirlemont and surrounding villages:

"Our troops have secured a brilliant victory over the Russians. The Belgian army has been destroyed, and King Albert and Queen Elizabeth have been made prisoners."

Much of such nonsense is, no doubt, invented with the idea of encouraging the German soldiers passing through, or quartered in, the occupied zone. It may deceive them, but at any rate it has no effect on the Belgian readers.

At one time the people of Brussels used to stand in front of their would-be masters' placards and openly laugh at them. A terrible offence this, in the eyes of the proud Prussian. So promptly a notice appeared intimating that to "make fun" at anything German was an offence, and would be treated with appropriate severity. Simultaneously an army of spies was drafted into the capital to catch delinquents. The sprightly-witted Belgians were quite equal to the occasion. They didn't laugh, they didn't even smile; in fact, they didn't as much as condescend to read the German "news."

Another example of this policy of spirit-breaking is contained in a railway time-table issued by the German authorities. Here is set forth, among other fables, the announcement that among the lines reserved for the use of the military is that running from Audun-le-Roman to Reims!

"More bluff," says the philosophic citizen of Brussels, who knows quite well that the Germans have never got nearer to Reims than within big gun range of the cathedral.

But this is in Brussels, where it is still possible, despite threats of fearful pains and penalties, to read an English newspaper occasionally. Far different is it in the hundreds of "Places in Belgium." Antwerp, Brussels, and some other of the larger cities and towns have a limited postal service. But never a letter, or any other news, from the outside world reaches the scattered people of the countryside.

And this is only the least of their troubles. But for the work of the International Relief Commission thousands of them would long ago have starved to death. As it is, many only get enough to keep body and soul together; that is, I mean, living in isolated spots that can only be reached at long intervals.

MR. HUGHES.

HONOURED BY WELSH RESIDENTS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

A Welsh gathering was held last evening in St. David's Hall, Latrobe-street, to congratulate the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) on his accession to the Prime Ministership and to wish him bon voyage on his trip to England. Mr. Hughes, in expressing thanks, said that the Welsh people were fighting in the present war to ensure victory for Britain, but when the war was over they would fight in the British Parliament until they had secured the right to have their own religion in their own way. Speaking as an adherent of the Church of England, he had always been, and always would be, in favour of the disestablishment of the Church of England.

A BOY STOWAWAY.

WANTED TO FIGHT.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Speaking at a big recruiting meeting last night, Colonel Markwell said that when he was going across to the front last trip a little eleven-year-old stowaway came aboard the troopship at Fremantle. He had been training four or five months in Western Australia and was so anxious to go that he travelled 120 miles, and marched aboard. "My duty was to send him ashore," added the colonel, "but the little fellow was brought aboard again the next day rolled up in the blankets. I took him to Egypt, and the child cried bitterly because I would not allow him to go to the front. He is now safely back at home, and I had a letter from his mother recently, saying that the boy was quite well.

"That is an example for many," said Colonel Markwell. "That young chap wanted to fight for his country and his Empire. Surely there are a few here who could be induced to come forward, and to leave the sporting for a while. It will keep. Make up your minds to do something for your country. You are wanted, and wanted badly."

A GERMAN MOTHER.

"Vorwarts" vouches for the following story and publishes it without comment:—"The other day a woman travelling from Bremen to Oldenberg had a terrible experience. In the compartment into which she mounted two young girls and a man accompanying a woman were already seated. The woman began almost at once to count on her fingers, 'One, two, three,' repeating these words at short intervals. The two girls tittered and made remarks to one another about the extraordinary behaviour of the woman. Every time the woman counted her three fingers the girls, without thinking that probably there was something behind her strange conduct, renewed their giggling.

"The man who accompanied the woman, irritated at their silly laughter, turned to them with the remark, 'You will perhaps cease your stupid giggling when I tell you that this is my wife, and that she has lost three sons in battle. I am taking her to an asylum.'

"It was terribly quiet in the carriage."

BUKOVINA

ENORMOUS ENEMY LOSSES

SALONICA.

AUSTRO-GERMAN PLANS.

An unofficial Petrograd message says that the battle raging in Bukovina is the fiercest which has taken place in this region since the war began. The Czar has taken up his headquarters in the vicinity.

A Russian official report states that the enemy drove the Russians out of Czartorysk (south of the Pripet). The Russians counter-attacked, recaptured the town, and have since held it firmly.

Desperate enemy counter-attacks north-east of Czernovitz (Bukovina) were repulsed with enormous enemy losses. One thousand prisoners were taken by the Russians on the Middle Strypa.

General Sir Douglas Haig says the British artillery has considerably damaged enemy trenches at various points.

It is reported in Athens that Austria, Germany, and Bulgaria have completed plans for an immediate attack in the direction of Salonica.

GALLIPOLI.

SIR IAN HAMILTON.

DESPATCH CRITICISED.

ALLEGED CAUSE OF FAILURE.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

The "Daily Telegraph's" military correspondent, commenting on Sir Ian Hamilton's despatch on the Gallipoli campaign, says:—"Sir Ian Hamilton went to Suvla Bay, where he found Lieut.-General Stopford still on board. The latter was dissatisfied that the divisional generals had not acted with greater energy, but neither Lieut.-General Stopford nor Sir Ian Hamilton had issued positive orders, which Sir Ian Hamilton states were necessary, nor insisted on their execution. This confession is a remarkable instance of candour. It is clear the greatest faults were committed by those in highest authority. Sir Ian Hamilton ought to have proceeded to Suvla Bay with the first troops, and watched the proceedings until satisfied that his subordinate generals were acting according to the letter and spirit of his instructions."

"The despatch," the correspondent says, "throws heavy blame on Sir Ian Hamilton himself and subordinate generals, but it may well be questioned whether an operation of this delicate nature gave enough promise of success to justify the attempt. It is very lamentable that the leaders of the highest units and their executive staff failed, but it is not surprising, remembering the utter contempt with which all executive staff work, practical and theoretical, was regarded by the army chiefs before the war. It is to be hoped the future progress of the war will show vast improvement in the executive."

THE SUVLA OPERATIONS.

Lieutenant-General Stopford has demanded an inquiry into the Suvla Bay operations last August.

CRUISERS ACTIVE.

A Turkish communique says: Our aeroplane shot down two French and English aeroplanes. Our aerial squadron successfully bombed positions at Sedd-ul-Bahr, and the aerodrome at Imbros. Enemy cruisers continuously bombarded the Anatolian coast, the Narrows, and our batteries on January 6.

DARING ATTEMPT.

BY BRITISH STEAMER.

TO REACH HOME WATERS.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 9.

The British steamer Gitano (1179 tons), which had been in refuge at Norrkopina, (Sweden) since the outbreak of war, slipped out on New Year's Day, followed by Swedish torpedo destroyers. A German destroyer tried to capture the Gitano in Swedish waters, but the Swedish destroyers forced it to desist. The Gitano reached Malmo safely, and left again for Gothenburg. She must cross a small stretch of international water, where many German warships are lying in wait.

FRENCH TREASURY BILLS.

LONDON, Jan. 8.

The Bank of England is offering £10,000,000 worth of French Treasury bills for a year, at a discount of 5½, to replace others due on the 16th inst.

THE BALKANS.

ATTACK ON SALONICA.

ENEMY PREPARATIONS.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

Athens newspapers are gratified at the Allies' announcement of the release of the enemy Consuls (who were arrested by order of General Sarrail) and consider the incident closed.

It is reported in Athens that Austria, Germany, and Bulgaria have completed plans for an immediate attack in the direction of Salonica. There are conflicting reports as to whether the Turks will participate.

A Salonica reports says that two Taubes dropped bombs on the Allied encampments outside the town without doing serious damage. Both of the raiders were driven off, apparently damaged by shellfire.

FURIOUS FIGHTING.

A Montenegrin communique says:—The Austrians attacked Goduevo and Turiak. There are important enemy movements at Trebinje (15 miles east of the Adriatic), and Bilek (15 miles north of Trebinje.

Furious fighting has taken place in the district. The enemy's forces comprised 20 battalions, with many guns and machine guns. They suffered heavy losses. Our losses were considerable. We held the majority of the positions, except Godocha and Goduevo.

An Austrian communique says that General von Koevess has driven the Montenegrins from positions north of Berane, and that their advanced troops are within ten kilometres of Berane.

ARSENAL DAMAGED.

BY BRITISH SUBMARINE.

ATHENS, Jan. 8.

A British submarine from the Sea of Marmora entered the Golden Horn, and attacked and considerably damaged the arsenal. The workmen and the inhabitants of the quarter fled in a panic.

TO THE COLOURS.

COMPULSORY BILL.

DETAILS OF THE MEASURE.

LONDON, Jan. 8.

The Compulsion Bill has been published. It provides that unmarried men and widowers without children shall be deemed to have enlisted. A penalty of £50 is provided for any man failing to notify any change in the circumstances upon which he has been granted exemption, and six months' imprisonment for giving false evidence when applying for exemption.

The executives of the Railwaymen's Society, the transport workers, and miners' unions, under the recent amalgamation scheme, are considering steps for joint action against compulsion. It is anticipated the miners' conference will oppose compulsion by a large majority.

The Lord Mayor is making a stirring appeal for enlistment. He attends at the Mansion House daily, and personally welcomes recruits.

The "Daily Chronicle" says that Mr. Asquith is seeking to induce Mr. Arthur Henderson to withdraw his resignation as President of the Board of Education. He is also making a similar endeavour to induce Mr. William Bruce (Home Office Under-Secretary), and Mr. G. H. Roberts (one of the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury) to withdraw their resignations.

Lord Middleton, on Tuesday next, in the House of Lords, will ask Lord Kitchener, Secretary for War, the number of recruits in Britain and Ireland respectively, and the estimate of the single men who have not attested in Ireland.

TRADE UNION ATTITUDE.

After a week's strenuous excitement the country enjoys a week-end of comparative quiet.

Interest continues to be centred around the trade union attitude, but it is noteworthy that several of the leaders insist that the congress decision must not be regarded as a fair reflection of the trade union movement.

Mr. John Hodge, M.P., considers that it was a mistake to call a composite conference. It should have been purely a trade congress. He believes that it may result in the expulsion from the Independent Labour party of Fabians and other political elements. Anyhow, Mr. Hodge considers that the crisis has passed, and there will not be a general election.

Mr. Havelock Wilson (Seamen's representative) holds the same views, but Mr. J. H. Thomas, M.P., maintains an uncompromising attitude. He had a mixed reception at Cardiff, where the meeting was divided on lines similar to Thursday's conference. Mr. Thomas said he would support compulsion if wealth was conscribed equally with labour.

GERMAN VIEW.

German newspapers of all colours show that the country is deeply stirred by the British law of compulsion. Some recognise that this is a great change, and that England means business. Others hope for, and some prophesy, a revolution.

The "Cologne Gazette" anticipates that the wastage will be enormous, and considers that the demands of the army will paralyse commerce.

THE LUSITANIA.

GERMAN PROMISES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.

Germany has replied relative to the sinking of the Lusitania, agreeing to pay compensation for American lives lost, and contending that the destruction of the Lusitania was an act of reprisal against the British blockade.

The Note also gives assurances that Mediterranean commanders will not torpedo privately owned vessels without warning.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.

Count Bernstorff has communicated the Note to Mr. Lansing.

VISCOUNT FRENCH.

VISITS WANDSWORTH HOSPITAL.

Viscount French visited Wandsworth Hospital, and addressed the Australians. He said that France followed with keen admiration the magnificent landing and heroic deeds of the Imperial troops in the Dardanelles.

EASTERN FRONT.

BUKOVINA.

DESPERATE BATTLE.

"FURIOUS AVALANCHE OF SHELLS."

PETROGRAD, Jan. 9.

The battle which is raging in Bukovina is the fiercest which has taken place in this region since the war began. German prisoners declare that the cannonade is worse than the bombardment on the western front in September. Certainly Russia never before poured out such a furious avalanche of shells.

CZARTORYSK CAPTURED.

A Russian official report says:—We captured the town of Czartorysk, south of the Pripet (40 miles north-west of Rovno), and a height two versts westward of the town. The Austrians, using asphyxiating gases, attacked north-east of Czernovitz (in Bukovina, 87 miles south-east of Tarnopol), but were repulsed.

The enemy drove us out of Czartorysk. We counter-attacked, recaptured the town, and have held it firmly since.

Our troops on the Middle Stryps captured sections of the enemy's position, taking over 1000 prisoner.

Desperate enemy counter-attacks with large forces north-east of Czernovitz were all repulsed, with enormous enemy losses.

CZAR'S HEADQUARTERS.

Unofficial advices state that the Russian main attack on Czernovitz was preceded by a bombardment of 400 guns. For 50 hours shells were rained continuously. An infantry charge followed immediately.

The Czar has taken up his headquarters in the vicinity.

A message from Amsterdam says that an Austrian communique estimates that the Russians have lost 50,000 men during the new year's fighting on the Bessarabian frontier and along the Strypa.

It is reported from Lausanne (Switzerland) that Count Reventlow, writing in the "Tages Zeitung," says the Russian offensive in Bessarabia has been well prepared. The Russians have great reserves of men and artillery. If the offensive succeeds Greece and Roumania will join the Entente.

WAR FUNDS.

HELP FROM INDIA.

DELHI, Jan. 8.

The Punjab Aeroplane Fund now exceeds £35,000, and includes £5000 each from the Nawab of Bahawulpur and the Nawab Mallik Ata Mahamed Khan of Ala Bags. The Maharaja of Mysore has given six ambulance carts and ponies to the 26th Light Cavalry, of which he is honorary Colonel. The Raja of Gaghugarh has given £1000 to purchase two motor ambulances, and the shareholders of the Bombay Cotton Trades' Association £1500 for an aeroplane or an ambulance.

The St. John Ambulance Society recently received an urgent request for a general hospital for 3000 beds for the British and Indian troops in Mesopotamia, and the major portion of the material has already been collected. A special gift of two lakhs of rupees from Nepal Durbar and one lakh from the Prime Minister of Nepal was made to the Viceroy on New Year's Day as a donation towards the expenses of the war. Many efforts to assist in the manufacture of munitions continue, and throughout India the keen resolve to continue all efforts until the Allies' victory is assured daily grows stronger.

AMERICAN POLICY.

CAUSTIC CRITICISM.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

The London correspondent of the "Chicago Daily News," who is the doyen of the American journalists in England, in a striking attack on the American policy, says:—"Since the war American prestige abroad has sunk to the lowest depths it ever reached. Americans abroad are uncomfortable and apologetic. The picture of President Wilson screened in music-halls in London provokes hissing and booing."

"This low opinion in England," he continues, "is due to our failure to give expression of our outraged conscience and long-suffering in the face of repeated frightful crimes. We have lost our prestige in France, Italy, Russia, and the Balkans. The Germans hate us more than foes. Everywhere it is said we have a diseased itch for money—that we are namby-pamby, being too sordid and cowardly to fight."

PELF v. PATRIOTISM.

An ex-Senator writing to the "Times" from Washington says that America's neutrality delusion is fast being dispelled. On every hand there are expressions of regret and disappointment that America has not entered the war. It is certain that another German outrage against our peace dignity will be answered in a way that will create a stir at Potsdam. The limit of endurance has at last reached a breaking point.

President Wilson's challenge to the policy of blood and iron has recalled the nation from pelf-gathering to patriotism. Why await the coming of the invader 10 or 20 years hence, when the Prussian autocracy has recovered from the wasting consequences of the war? Perhaps then England and France may not bother with regard to the fate of America. They certainly are under no obligation if we do not participate in the present world contest of right against might.

MORE ABOUT PEACE.

ANOTHER GERMAN OFFER.

TOKIO, Jan. 7.

The Premier, Count Okuma, interviewed by the "Japan Advertiser" states that Germany was feeling the acute financial strain, and had proposed a separate peace with Russia and Japan who had immediately rejected the proposal.

THE PERSIA.

AMERICA'S ATTITUDE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.

It is unlikely that America will protest against the sinking of the P. and O. Company's steamer Persia unless she has better proof that the vessel was torpedoed.

ALLIES IN THE BALKANS.

The map shows the islands of Corfu, Cephalonia, and Chio, which the Allies have notified Greece of their intention of occupying; and it also shows Epirus, the stretch of territory on the mainland which is also to be occupied. The ports of Cattaro (where an Austrian naval base has been established), Durazzo, and Valona, in the Adriatic are also shown. The island of Mytilene, where the Allies have arrested a number of enemy consular agents, as was done recently at Salonica, lies 10 miles from the coast of Asia Minor, north of the Gulf of Smyrna.

WESTERN FRONT.

HEAVY ARTILLERY WORK.

ENEMY'S TRENCHES DAMAGED.

LONDON, Jan. 9.

Sir Douglas Haig reports:—We repelled an enemy bombing attack about Armentieres and the Lille railway. Our artillery has considerably damaged enemy trenches at various points.

A French communique says: Our artillery destructively bombarded the enemy positions on the plateau of Nouvrons, north-west of Soissons. Two German posts were destroyed. Our long-range fire threw an enemy column into confusion north of Etain, and caused a fire in a neighbouring village. Our batteries exploded three of the enemy's works north of Saint Mihiel.

Our artillery destroyed the Chatillon mills, eastward of Fontenoy, which the enemy had placed in a state of defence.

CONFID...T GUNNERS.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, writing in the "Daily Chronicle," says the British artillery is engaged in a daily battle along its entire line. The firing sometimes reaches the violence of a bombardment preceding an attack. Our losses lately have been small. Our gunners are confident that the enemy is suffering tenfold, and that their morale is shaken by the continual strife. The enemy replies chiefly by mining operations. Lately they fired five mines simultaneously near Hulluch. The explosion was terrific and nerve-racking, but the casualties were few. The enemy's attempt to occupy the craters formed was frustrated chiefly by the action of two bluejackets, who were on a visit to a trench. They seized a couple of machine guns and swept the ground wherever the Germans tried to advance.

The Germans occasionally bombard Nancy with 15-inch naval guns.

HAREFIELD HOSPITAL.

ITS RAPID GROWTH.

LONDON, Jan. 8.

Colonel Hayward, of Adelaide, is now commanding at Harefield. New wards are being completed weekly. Each contains 32 beds. They are excellently ventilated and heated. The hospital had originally 50 beds, but there will be an aggregate of 1000 at the end of the month. The kitchen arrangements are exceptionally complete and economical. A British army inspector expressed the opinion that the treatment of the Australians compares favourably with the treatment of the British. Since the reorganisation of the headquarters by Colonel Williams, of the Medical Staff, matters are working more smoothly.

The chief problem at Harefield is maintaining discipline. This is natural when it is considered that 80 per cent. of the patients are convalescent, and are only suffering from bad teeth, stiff joints, and minor troubles, leaving their general health excellent. The behaviour of the men on the whole is very good. An active committee provides entertainments in a well-equipped concert-room. Major Dennis has opened an electro-therapeutic department.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

REMARKABLE ANALYSIS.

LONDON, Jan. 8.

Mr. Chiozza Money, M.P., writing in the "Daily Mail," says the exports of British produce during the year amounted to £385,000,000, compared with the boom year, 1913, when they amounted to £525,000,000. He adds, in 1914 the exports, despite a loss of £54,000,000, were normal. The exports to the enemy were greater than in 1909. In the fifth month of the war the exports were £26,000,000; in 17th month they were £34,000,000.

Prices, he says, certainly have risen, but the increased export values balance the increased import values. It is remarkable to note that the personnel of the army and navy rose from one and a half million in December, 1914, to three millions in December, 1915. Yet, despite the withdrawal of one and a half million able-bodied men from trade and industry, the exports have risen 30 per cent. The explanation of this, he adds, will probably be found in the fact that in peace time many able-bodied men were engaged in non-productive work.

LAST QUARTER'S RETURNS.

LONDON, Jan. 8.

The British trade returns for the quarter ended December last show that the imports increased by £8,621,490, exports £7,668,591, and re-exports £1,831,355, as compared with the corresponding period in 1914.

ITALIAN CAMPAIGN.

ENEMY SURPRISED.

ROME, Jan. 8.

A communique says:—By a bold surprise we occupied San Giovanni, on the southern slopes of Monte Sperone.

ASIA MINOR.

GERMAN ACTIVITY.

RAPID RAILWAY BUILDING.

LONDON, Jan. 8

Mr. Jeffries, the "Daily Mail's" Athens correspondent, says the Bulgarian co-operation with Germans in Macedonia is less hearty. While the Turks reoccupied, ostensibly for strategical reasons, the ceded portions of the country around the Dede Agach-Adrianople railway, the Germans meanwhile were busy with steady through railway traffic between Constantinople and Berlin. They purchased the entire Adana cotton crop and half of the previous crop. They are working the great Arghana copper mine, near Diabekir, on the banks of the Tigris.

As two years would be required to tunnel the Taurus Range, at the Cilician Gates (the only pass across the range), near Bozanti, on the Baghdad railway, the Germans made parallel roads, employing the largest motor lorries. They travelled from Bozanti to Dorak in three hours. From there the line is now finished to Mamores, a distance of 100 miles. A light railway runs then to Bagtche.

Thousands of natives under engineers were withdrawn from the first line armies, and are energetically endeavouring to complete the line by the spring. The Dagtche-Radja section will be then continuous, and there will be communication between Aleppo and Constantinople, including the Cilician motor car link.

There is much uncertainty as to whether, in view of the danger of certain railway bridges being dynamited, and the prospect of a great offensive from Salonica, the Germans would risk sending to Asia the large forces necessary to give them victory there.

STRUCK A MINE.

ITALIAN STEAMER SINKS.

An Italian steamer struck a mine in the Adriatic and sank. Two hundred of the passengers and crew perished.

It is reported from Cettigne that the mined Italian steamer carried 425 Montenegrin recruits from America.

PEACE MISSION.

PARTY DISILLUSIONED.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 7.

The Fordites, with the Scandinavian delegates, have departed for The Hague, via Germany, under a special permit, but this does not allow them to hold meetings in Germany.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 8.

Members of the Ford peace party who have arrived in Holland narrate the severities encountered by them. Members were searched and bullied by officials, and were not allowed to carry printed matter out of Germany. They were compelled to leave all their documents and propaganda tracts in the hands of the authorities of the frontier town of Bentheim.

RUHLEBEN CAMP.

CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 8.

A party of British civilians which has been released from the Ruhleben concentration camp have reached Holland. They state that a marked change for the better has taken place in the conduct of the German soldiers towards the British. Many of the camp guards are now seeking to fraternise with the Britishers. It is believed that Germany's confidence in victory is now shaken, if not shattered altogether.

BRITISH CENSORSHIP.

AMERICAN NOTE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.

The United States has despatched a vigorous Note to Great Britain, protesting against British interference with American mails en route to neutral countries.

ANZACS ENTERTAINED.

CAPETOWN, Jan. 8.

The Mayor entertained 200 wounded soldiers from Anzac at luncheon. They were afterwards taken for motor trips round Table Mountain.

LATE WAR NEWS.

(Late War Cables will be found on Page 10.)

CAUCASUS.

TURKS ASSUME OFFENSIVE.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

A Russian communique says:—The Turks in the Caucasus assumed the offensive at Nakha (south-east of Tiflis) under cover of a fog, and reached our artificial defences, when our fire drove them back with heavy losses.

PERSIA.

ENEMY ATTACKS REPULSED.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 9.

A communique states: The enemy offensive from Aulatabad (south-east of Hamadan), was repelled beyond the Kendelian Pass.

ZEPPELIN DAMAGED.

TWO OF THE CREW KILLED.

LONDON, Jan. 9.

A Zeppelin flew over Namur. A gale which was raging compelled the airship to descend. In doing so she fouled some telegraph wires, and was badly damaged. Two of the crew were killed.

MITYLENE.

ENEMY CONSULS ARRESTED.

An Athens message says that the Allies have arrested enemy consuls and agents at Mitylene for the same reasons as at Salonica.

THE CANAL ZONE.

The "Neues Wiener" journal, published in Vienna, says a German professor named von Graeve has discovered great water sources east of Mount Sinai, and reports that the whole desert is fertilisable. He urges the despatch of engineers with adequate machinery. Meanwhile the Turkish armies are assured of an ample water supply.

CAPTURED STEAMERS.

GERMAN UNDERTAKING.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.

The German Note in connection with the W. P. Frye case, promises that Germany will not order persons aboard prizes to take to the boats, unless the weather and sea conditions are favourable, and land is near enough.

BRITISH SUBMARINE SUNK.

ON NETHERLANDS COAST.

LONDON, Jan. 8.

It is officially announced that a British submarine was sunk near the island of Texel (Holland). A Dutch cruiser rescued the crew.

The submarine signalled her distress to the Dutch cruiser, Noord Brabant, which took off the entire crew of 33 and landed them at Helder (Holland).

A Dutch official statement says the submarine was wrecked.

The crew of the submarine has been interned.

WAR NOTES.

RUSSIA'S OFFENSIVE.

The Russian offensive seems to be on a large scale; and, what is more, it seems to be meeting with success, for we now read that not only has Czernovitz, the Bukovina capital, or at all events a portion of it, fallen into Russian hands, but that the Russians have also established themselves firmly in Czartorysk. There has been much fighting of late in the neighbourhood of Czartorysk, which is situated on the river Styr, about midway between the junction of that river with the Pripet, to the north, and the Galician border to the south. We have also heard of renewed activity on the Riga-Dvinsk front, in the extreme north of the eastern line; and the statements as to the losses in Bessarabia are sufficient evidence of heavy fighting in the extreme south of the line. Thus it would appear that the whole of the enemy's armies on the eastern front are being engaged. It was stated the other day that the Austro-German forces engaged on this front, south of the Pripet region, were estimated at 1,500,000, but this is probably below the mark. We do not know exactly how many men Russia now has in the fighting line, but we do know that she is able to put far more men into the field than the enemy is. The only question is whether she can arm them all. According to a message from Bucharest there are 800,000 Russians in Bukovina. The Russian offensive would seem to be well timed, for it comes at a critical moment. The importance of it is well understood in Germany, and we hear Count Reventlow, a man of authority in his own country, stating that if the Russian offensive in Bessarabia succeeds Greece and Roumania will join the Entente. We have no doubt that this is the chief object of it. Count Reventlow adds that the offensive has been well prepared, and that the Russians have great reserves of men and artillery. That Russia now has plenty of guns at her disposal, whatever may be the case in regard to rifles, is illustrated by the fact that the main attack on Czernovitz was preceded by a bombardment from 400 guns, whilst Russia has a total of 3500 guns in the whole of Bukovino. Time has certainly been on the side of the Allies, and it will continue so. Desperate counter-attacks north-east of Czernovitz are reported to have been repulsed, with enormous enemy losses. The battle that is raging in this region is described as the fiercest that has taken place since the war began. The Russian successes along the Middle Strypa and at Czartorysk will add greatly to the enemy's discomfiture.

AUSTRO-GERMAN LOSSES.

According to an Austrian communique the Russians lost 50,000 men in the New Year's fighting on the Bessarabian frontier and along the Strypa River, whilst the Bucharest message gives the Austrian losses for the past week as 100,000, and Petrograd refers to them as enormous. The question is which side is the better able to stand these losses? And to that question there is only one answer. But instead of taking our figures from either of the belligerent sides let us take them from a neutral writer. We have seen no more convincing statement on the subject than that of Mr. Horace Green, the special correspondent of the New York "Evening Post." After about a year's absence Mr. Green has returned to Germany. In a letter dated October 5 he mentions the change in the German mind since he was last in the country—a change, he says, "resulting principally from the terrible losses suffered." He writes:—"The German losses for the week ended October 1 alone amounted to 61,955. In other words, more than 8850 German citizens have been killed, wounded, or taken prisoners each day during the last seven days of the war on the eastern front. As it takes fully a week to compile these lists when the reports from the front are received these figures can have no connection with the great battle of this week on the western front, where the new Anglo-French offensive has, it is said, cost the Germans three times as many losses as during any other week of the war. The lists for the seven days from the 23rd to the 30th of September were not above the average of the two last months. In each column there were 120 names. On September 30 there appeared 72 columns of names, giving a total of 8640 casualties; on September 29 60 columns, with 7200 names; on September 28 there were 9000 names; on the 27th 8625; on the 26th no lists were published; on the 25th there were 11,080 names; on the 24th 8810; and on the 23rd 8700."

THE GROWING STRAIN.

A cable in Friday's issue stated that Mr. Tennant, Under-Secretary for War, created a sensation in the House of Commons in announcing that the British casualties in the battle of Loos totalled 2378 officers and 57,288 men. General French, in his despatch, which was issued on November 1, deplored the heavy casualties incurred in this battle, but he added:—"In view of the great strength of the position, the stubborn defence of the enemy, and the powerful artillery by which he was supported, I do not think they were excessive." This was the great Anglo-French offensive referred to by Mr. Green, and for which the German lists of casualties were not then available. His statement enables us to estimate how heavy were the losses of the enemy. He mentions that the losses in that week were reported to be three times as many as in any other week of the war, and he gives 61,955 as the number of casualties for the week ended October 1 on the eastern front—a number, by the way, which we have reason to believe has been exceeded on other occasions. Thus the battle of Loos must have cost the Germans something like 180,000 casualties compared with less than 60,000 on the British side. To the British casualties, of course, we have to add the French; but as the French authorities have not permitted the publication of casualty lists we have no means of making a full comparison. Mr. Green further remarks:—"It is the Prussians especially who suffer the greatest losses. One report states that the Prussians alone have lost more than 2,000,000 men up to the present. The Prussian, Saxon, and Bavarian losses are always given separately. In certain cases some companies, even entire regiments, have been annihilated. Here is an example taken at hasard: The 3rd company of the 63rd regiment of the Prussian infantry reserve has lost 246 men out of 250, its effective war strength: 84 killed, 49 seriously wounded, and the others wounded slightly; not one man was made a prisoner." If the Prussian losses alone amount to over 2,000,000—and that was three months ago—the recent estimate of 3,500,000, as representing the total German losses, does not seem any too high. When we add the Austro-Hungarian losses to this total it will be seen what a terribly costly business this war has been for the enemy. It has to be remembered, of course, that a fairly large percentage of the wounded are able to return to the front later; but even so, the change of mind that has come over the German people, as referred to by the American correspondent, can be well understood. That change of mind is evidenced by the attempts that Germany is now making to secure peace—one more illustration of which is furnished by the Japanese Premier's statement that overtures have been made to Japan and Russia, only to be immediately rejected.

IN THE BALKANS.

At the same time as the heavy fighting in the east is taking place there is evidence of growing activity on the western front. According to Mr. Phillip Gibbs, the war correspondent, British artillery is engaged in daily battle along its entire line, and the firing sometimes reaches the violence of a bombardment preceding an attack. It is very likely that we shall see another big offensive on the western front, with the object of preventing the transfer of German troops to the eastern front. Meanwhile, the situation in the Balkans is developing. The enemy's campaign against Montenegro and Albania seems to be progressing, and important movements are proceeding on the Greek frontier. We are given to understand from Athens that the Austro-Germans and the Bulgarians have completed plans for an immediate advance towards Salonica, whilst there are conflicting reports as to whether the Turks will take part in it. We shall wait and see. It is a curious position. Though they are now fighting on the same side, the Bulgarians and Turks hate one another, and the question of the future of Thrace has already led to minor conflicts between them; and the Greeks have no love for either Bulgar or Turk. Is it possible that the Greek army will stand still and look on while these enemies enter their territory and plunder their villages? At all events the Allies' position at Salonica would appear to be well-nigh impregnable. The announcement that enemy consular agents at Mitylene have been arrested for reasons similar to those which led to the arrests in Salonica shows that the Allies are profiting by past experience. The fewer spies, the better for them. But with all these movements going on Germany still seems to be able to give thought to the roads that lead on the one hand to Baghdad, and on the other to Egypt. The account sent by the "Daily Mail's" Athens correspondent of what the Germans are doing in this connection is full of interest, as showing the cleverness and resourcefulness of the enemy. It may be that Germany is about to create another great diversion. But one imagines that her hands are too full; and the statement that the British compulsion law has deeply stirred the German people may be taken as showing that they are beginning to realise how hopeless is their cause. A revolution in their own country would seem to be more likely than the revolution they hope for in Britain.

MAN'S DEATH.

PUBLICAN COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

BRISBANE, Sunday.

In the City Police Court on Saturday the hearing was continued of the case in which Albert Henry Biggs, licensed victualler, was charged with having unlawfully killed Denis Kelly. The alleged incident occurred in the Exchange Hotel, Brisbane, on December 29 last.

Samuel Williams said there was no altercation. Kelly seemed to stagger, and Biggs grabbed at him, but missed, and deceased fell. Defendant did not hit Kelly at all.

Defendant, giving evidence on his own behalf, said there was no dispute at any time about change. Witness did not threaten to strike Kelly. After drinking his beer Kelly seemed to stagger, and defendant tried to grab him with his open right hand. He missed, and Kelly fell to the floor. There was no truth in the statement that he struck deceased a violent blow.

Defendant was committed for trial, bail being allowed, self in £200 and one surety of £200.

FIRE AT BENDIGO.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

A destructive fire occurred in Williamson-street, Bendigo, early on Saturday morning, in the premises of E. Rawlings, importer of coachbuilders' requisites, and A. Chalmers, plumber. The total damage is estimated at £1500. Rawlings' stock, valued at £1000, was insured at £600, and Chalmers' (uninsured) at £150.

STRIKES.

STATE BRICKWORKS IDLE.

A DISMISSED EMPLOYEE.

Owing to the dismissal of an employee at the State brickworks at Homebush Bay, and the refusal of the manager, Mr. S. E. Hutton, to reinstate him when asked to do so by the other employees, the works are now idle, the whole of the men having gone on strike.

According to the men, a dogman who was employed loading bricks had been ill for four days, and when he returned to work he was informed by the manager that he was no longer required. The whole of the men, with the exception of the kiln burners, ceased work and held a meeting, when it was decided to submit the man's case to Mr. Holme, Under-Secretary for Labour and Industry, who was asked to arrange a conference. This, however, was abortive.

In the statement submitted to Mr. Holme, the union claimed that the reason given by Mr. Hutton for the dogman's dismissal was that a new crane had been erected at a cost of £900, and that economy was necessary, but the men say that on the same day that his services were dispensed with three new hands were taken on, and one of them was given his job. The men contended that the manager was lacking in tact, and that there had been more industrial unrest at the works than had occurred at the combined yards in the metropolitan area. They also alleged that systematic victimisation had taken place in the present case, and mentioned the fact that a strike occurred at the works in March last as a protest against the dismissal of three men. It was further claimed that owing to the enforcement of "task" labour, the men earned less, and the conditions were worse than at private works.

Another meeting of the men was held at Homebush on Friday, attended by the executive of the Brickmakers and Clayworkers' Union, of which the men are members, when the secretary announced that Mr. Hutton, in a letter to him, had stated that he would no longer tolerate the trouble at the works, and gave notice that if the men did not return to work unconditionally this morning it was his intention to close down the whole of the works for an indefinite period. Mr. Hutton added that the step would be taken in the interest of a State industry which had unquestionably been a success. The men, however, unanimously carried a motion not to resume work until the dogman was reinstated. The action of the men was supported by the burners, and they left the kilns. During previous troubles at the works the burners had remained on duty, under instructions by the union officials, but the fires will now not be attended to. If the strike be prolonged sufficiently to allow them to go right out it will take a considerable time to get the kilns to the requisite heat again.

Thomas Reynolds, the man who was dismissed, said that as far as he knew there was no reason to find fault with the manner in which he had carried out his duties. On the day that he went off ill he told the works foreman of his condition. He considered that there was no justification for his dismissal.

STATEMENT BY THE GENERAL MANAGER.

A statement by the general manager of the works was forwarded to the Premier's Department on Saturday. It says:—

"On Monday last, after work a stop meeting was, I am given to understand, held by the employees at the State Brickworks, Homebush Bay," says the manager. "When the whistle was blown as usual on Tuesday morning no men turned up to work, although they had arrived by train as usual. At 9.30 a.m. a deputation of the men, together with Mr. Ives, secretary of the Brickmakers and Clayworkers' Union, waited on me, and desired to know why a man had been dismissed. I explained that a new crane, with slewing gear, had been erected on the wharf where the man was usually employed, thereby doing away with his services, and as none of the leading hands required him I told him he was no longer required. The deputation then retired to report to the men, and returned at 11.40 a.m., advising that the reply was unsatisfactory, and that I ought to find work for him somewhere, and that if he was not reinstated they would strike.

"I refused to accede to their request; whereupon they again retired to report to the men's meeting. At 11.30 a.m. they again returned, without Mr. Ives, their secretary, and stated that all the men, with the exception of the burners, had been called out, and at the same time gave me 24 hours' notice of their intention to call out the burners. This was not done at the time, and I later gave notice to the union that if the men did not start when the whistle blew on Monday I would be forced to lay off the burners and close down the works indefinitely. The burners have, however, since been called out, and the works are practically at a standstill. Those are the facts which led up to the stoppage at the works.

"I have also notified the union that I am prepared to go on with the work unconditionally on Monday morning. Trucks will be there, and everything ready as usual. No particular damage will be done up to that juncture other than loss of time.

"Although we have a few wild, irresponsible men working at these works, I have not yet given up hope that on calmer reflection the men will start work on Monday next."

GARDEN ISLAND PAINTERS.

The painters who struck work at the Government works at Garden Island on Wednesday last as a protest against members of the Federated Ship Painters and Dockers' Union being allowed to do work on a transport, which they claimed should be carried out by them, are still idle. Efforts have been made by the men to effect a settlement, but they failed. They say they will not turn to until the work they claim is given to them.

Mr. R. H. Adams, secretary of the Amalgamated Federated House and Ship Painters' Association, to which the men who ceased work belong, stated on Saturday that the executive of that body had not been officially advised of the trouble, but with the view of ending it a special meeting of members of the association has been called for this evening. He said that the men, who claim that as 200 members of the association are at present out of employment they should be given the work in preference to members of the Dockers' Union, are of the opinion that the whole of the members of the association employed at the dockyards should be called out so as to bring the matter to a head, but he is hopeful that no such step will be taken.

A meeting of the Demarcation Board has been convened for to-morrow.

COOPERS CEASE WORK.

About 80 coopers employed at the Colonial Sugar Refining Company, Lever Brothers, the Vacuum Oil Company, John Fell and Co., Kitchen and Sons, and Mauri Brothers and Thomson, ceased work on Friday owing to the employers not acceding to the men's claims for payment for holidays. The men contended that the agreement under which they worked inferred that such payments should be made.

THE MINERS.

DELEGATE BOARD DECISION.

BALLOT TO BE TAKEN.

Widespread interest was manifested in the deliberations of the Illawarra miners' delegate meeting at Wollongong on Saturday, as it was generally anticipated that a settlement would be reached. The meeting, which was representative of all the lodges throughout the district, lasted practically all day, and from opinions expressed by miners the deliberations should be fruitful of much good.

The general secretary reported on his visit to Newcastle, and the resolution decided on by the northern delegate board was read. A lete-gram was also received from the Registrar of the Federal Court to the effect that Mr. Justice Higgins stated it was impossible for the Court to enter upon arbitration at all with regard to hours as the men were out on strike.

The following resolutions were carried:—

"That a ballot of members of the Illawarra Colliery Employees' Association be taken on Wednesday, the question to be submitted being—'Are you in favour of resuming work on the old conditions, leaving the eight hours bank to bank question to all members of the Australasian Coal and Shale Employees' Federation employed in or about coal and shale mines to be determined by the Federal Arbitration Court.' "

This was carried unanimously.

Further recommendations from the executive officers to be adopted were:—"That the constitution of the Australasian Coal and Shale Employees' Federation be so amended as to provide that a representative conference be held annually for the purpose of drawing up a log and deciding the policy for the whole of the Federation, the first conference to be held as early as practicable, representation to be made on the following lines: One representative for every 500 members in each district, such representation to be appointed by ballot of the whole of the members of each district annually. To ensure a proper representation of the various classes of labour, one-third of the representatives to be appointed for all off-hand labour, and two-thirds for miners, the council of the Federation to be empowered to call the conference together as often as deemed necessary."

The Illawarra miners' general secretary (Mr. A. C. Willis) stated that, in view of the hostility exhibited at the aggregate meeting at Bulli on Wednesday, the executive officers felt it was imperative that the question at issue should be decided by a ballot. Numerous complaints had been made by members that the constitution of the Federation was not up to date. Although the constitution had been before the lodges for more than six months, no lodge had attempted to move amendments on the lines suggested, hence the executive officers felt compelled to make the recommendations referred to. "If the members are not prepared to abide by a constitution which they had every opportunity of making or amending," said Mr. Willis, "then the only thing left for me is to tender my resignation as secretary of the Federation."

Business people in Wollongong, Bulli, and Woonona stated that, although the usual crowds of miners were in town, there was an appreciable falling off in the takings for a Saturday night.

The result of the ballot will not be available till the end of the week. If it is carried it is anticipated that the owners will place no difficulties in the way of allowing a resumption of work on Monday week, in view of the war, and the fact that the executive officers have taken a firm attitude to bring about a resumption of operations in a constitutional manner.

LUMPERS' STRIKE.

REPROOF BY THE MINISTER.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The lumpers of Williamstown, engaged in loading wheat, struck again on Saturday, on this occasion their demand being for increased overtime pay. The Minister for Agriculture (Mr. Hagelthorn) expressed surprise yesterday at the action of the Williamstown branch of the Waterside Workers' Federation. He said their refusal to work on Wednesday and Thursday, as well as on Saturday afternoon, had resulted in a congestion of loaded trucks at Williamstown, and by Monday or Tuesday there would be at Williamstown 4000 loaded trucks which could not be unloaded. The refusal to work, he continued, had occasioned him to direct the railway commissioners not to have any more trucks loaded in the country until further notice, so that the action of the strikers had effectively stopped the railway wheels from going around, as far as wheat traffic was concerned.

MINING TROUBLE.

AFTERNOON SHIFT QUESTION.

BROKEN HILL, Sunday.

Decided steps were taken yesterday in connection with the agitation of the underground men for a 44-hours' week, and once again Broken Hill is immersed in a labour dispute. After various meetings the underground men—or a section of them—determined to continue the move for the abolition of the Saturday afternoon shift, despite the advice of Mr. Justice Higgins and the Industrial Registrar and the neutral attitude of the A.M.A. as a body. The Enginedrivers and Firemen's Association met during the week and decided that its members should work on Saturday afternoon as usual, but, in face of this, the underground men have reiterated their decision not to work, and decided that the mines should be picketed that afternoon.

About 2.30 p.m. a number of men gathered outside the Trades Hall and appointed pickets, who marched to the Proprietary, South, Blocks, and Central mines—the only four where any productive operations were contemplated. The North has not yet restarted since the holidays. The pickets did not interfere with any of the surface employees or with the shift bosses or staff men, but they succeeded in inducing a few men who were going underground to go home. On the Central mine work underground was confined to getting things in readiness for the resumption of work on Monday, and 15 men out of a possible 22 braved the pickets.

Neither the managers nor the union leaders would say anything yesterday.

FIREWOOD WORKERS.

KALGOORLIE, Sunday.

There was practically no change in connection with the firewood workers' trouble on Saturday. The Acting Premier (Mr. Collier) said he had forwarded to the Chamber of Mines certain proposals with a view to enabling operations on mines to be continued, but at present he could not disclose the nature of the proposals. It is probable that a special meeting of the chamber will be held on Monday to consider the Acting Premier's communication.

In the afternoon Mr. Collier had a long conversation with Mr. W. N. Hedges, manager of the Kurrawang Wood Line Company, but nothing in the nature of a settlement was arrived at.

The Acting Premier will remain in Kalgoorlie for the purpose of continuing negotiations. The representatives of the wood-cutters spent most of the day in conference, but so far they have not put forward any new proposals. Mr. Hedges stated that as far as the companies were concerned the situation was unchanged.

FIRES.

DAMAGE AT WOOLLEN MILLS.

A fire, supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, occurred at Messrs. S. Vicars and Co.'s woollen mills, Victoria-road, Marrickville, early on Saturday morning. A large storeroom containing a considerable quantity of wool was burnt out, nearly £2000 worth of damage being done.

The storeroom was insured for £150, and the stock for £2000.

Several other fires occurred in the city and suburbs during the week end.

About 5.20 p.m. on Saturday a smoke-house at the rear of the butcher's shop and dwelling of Mr. C. D. Edmonson, in Railway-parade, Kogarah, was found to be on fire. The Kogarah fire brigade confined the outbreak to the smoke-house, which was damaged by heat, fire and smoke.

An unoccupied one-storied house in Canterbury-road, Belmore, owned by Messrs. Anthony Hordern and Sons, Ltd., was burnt out about quarter-past 9 o'clock Saturday night.

Fire and heat slightly damaged an unoccupied cottage in Surfers' Parade, Freshwater, about 10 o'clock on Saturday night.

BADGES FOR THE REJECTED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In this morning's "Herald" I noticed that the Minister for Defence has under consideration the matter of issuing badges for rejected recruits. It is high time that some definite step was taken in this connection. I am a member of the Commonwealth military forces, and shortly after the declaration of hostilities volunteered for active service, and spent nine months in camp and on leave. During the early part of last year I had the misfortune to contract an illness, which has left me medically unfit for active service, and even home defence. Being an officer, a number of people (not cognisant of the circumstances) look upon me as a flagrant case of "cold feet." Men who have reached Egypt and have been returned as medically unfit have, I believe, the privilege to wear the "R.S.A." badge. Why should such cases as mine not receive some distinguishing mark whereby it will be made clear that our services have been offered. I am, etc.,

RECRUITING.

IMPROVEMENT IN SYDNEY.

2372 MEN FOR THE WEEK.

Whatever the cause, whether the shadow of conscription or the completion of garnering a record harvest, thus freeing men on the land, the fact remains that recruiting in Sydney has largely increased. It is curious, too, that recruiting now, as in its palmiest days, is always brisker at the commencement than at the end of the week, but even with this falling off, if one may so describe the excellent results achieved, there is reason for gratification.

The number of men accepted in Sydney last week was as follows:—

Monday	456
Tuesday	435
Wednesday	390
Thursday	362
Friday	304
Saturday	265
Sunday	160
Total	2,372

There were again busy scenes at the Barracks and Town Hall on Saturday, and at the Barracks on Sunday, and on Saturday at the former enrolling office a number of miners volunteered their services, in view of the strike that is now in progress in the southern coalfields. "I'm a good enough unionist," said one, "but there is a broader unionism than Trades Hall unionism at the present time, and that is Empire unionism. We've got to get every ton of coal to keep the ships going, and if some of us are going to quibble over trifles, I'm going to get out. Fancy men having the nerve to strike over an extra hour's work. Suppose our boys at Gallipoli or in Flanders struck just because sometimes they had to fight the clock round without overtime! This sort of unionism which is giving Germany a hand is no good to me, and I'll do my bit in khaki in the future." He was not alone in these sentiments, as several of his mates expressed their disgust at such tactics being adopted in the Empire's hour of need.

Once again, too, nearly all trades were represented, but though it has been held by many a man in the street off to a race meeting or the Stadium that now the harvest is assured, the country men are coming in to enlist, that is not the case. The majority of recruits still come from the city, or from the towns, as the following list of trades represented will demonstrate:—Firemen, Salvation Army officer, telegraph operator, surveyor's labourer, many clerks, a reporter, rubber worker, newsagent, porters, the ubiquitous commercial traveller, more than one carpenter, a boot finisher, and a chairmaker, a bricklayer, tailor, baker, one or two farmers, a bookmaker's clerk, and a bullock-driver. When the latter was asked what had induced him to enrol he replied with a grin that he might be able to give officers some tips in the proper value of the Australian language as an incentive to hard work.

The bookmaker's clerk was asked by the officer who supervises the enrolling if he proposed to open a book in the trenches. "Oh, yes," he replied, "if there's anything to lay against it." "Well, what are the odds about our getting the 50,000?" said the officer. "Fifty to one on," came the quick response, and the bookmaker's clerk was sent along to make one of the 50,000.

For the benefit of recruits the military authorities wish it clearly understood that recruits after they have been accepted by the enrolling officer and passed by the doctor will be granted leave of absence of from one to three weeks. On the date their leave expires they must parade at Victoria Barracks at 10.45 a.m. sharp, prepared to go into camp. No further notice will be given, and any men late on parade will not be sent on to camp that day.

COUNTRY FIGURES.

The following figures of country enlistments have been supplied to the Premier by the military authorities:—

	Mon.	Tues.	Wed.	Thurs.	Fri.	Total
Goulburn	11	6	16	7	3	43
Armidale	42	37	23	7	6	115

Grand total						655

BULLI, Sunday.

About 20 men, principally coalminers of the locality, have enlisted through the police agency since the strike commenced.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Seventy-eight men offered their services at the police station, of whom 42 were accepted. At the recruiting depot 33 others passed all tests. For the week ended yesterday, 268 men volunteered in Newcastle, 167 being accepted and 101 rejected.

ADELAIDE, Sunday.

On Saturday 109 men volunteered for active service, and 64 were accepted. During the week 922 men offered themselves, and 667 passed the doctors as being fit, bringing the total enlistments for South Australia to date up to 17,514.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

Saturday's figures for recruiting in Victoria were 163 accepted. During the week ended Saturday 1070 men were accepted for service throughout Victoria.

PERTH, Sunday.

Recruiting figures for the past week show a big advance in the recent enlistments, 407 volunteers being accepted and 223 rejected.

OFFER FROM TONGA.

The Premier has forwarded to the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth the following letter, which he has received from Mr. G. Letui, of the steamer Atua, in which he offers himself and three of his countrymen from Tonga for enlistment in the Expeditionary Forces:—"Knowing that you are interested to a certain extent in my country, that of Tonga," writes Mr. Letui, "may I trespass upon your kindness so far as to know whether it is possible for my three countrymen and myself, on board the undermentioned vessel, to serve King and country, that in the past has protected us."

BATHURST CAMP.

BATHURST, Sunday.

The establishment of a military camp at Bathurst, under the decentralisation scheme, is being hastened. Forty men have already arrived from Lithgow to assist in the preliminary work on the showground. The remainder of the Lithgow soldiers will come by road, converting the occasion into a recruiting effort. Reinforcements will be secured from other centres to bring the strength of the camp up to about 1200. Addressing a public gathering here, Captain Eade, who is at present officer-in-charge, appealed to the people not to display hospitality to the soldiers by buying them drink. The public would be doing a much wiser thing by presenting them with boxing gloves and other sporting paraphernalia.

IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH, Sunday.

On Saturday 70 men volunteered for the Expeditionary Force in the city, and 53 were passed, and 17 rejected by doctors.

SOLDIERS' LIBRARY.

The first consignment of books and magazines collected by the staff of the Sydney municipal library for the soldiers' library at Liverpool has been forwarded to the camp. The books were despatched ready for the shelves, having been repaired, labelled, and catalogued by the library staff. A total of 860 books and 600 magazines contained in 16 cases were forwarded, the carting and despatch of the cases having been done free of charge by Messrs. Rudders, Ltd. Mr. Bertie, the librarian, has reported to the town clerk that the staff of the Sydney municipal library has in hand 200 books and has been promised a further 300 books. The staff will be pleased if the public will continue donations so that fresh supplies of books and magazines may be sent periodically to the camp.

Lieutenant H. P. Waters, who has enlisted for service with the Australian Expeditionary Forces, was presented by the employees of W. T. Waters and Co., Ltd., on Saturday with a pair of field glasses, wristlet watch, suitably inscribed, and kit bag, as a token of their esteem and appreciation of his action.

Warrant-officer Siggers died recently at No. 2 Auxiliary Military Hospital, Blackheath. The hospital is being used as a home for the care of returned wounded and convalescent soldiers. Captain J. T. Paton is the officer commanding, and the late Mr. Siggers was warrant-officer.

Private Thomas Anderson was entertained by his old comrades and friends at Mr. Nicholl's residence, Causie, 116 Ruthven-street, Waverley, on Saturday. About 80 guests were present. Mr. A. Nicholls occupied the chair. Mr. C. Shailer, on behalf of the city electric light staff, presented Private Anderson with a wristlet watch.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"E. C." (Paddington).—The Commonwealth of Australia did not declare war on Germany. Australia became involved in the war as a British dependency as soon as Great Britain declared war on Germany.

"E. J. M. M." (Redfern).—(1) 5/ a day; (2) she will draw 4/ a day of his pay; (3) on embarkation the private's rate of pay is increased to 6/ a day, 1/ of which is held by the Government until he receives his discharge or is killed. This is what is meant by deferred pay, and is handed over in a lump sum to the man when he gets his discharge, or to his widow in the event of his death. (4) No; it is paid fortnightly by the Defence Department through the nearest post-office. (5) 1/ a day.

"J. F." (Bondi).—Call and see the Naval Commandant, Captain Brownlow, at the Naval Office, Circular Quay, taking proof of what you say with you.

"A. S."—Apply to any tailor in the city if you have the right to wear them. Men must not wear uniforms they are not entitled to. A man was fined £20 for this offence last Friday.

"J. C." (Goulburn).—(1) Once he is sworn in he is a soldier and must obey every order. If he does not obey he is liable to be court-martialled. If he fails to report in camp he will be posted as a deserter and treated as such when arrested. (2) Pay starts from the day the soldier enters camp. (3) No.

"Rejected Tom" (North Sydney).—If you cannot see out of the left eye you may find some difficulty. The modification of the eyesight test is now under consideration by the authorities in Melbourne, and an announcement may shortly be looked for.

WHEAT SACKS.

SERIOUS SHORTAGE.

WAGGA, Sunday.

Scarcity of wheat sacks is causing much anxiety in the Wagga district. Farmers advices, received from Sydney and Melbourne, show that orders for bags have been pouring into the wholesale houses since the middle of December. Previous to that, and for a period extending from the last week in November, there was a decided slump in the business. Farmers generally believed that the dry month of November would bring the crop averages down considerably, and consequently they shrank from placing further orders, which, in the aggregate, for the Wagga district, up to that time, far exceeded the wheat bag business of former years. The position to-day is that the farmer finds his crops giving higher yields than was expected, and he has more wheat than bags to fill. Scores of crops in the Wagga district are averaging 10 bags to the acre, and it is generally believed that in the aggregate the average will be well over seven, if not eight, bags. Many farmers are hunting everywhere for bags of any description, and old and second-hand bags are being snapped up readily at unheard-of prices. New imported bags, which at the end of November, were quoted, wholesale, at 8/1½ to 8/6, are now up to 10/ to 10/3, and appear to be soaring higher. So serious is the present outlook that in some quarters the belief is held that unless a big supply of bags comes forward within two or three weeks at the outside, some of the farmers will be compelled to dump their wheat out of the harvesters on to the ground.

CASUALTIES.

ACCIDENT IN BATHS.

At the Lavender Bay baths yesterday afternoon, Leslie Crowley, 23, a breadcarter, living in Orchard-street, Chatswood, dived from a platform into two feet of water and struck his head on the bottom. The Civil Ambulance conveyed him to the Royal North Shore Hospital, where he was admitted suffering from injury to the spine and shock.

MAN KILLED.

A fatal train accident occurred on the Bankstown line on Saturday morning, as a result of which Raymond Jones, single, a labourer, lately living at 68 William-street, Paddington, died from injuries. Deceased, who was employed in the signalling branch of the Railway Department, was working on the railway line near the Terrace-road railway bridge about 8.10 a.m., when, moving aside to get clear of a goods train that was passing, he was struck on the head by the engine of a passenger train coming from Bankstown. He was taken to Marrickville Hospital, where he died.

JOCKEY INJURED.

When Padova fell in the Maiden Handicap at Rosebery Park on Saturday afternoon, his rider, William Walker, 17 years of age, living in Barker-street, Kensington, was thrown. The Civil Ambulance conveyed him to St. Vincent's Hospital, where he was admitted in a serious condition, suffering from concussion.

DEATH FROM BULLET WOUND.

Following the report of a revolver, Reginald Webb, 51 years of age, was found lying on the back verandah of his late residence at Como on Saturday afternoon, with a bullet wound in his temple. A revolver was lying beside him. He was taken to Kogarah Hospital, where he died early yesterday morning.

BODY FOUND IN HARBOUR.

About noon yesterday the body of a man was discovered by Constable Day, of the Water Police, floating near the ballast wharf at Dawes Point. It appeared to have been in the water about three or four days.

The body is that of a man about 35 years of age.

A second-class workman's railway ticket, Granville to Bay-road, via Milson's Point, numbered 689, was found in the pocket of the coat.

SOLDIER KILLED.

An open verdict was recorded in connection with the death of Henry Augustus McShane, a soldier whose body was found on the railway line at Casula, near Liverpool, on December 28, at an inquiry held by the Liverpool coroner.

THE 6TH AND 7TH LIGHT HORSE COMFORTS FUND.

GIFTS GREATLY APPRECIATED.

A meeting of those interested in the 6th and 7th Light Horse Comforts Fund was held at the Town Hall on Thursday last, when a report on the work done in connection with the fund was placed before those present. Mrs. Arthur Allen presided.

Mr. Layton explained what had been carried out by Mrs. Arnott's branch at Strathfield, and Mr. Reginald J. Black, M.L.C., spoke of the work at Chatswood. The following articles have been sent from the head depot at Edgecliff since July last:—1355 shirts, 947 Balaclava caps, 760 mufflers, 1530 pairs of socks, 1618 handkerchiefs, 238 mittens, 875 washers, 270 fly-veils, 49 waistcoats, 127 rugs, large quantities of tobacco, tinned milk and foods, sweets, chocolate, toothbrushes, powder and soap, disinfectant, and sandbags. At Christmas time every man had a present of a pipe and tobacco, chocolate, notepaper, and pencil. In addition, numerous plum puddings and cakes were forwarded, as well as 250 cases of private parcels.

Monthly subscriptions were asked for, and it was pointed out that as at present most of the financial assistance came from those connected with the 7th Regiment, it was hoped that the friends of the 6th Regiment would give more support in future. The winners of the sock competition were announced, the first prize being won by Mrs. W. Burns, of Homebush, and the second prize by Mrs. A. B. Cox of Edgecliff. The latter prize has been returned to the fund as a donation.

The following letters from Colonel G. Macarthur Onslow and Colonel Cox, announcing the safe arrival of the first two consignments, were read:—

Anzac, 10/11/'15.

Dear Miss Holdship.—I am writing to thank you on behalf of the 7th Light Horse Regiments for the two bales of goods sent on July 24, and the five bales sent on August 26. The goods arrived yesterday in good order, and we were all most thankful to get them; and it is needless for me to say they were thoroughly appreciated by the n.c.o.s and men. I shall be much obliged if you will convey my thanks to all those who did the work.

The parcels, with the exception of those for the men who are away sick and the one for G. Kendall, have been given to the addressees. Kendall died at Alexandria on August 18. I have instructed the quartermaster to open this, and distribute the contents; and the parcels for the sick and wounded will be kept until their return, or if we are notified of their addresses, I will have them forwarded without delay.

I am sure you will be pleased to hear that the men are doing well, and all are in excellent spirits. With the best wishes to you and the committee of the 7th L. H. Comforts Fund for Christmas and the New Year, I am, yours sincerely, G. M. MACARTHUR ONSLOW.

Dardanelles, 11/11/'15.

Dear Miss Holdship.—Very many thanks to you and your friends, and the friends of this regiment, for the very fine parcels, which were received in excellent condition. They were distributed yesterday, the day we received them, and everyone seemed delighted. It is wonderful the effect it has on men. They seem to brighten up, and talk of it for days. We have been here for nearly six months now, and any change is much appreciated. Again thanking you, yours sincerely, C. P. COX.

ROUTE MARCHES.

THE WALLABIES.

NOT COMING TO SYDNEY.

NEW CAMP AT WEST MAITLAND.

It is officially announced that the "Wallabies" are not coming to Sydney.

By the order of the State Commandant these recruits are to form the nucleus of a new military camp at West Maitland. Under the new recruiting scheme the State is being divided into 12 military areas, with a camp in each. Colonel Ramaciotti has decided that no more country recruits are to be brought into the city.

The "Wallabies" arrived in Newcastle on Saturday, 180 strong. They started from Narrabri on December 8, with 38 men. The recruiting organisation had planned an itinerary through Gosford, Hornsby, and North Sydney suburbs to the city. This part of the route march has been abandoned.

A representative of the State Recruiting Committee visited Newcastle on Saturday night, and communicated Colonel Ramaciotti's decision to the officers and secretary of the march. Arrangements were made with Colonel Luscombe, A.A.G., and Major Stark, Camp Commandant, Newcastle, for the men to go into camp at West Maitland. Meantime they are attached to the Broadmeadows camp, Newcastle. It is expected that they will leave by train for the new camp on Wednesday. The "Wallabies" spent a night at the camp while on their way to Newcastle.

Yesterday morning the men were paraded in the Drill Hall, Newcastle, by Lieutenant Moore, the officer commanding. Captain Cameron (Narrabri) announced the decision of the military authorities.

Although taken by surprise the men, it is stated, applauded the announcement. The officers, we are informed, expressed themselves as being pleased with the new development.

Judging by what has taken place in connection with the "Wallabies" there will be no more finishing of route marches in Sydney. The men now "on the road," or who are about to start, will be taken into the camp of the military area to which they belong.

RECEPTION AT NEWCASTLE.

RECRUITING MEETINGS.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

Sun-browned, hardy, and resolute, the "Wallabies," in their blue dungarees, soft felt hats, and heavy military boots, marched into Newcastle yesterday afternoon amidst scenes of great enthusiasm. They had covered over 300 miles in their great north-western recruiting march, but looked none the worse for their experiences. There were men in the ranks from out near the Queensland border, where the railway is never seen; from Goodooga, Angledool, Lightning Ridge, and from Walgett and Collarenebri. Leaving Narrabri on December 6, 38 strong, they entered Newcastle yesterday with 173 men.

It was estimated by the "Wallabies" that up to Friday last they had been the means of bringing 492 men to the colours, and certainly most of that number had volunteered at the various depots where the "Wallabies" had called. The recruiting meeting held last night was a record for Newcastle, and the response that followed was most satisfactory.

The men reached Newcastle at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, carrying the banner with the illustration of a wallaby, and the words, "North-west Route March," "Wallabies." They were welcomed by Alderman Kilgour (Mayor of Newcastle), who said that the citizens had been looking forward to the arrival of the "Wallabies" from the time the men had left Narrabri that they might show their appreciation for the great self-sacrifice they were making in the Empire's cause.

The Chief Secretary, Mr. George Black, who is also member for the Namoi, addressing the "Wallabies," said that when they came to face the enemy he felt sure they would prove themselves worthy of the land that gave them birth. Their motto must be to go, to conquer, and return victorious. The Chief Secretary then called for cheers for the "Wallabies," which were heartily given, after which the 16th Infantry Band led the procession into the city to the Post Office.

In front of the Post Office, Mr. Black, addressing a big gathering, said that the "Wallabies" were going to fill up the gaps in the ranks. But they alone could not fill all the gaps. Real men were wanted, who were prepared to die for their country. It was the duty of every man to give whatever he had to give, whether it was money, or himself, if he was capable of going. Every man, after he had a living income, should be prepared to give 50 per cent. of the remainder to the people of this country. (Hear, hear.) They could not ask men to give their lives if they were not themselves prepared to give something less valuable. He appealed to all those who believed in our grand traditions and our free constitution to take this opportunity to come forward and enlist.

Mr. D. Watkins, M.P., said he disagreed with the remarks that there were in Australia any great number of shirkers, but it was their mission to point out that the hour had come when every free-born Australian without incumbrance or without ties should step forward and do something for his country. To-day they had about 140,000 men at the front, and they had promised to give another 50,000 as early as they could. They wanted them on the voluntary principle, because they did not believe in conscription. If they had had 100,000 men instead of 20,000 at Gallipoli the boys would probably by this have been in Constantinople.

Lieutenant Brown, who took part in the landing at Gallipoli, said that over there, month after month, 20,000 men were doing the work of 100,000. It could be realised how anxiously the men looked day after day for reinforcements. During the first few days 50 per cent. of the men had been either killed or wounded. The remaining men were tired and worn out. And all the time they knew that there were thousands of their comrades in Australia who had not made the slightest move to go to their aid. There were men at the front, said the speaker, who were not fit to stay there. At Cairo he met young men going back to the firing line with bullets in them which were too close to the spine to allow the doctors to perform an operation. They would not have gone to the front if more men had been available. "Don't wait for conscription," he urged. "We want to avoid it if we can. But we must have the men, and those who have been to the front say that they would rather be dead in Australia than leave Australia as a conscript."

Sergeant-major Lee, speaking of the "Coo-ees," said that 30 of them were drafted into the Light Horse, and about 280 were reinforcements for the 30th Battalion. That should be sufficient answer for those who said that there were not 50 desirable men in the whole lot of the "Coo-ees." About 10 persons responded to his appeal for recruits, and proceeded to the police station, where they were enlisted.

Before the second recruiting meeting was held last night, the "Wallabies," with the Stockton band at their head, and members of the naval and military forces, and firemen, in the procession, marched through the town to the post-office, where further recruiting speeches were delivered. Mr. Black said that they had been making history in Australia for some time, and they were bringing their history up to date with these route marches. The only way to secure the safety of the Empire was to beat the Germans where they stood; to crush them back into their own land, until they were forced to capitulate in their own capital, and to sign there a treaty of subjugation and of indemnity so complete that all the robbed and ruined nations of the world would have back the territories stolen from them. Then these fiendish barbarians would be compelled to pay for all their lust and rapine, and for the foul deeds they had committed. (Hear, hear, and applause.)

In response to the Chief Secretary's appeal, eleven men stepped forward and promised to enlist.

Colonel Markwell, who recently returned from a trip in charge of a troopship, also addressed the meeting, pointing out that he was appealing to the young and able-bodied. It was to the men of 25 and 30 he appealed, urging them to accept their responsibilities and set an example to others. While recently in Egypt he took the opportunity of going through several of the vast hospitals, and the one great desire of those who were not seriously wounded was to get well quickly, in order that they might go back to the front and help their comrades. "The other chaps won't come," they said, "so we must go back as soon as we can."

Special services were held at King Edward Park this afternoon, when New Testaments were given to each of the "Wallabies" by Bishop Stretch.

BOOMERANGS.

PARKES, Sunday.

Preparations for the Boomerang route march, which leaves Parkes on January 19, are in full swing. Some 30 local men have already been sworn in, and the Parkes quota will reach 50, apart from those who come from outlying centres of the district. The recruits will be entertained at a banquet on the eve of their departure.

The Boomerangs will leave Parkes by the train at 8.45 a.m. on January 19. Leave the train at Daroubalgie siding, four miles from Forbes, and march into that town, headed by the Parkes and Forbes town bands. They will remain in Forbes till the morning of the 21st, when they will set out for Eugowra. The Rev. John Calder, Presbyterian minister of Forbes, will travel with the men as far as Blayney for the purpose of delivering recruiting speeches at the different centres. Mr. Thos. Doyle, of Yamma station, will supply the recruits with luncheon on the 21st; and Mr. W. A. Wright, of Nanami station, seven miles beyond Eugowra, and about 30 from Forbes, has informed the Parkes committee that the residents of that locality will provide luncheon in the form of a picnic on the Lachlan river banks on Monday, January 24. Canowindra is making great preparations for the reception of the recruits. Some 20 men have already been sworn in at Parkes, and 35 in Parkes district, so the Boomerangs will start with from 125 to 150 strong from this centre. Peak Hill, Trundle, Bogan Gate, Tullamore, and Condobolin are each preparing to add their quota, the central committee at Parkes having left no stone unturned to thoroughly organise the movement.

THE KANGAROOS.

RECRUITING COMMITTEE'S EXPLANATION.

Mr. J. R. Catts, M.P., organising secretary of the State Recruiting Committee, said, at Challis House on Saturday, that he desired to correct several statements which had appeared in the "Herald" in connection with the final stages of the "Kangaroos'" route march.

"It was stated on Thursday," said Mr. Catts, "that the State Recruiting Committee sent an itinerary of the remainder of the march from Goulburn to Sydney, which upset the programme previously mapped out. It was also stated that we desired the concluding stages of the march to Sydney to be utilised for recruiting purposes, and that this was strenuously opposed by the 'Kangaroos,' who were anxious to preserve their identity.

"Neither of these statements is correct. The route march was entirely managed by a committee of the local recruiting associations. It was the military authorities who stopped the march at Goulburn, as they did not wish it to proceed to Sydney. A conference of the local recruiting bodies was held at Goulburn on December 23, which decided in favour of the original arrangement. In view of this decision I made a special visit to Melbourne, saw the authorities there, and obtained the necessary permission for the march to continue to Sydney.

"As to the other point, the State recruiting committee did desire the concluding stages of the march to be utilised for general recruiting purposes—not to add suburban men to the march, but to stimulate interest. The local executive had arranged for the march to arrive in Sydney on Saturday afternoon. We pointed out that the men might not have as good a reception on Saturday afternoon as on a business afternoon. When it was decided to reach Sydney on Friday morning we did all we could do to show our appreciation of the patriotic spirit in which the route march was commenced and carried out. The blame does not rest at our door in regard to there being no military guard of honour for the 'Kangaroos.'

"It is not true, as published, that we expected the men to average 20 miles a day after leaving Goulburn. The itinerary was fixed by the conference at Goulburn on December 23, and we did not interfere with the local arrangements.

"In Saturday's 'Herald' it was stated that when Mr. Patten was addressing the 'Kangaroos' in Macquarie-street Mr. Catts stopped him abruptly. In regard to this incident I desire to point out that a serious difficulty with the men had to be overcome, and I was afraid that what Mr. Patten was going to say would prejudice the negotiations. The 'Herald' makes reference to the fact that as the 'Kangaroos' lined into the luncheon room they were questioned by two members of the contingent, and that each man returned the password, 'Stand Fast.' This shows that the opposition to going straight to Goulburn was carefully planned, and that it was necessary that nothing should be said which might affect an amicable settlement.

"I wish to make it clear that the arrangement to send the men to Goulburn was made by the military authorities. We endorsed this decision, as it would have been unwise to let all the men loose in Sydney on leave with a month's pay in their pockets. I could emphasise this if necessary by giving particulars of our difficulties in other cases.

"There remains the allegation by Mr. Patten that some discourtesy was shown him in not answering a telegram. The fact is that Alderman Collins, of Wagga, chairman of the march executive, and an ex-mayor of Wagga, was in the Sydney office when the wire arrived. It was promptly shown to him, and he paid a special visit to the march to inform Mr. Patten and the officer commanding of the exact position. If Mr. Patten had spoken of his telegram while we were together on Friday I am sure I would have convinced him that no discourtesy was intended."

PAY AND LEAVE.

Asked if the trouble about pay and leave had ended to the satisfaction of the men, Mr. Catts said:—

"To meet the wishes of the men, as far as it was possible to do so, I promised to make arrangements so that the pay would be ready to-day (Saturday) at the Goulburn camp. Here let me say that this was the arrangement I made with the local recruiting associations before the start of the march. It was agreed that the recruits were to get their pay on arrival in camp. I had Sergeant Coates and another officer at Victoria Barracks nearly all yesterday afternoon, with the result that the military authorities handed over a cheque for £1500. The cheque was sent to Goulburn by train on Friday night. The officer taking it had the pay-sheets with him. This gentleman said he would complete the sheets on the train, and would not cease work until the men were paid soon after his arrival in Goulburn.

"I promised that I would endeavour to obtain special leave for three days—the men to be allowed off in Goulburn in batches of 25 per cent. This I recommended by urgent telegram to the camp commandant at Goulburn after a consultation with the State Commandant, Colonel Ramaciotti. I also promised that in cases of men who wanted to come to Sydney on business or to visit friends that a strong effort would be made to obtain concession fares from the Railway Department. To-day I was informed by the department that tickets at what is called the two-thirds rate would be issued—a reduction of one-third. The railway officials stated that they would see on Monday if there could be any further concession. If the decision is a favourable one I shall immediately communicate it to the men in camp."

SNOWY RIVER MEN.

BOMBALA, Sunday.

Bombala was decorated with bunting on Saturday in honour of the Snowy River men, who arrived from Mila, a distance of 12 miles, where they were entertained by Mr. Robert Stevenson and other residents. The men were met at Bombala town boundary by the Mayor and aldermen, and many townspeople. They were escorted to the School of Arts, where they were formally welcomed. On Monday morning they march on to Bibbenluke.

NEW ZEALAND CASUALTIES.

INDISCREET GERMAN.

PARKES, Sunday.

A German, named Julius Stellmacher, was found guilty at the local police court of using seditious language, and sentenced to six months imprisonment, with a fine of £100, or a further term of six months.

MARRIAGE OF SOLDIERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As a woman I wish to denounce Dr. Neale's letter in your newspaper of the 31st instant with regard to the marriage of soldiers. It may be a very laudable desire on the part of Dr. Neale to inspire patriotism in women, but I am afraid he is going the wrong way about it to imagine that even the poorest woman would give herself up as a chattle to any man for the purpose of populating the country. Everyone will agree that soldiers and their sweethearts (between whom there is some affection) should marry before they go to the war, but marriage by arrangement must ever deteriorate the species, since, according to science, the greatest brain power, and the best men and women are the result of marriages for affection. One can easily imagine the result from Dr. Neale's idea of populating the country.

HEAVY ENEMY LOSSES.

REINFORCEMENTS HURRYING FORWARD.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 9.

There are 800,000 Russians and 3500 guns in Bukovina. The Austrian casualties for a week totalled 100,000. Reinforcements are hurrying from the Balkans, the Isonzo, and inland garrisons.

COMPULSION.

THE ENEMY ANGRY.

"GERMAN FLEET MUST ACT."

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 9.

The "Koelnische Volks Zeitung," in the course of an angry article on the British compulsion law, says the German fleet must act. "Britain is quite uncontrollable if she is allowed to send millions of men to the Continent. Germany is really fighting for the freedom of the whole of Europe when striving to break England's rule."

"NO MILITARY SIGNIFICANCE."

The "Lokal Anzeiger" (Berlin) says that Mr. Asquith achieved a great Parliamentary victory. The majority for the Military Bill surpassed all expectations, and expressed the uncurbed will to achieve victory, because the renunciation of the right of deciding for oneself was one of the greatest sacrifices an Englishman could make. So far as the Germans were concerned the bill had only a political and no military significance, and would not influence the issue of the war.

VESSELS COLLIDE.

IN BASS STRAITS.

STEAMER AND SCHOONER DAMAGED.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

A collision occurred in Bass Straits at 10 o'clock on Friday night between the steamer City of Florence (5400 tons) and the American schooner Philippine (490 tons), resulting in serious damage to both vessels and necessitating their putting into Port Philip for examination and repairs.

The collision took place near Cape Everard in fine weather, the schooner, which was under full sail, striking the steamer a direct blow with her bow on the port side amidships.

For some minutes the vessels remained locked together, but subsequently drifted apart, the bowsprit of the schooner "raking" further injury to the deck of the steamer before they finally drew clear of each other. A huge dent in the hull of the steamer, fortunately well above the waterline, bore eloquent testimony of the severity of the collision.

The schooner was in a badly broken condition, her bows being crushed almost flat. Upon the vessels drifting apart Captain Leary, of the City of Florence, decided to "stand by" the schooner until morning. At daybreak it was arranged that the steamer should take the schooner in tow for Hobson's Bay, the nearest port, which was entered this afternoon.

THE TURK AND KULTUR.

The eager attempts in the German press to present the Turks as a nation of Oriental gentlemen anxious to open their doors to the entrance of Kultur, and ready to welcome the remodelling hand of Germany, have a fresh illustration in a long article in the "Kolnische Zeitung." The writer points out that one of the most infallible proofs of national regeneration in Turkey is the insistence of the nation on purifying their Osmanli language from Persian and Arabic elements. Like their German masters, they are also "purifying the streets" by insisting on the removal of English and French signboards and business notices. Gratifying to the "Kolnische" writer is the magnanimity which permits German signboards, while those of the Western nations are being ruthlessly swept away. Within the past few weeks these energetic regenerated Turks have even begun to clear away Greek signboards.

We are told also that Turks are much flattered by the attention which Germans are bestowing on their language, and it has touched their heart that the Landtag of the Grand Duchy of Hesse-Darmstadt has officially declared Turkish to be an optional language in the Grand Ducal schools in addition to French and English. It seems that there is a strong movement in Turkey, "supported by dozens of articles," for the establishment of a "Turanic rallying point" which would unite Turks, Bulgarians, and Magyars in one grand political association, whose "natural ally" would be Germany. There would be nothing unnatural in this, we hear, for are not Magyars and Turks cognate races, and are not Bulgarians a Ural-Altaic people who have been Slavicised?

Equally gratifying is the desire which the writer discovers in Turkey to assimilate German methods and organisation in their economic and financial affairs, and to employ German capital in the development of their resources. It would also appear that the Turks have suffered so severely in granting concessions to western Europeans and their friends that they have determined to discontinue this wasteful process, and rather to seek the aid of Germany.

The Turks, we are told, are now speaking of "Notre mission en Orient." Why will they speak French? The "Kolnische" writer declares that revived Turkey will bring moral, intellectual, and cultural salvation to Western Asia and North Africa. These millions of men await their regeneration from Turkey. "Turkey has been entrusted by destiny with this magnificent mission."

SIR GEORGE REID.

ELECTION ADDRESS.

COMPLIMENT TO AUSTRALIA.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

Sir George Reid, in his address to the electors of St. George's, Hanover-square, says that domestic questions should not be raised during the war. He favours the Compulsion Bill and supports the Government during the truce.

Sir George Reid, in his address, said:—I highly appreciate the compliment of an invitation from one of the premier constituencies in the United Kingdom. I recognise it is paid largely in appreciation of my younger fellow Australians, who represent in the fighting lines the great dominion of which I was at one time Prime Minister. I am anxious to do my best to support the national Government in a national war, and to see the war through to a successful finish. Our only aim is to secure success whereby the patriotic self-sacrifice of many of our bravest sons will speedily end in victory.

Sir George Reid has cabled his resignation as High Commissioner for Australia in order to contest the seat.

Mr. H. T. Mackenzie Bell, who has twice been the Liberal candidate for St. George's, Hanover-square, will recontest the seat.

The "Evening Standard" says that Sir George Reid is an attractive candidate, but he has had no experience in British politics. His Australian yes-no reputation will make him an admirable supporter of the Government. It is deplorable that his selection will block Mr. Gibson Bowles.

The "Westminster Gazette" says:—"Though it will not be a bad thing for Australia to have a voice in the House of Commons we are surprised, because we had not associated Sir George Reid with political principles, or thought that he was popular with St. George's. The majority of the constituency are probably equally astonished to find that the war's chances has brought the leader of liberalism and freetrade for a representative."

The "Pall Mall Gazette" says that Sir George Reid's return will secure a timely and unanimous tribute to the gallant Commonwealth.

MR. BOWLES WITHDRAWS.

LONDON, Jan. 8.

Mr. Gibson Bowles has retired from the contest for the St. George's electorate. He states that he felt that the election of an Australian would, at the moment, be a compliment to Australia, to whose gallantry and devotion we owe so much.

"MARK OF THE TIMES."

MR. HUGHES'S TRIBUTE.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The resignation of Sir George Reid from the position of High Commissioner has been received by the Commonwealth Ministry. A cable message, conveying his desire to be relieved of the post in order that he might stand for the British House of Commons, arrived on Saturday morning, and it was immediately decided to accept his resignation officially on Monday, at a meeting of the Executive Council. Referring to his resignation on Saturday, the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) said:—"I am very pleased indeed, for his own sake, that he is to have an opportunity of entering on a new sphere of usefulness, and I am glad for the sake of Australia, that he will be able to continue to represent her in that new sphere—I am sure, no less effectively than in the old one. It is certainly a mark of the times that the retiring Australian High Commissioner passes, almost without question, from his official position as representative of Australia to that of an elected representative of the British people. Possibly greater changes are yet to come out of this war, and some sort of an Imperial Government, in which all portions of the Empire would be represented, may arise out of the intimate but undefined relations that bind Australia and Britain together."

The new High Commissioner (Mr. Fisher) will not reach England until January 24, and in the interim Captain Collins will perform the duties of the position.

MR. FISHER.

ARRIVAL AT COLOMBO.

COLOMBO, Jan. 8.

Mr. Fisher, High Commissioner-elect, arrived at Colombo on the evening of January 7 and left to-day at noon. Interviewed by Reuter's correspondent, he said the message he was carrying home was that Australia was not backing out of her obligations to see the war through to the bitter end. Recruiting was excellent in Australia, and compulsion was not required.

Regarding the Imperial Conference, he said: "My views are unchanged, and I retract nothing, and at the moment I can add nothing to what I have said. The financial situation in Australia is excellent. This year a war loan of £25,000,000 sterling will be raised. This is a stupendous feat."

Regarding the Dardanelles he would say nothing.

The death is announced of Lord Burnham, senior proprietor of the "Daily Telegraph," aged 82 years.

DANISH SHIPPING.

PROFITS OF COMPANIES.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 7.

A Danish financial organ states that Danish shipping companies in 1915 earned thrice as much as they did in 1914. The total of the estimated profit is 120,000,000 kroner, and exceeds the total of the capital.

THE SOCOTRA'S CARGO.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

The salvors are slowly recovering the lead and wool from the P. and O. Company's steamer Socotra, which was wrecked near Boulogne. The weather is hampering operations.

NEW YEAR'S DINNER.

POOR CHILDREN ENTERTAINED.

LONDON, Jan. 7.

A New Year's dinner and entertainment were given to 1300 children of the Shaftesbury Society and Ragged School Union at the Guild Hall on Friday. Queensland provided the funds. The Lord Mayor presided. Sir Thomas and Lady Robinson were present. The dinner included 700lb plum pudding.

NEW SOUTH WALES LOAN.

LONDON, Jan. 8.

The New South Wales loan has closed. The public subscriptions amounted to £483,000.

Though the underwriters receive over 75 per cent. of the loan, the result is regarded as satisfactory, considering that New South Wales followed the Exchequer bond and the French war loan issues.

PALACE OF ILLUSIONS.

At the White City on Saturday night the reorganised and enlarged Palace of Illusions, containing three separate acts, the "Everflowing Cauldron," "Sapho," and the "Spider Stair," was opened for the first time, and was well patronised, not the least attractive feature being the new four-colour prismatic illumination just installed. Another carnival is to take place on Thursday next.

DEATH OF SIR SAMUEL WAY.

CHIEF JUSTICE OF SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Sunday.

While not unexpected to those who have noted a gradual failure in his strength during recent months, the intelligence of the death of Sir Samuel James Way, Bart., P.C., D.C.L., Lieutenant-Governor and Chief Justice of South Australia, which occurred at his residence, Montefiore Hill, on Saturday, shortly before midnight, will be received throughout Australia generally with keen feelings of regret. Although nearly 80 years had rolled their eventful course since first he saw the light in a quiet little English parsonage, the deceased gentleman's intellectual faculties showed no signs of becoming impaired, and his manifold activities were continued until nearly the end of his remarkable career.

Samuel James Way was born on April 11, 1836, at Portsmouth, where his father, the Rev. James Way, was stationed. He was reared amidst Methodist surroundings, and spent most of his boyhood days in the charming country of Devon. His father was the pioneer pastor of the Bible Christian Church in Australia. Two years after his father's arrival in South Australia his son Samuel, then 17 years of age, sailed for Australia, and landed in Melbourne on February 27, 1853. He rejoined his family in Adelaide, and had no difficulty in obtaining employment. His first inclination was towards journalism. In 1856 he was articled to the late Mr. A. Atkinson, solicitor, then practising in Adelaide, and never had another employer. In March, 1861, eight years after his arrival in South Australia, he was called to the Bar. When Mr. Atkinson died Mr. Way succeeded to the practice, and subsequently entered into partnership with Mr. Brook. After the death of that gentleman, Mr. J. H. (now Sir Josiah) Symon, K.C., who had served his articles in the office, was taken into partnership with Mr. Way, and the firm soon had one of the largest legal offices in South Australia.

His career as a politician lasted not quite a year. He was sworn in as Attorney-General in June, 1875, and the following March resigned his office and seat on account of having been promoted to a seat on the Supreme Court Bench as Chief Justice, in succession to the late Sir Richard Hanson.

Mr. Way was then in his fortieth year, and the youngest man who had held the post in South Australia. This fact and certain others connected with the incident caused much controversy concerning the mode of appointment, but his ability was never in doubt. For many years he was the senior Chief Justice of Australia, and his merits as a Judge attracted attention through the whole Commonwealth. The death of Lord de Villiers (Chief Justice of South Africa) and the more recent decease of Sir Joshua Strange Williams (formerly of New Zealand) left Sir Samuel Way the senior Judge in office in his Majesty's overseas dominions. In 1886 his name was suggested as that of one likely to receive appointment to the vacant post of the Chief Justice of New South Wales. After his elevation to the Bench the late Chief Justice was frequently during the absence of the Governor called upon to act as representative of the Sovereign and administer the Government.

Sir Samuel was married to the widow of the late Dr. Blue, of Strathalbyn, on Easter Monday of 1898. An exceedingly happy union was abruptly terminated by the sudden death of Lady Way on May 14, 1914. Misfortune rapidly followed misfortune, and bereavement succeeded bereavement. The Chief Justice himself had been suffering for some time from a painful malady, which affected particularly his left arm, and at length the disease was declared so malignant that the only hope of saving the distinguished patient's life lay in the immediate amputation of his arm. This operation was performed in August, 1914, by Sir Alexander MacCormick, and throughout the trying ordeal the Chief Justice displayed remarkable fortitude. During the next few months one of his stepsons died suddenly in South Africa, and another was slain on the battlefield.

WHEAT.

MILLED IN AUSTRALIA.

SAVING IN FREIGHT.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

It was announced by the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) on Saturday that the British Government had agreed to take part of the 200,000 tons of wheat ordered by it and the French Government, in flour.

This is a decision of the most far-reaching character, said Mr. Hughes, in making the announcement. It will not only provide employment for capital and labour in Australia, but it will also mean the saving of about one-third of the freight, as flour occupies not more than two-thirds of the space that would be taken up by its equivalent in wheat.

FINANCIAL.

THE AMERICAN LOAN.

When the terms of the loan made by American houses to Great Britain and France were announced, there was a great deal of grumbling in Great Britain. As against these critics may be placed the opinion of the New York "Financial Chronicle," which says that the terms are not more liberal than was necessary to ensure the success of the undertaking beyond peradventure. The same journal goes on to point out that "the 5½ per cent. return in attracting investors who otherwise would not have thought of taking part in a foreign Government loan. English critics should bear this point in mind. They should also remember that English financing thus far has erred in not making the terms of new loans attractive enough. This has afforded a chance to the Germans of making comparisons to the disadvantage of Great Britain. That is precisely what Dr. Karl Helfferich, Secretary of the German Imperial Treasury, did in a statement issued at the close of last week, in which he contrasted the German policy with the British. There was a good deal of the boastful in what Dr. Helfferich said, and yet there was a substratum of truth in his contention that Germany, starting at the outset with a 5 per cent. obligation, has been able to put its three great war loans out at rising prices, the first at 97½, the second at 98½, and the latest at 99, whereas England in beginning with 3½ per cent. has had to advance to 4½, and yet has seen its loans go to a discount. That was an error the Anglo-French Commissioners could not afford to repeat."

JAPANESE SHIPPING SUBSIDIES.

Shipping subsidies are granted by the Japanese Government to the principal oversea lines maintained by Japanese shipping companies. The amount allotted to the Australian line is £17,740 for this, £16,300 for the next year, £17,200 for 1918, and £19,240 for 1919. This is the only line for which the subsidy increases. To the European lines the subsidy decreases from £184,979 per year to £16,023, and to the North American lines from £331,959 to £256,146.

THE AMSTERDAM EXCHANGES.

The rates of exchange quoted in Amsterdam during the week ended November 20 were quoted by the "Economist" as follows:—

	Date. Nov.	Rate.	Gold Par.	Premium on Dutch Currency. %
Berlin	15	48.0¼	59.26	19
Vienna	15	34.0¼	50.41	32½
Copenhagen	15	63.65	66.67	4½
London	18	11.22	12.11	7½
New York	18	239.65	248.8	3½

In May last the depreciation in the case of Berlin was between 11 and 12 per cent., while the London rate was at par. So that in terms of British currency the depreciation of the German mark is what it was six months ago. Further light is thrown on the subject by a correspondent, who writes:—We have had an illustration this week of the attraction of foreign investment business to the London stock market through a falling exchange, and as the profit underlying such operations is little understood, an explanation may be useful. Exchange between Amsterdam and London on Wednesday last was quoted 11.25fl to £1, and in the absence of support might very well have gone lower. In the course of the day, however, the preference shares of the Peruvian Corporation came under the notice of dealers on the London Stock Exchange, and large purchases were made for Amsterdam account. The reasons for this business are fairly plain, exchange at 11.25fl is about 7 per cent. against London; the London price of the shares in question was £24, and as sterling in Amsterdam could be purchased at 7 per cent. discount, their price to the Dutch capitalist was £22.32. A further illustration will make the operation clearer. The London agent could purchase 100 shares for £2400, and to pay for these the investor in Amsterdam must remit, neglecting his agent's commission, 27,000fl (i.e., at 11.25), and, apart from any subsequent increase in the value of the shares, the Dutchman's profit will rise or fall in proportion to the movements in exchange. For instance, the Amsterdam rate closed on Wednesday night at 11.30fl firm, which showed a clear profit on the transaction of 120fl for the day. The effect on the exchange of a large number of such operations is obvious; a multitude of Dutch purchases of London stocks will mean a multitude of remittances from Amsterdam, or, alternatively, a corresponding reduction of Holland's balances here, and the influence is very soon reflected in the exchange rates.

AUSTRALIAN BUTTER MARKETS.

Prescott, Ltd., write under date Saturday concerning the butter markets of the Commonwealth as follows:—

Sydney.—The price fixed by the Necessary Commodities Control Commission, 135/4, has held good this week, but from Monday its regulation price for first grade will be 139/8. In the early part of the week supplies were well cleared, but at the latter end stocks accumulated. There will be a considerable surplus for shipment by the steamer Osterley, sailing on the 22nd inst., probably 4000 to 5000 boxes. The quantity of butter shipped by the steamer Maloja to London was 442 boxes.

Melbourne.—The market opened at 126/, and was subsequently reduced to 122/. At this figure, the surplus is being exported. Arrivals for the week ended December 31 totalled 17,554 boxes butter and 58 tons cream.

Brisbane.—Prices were reduced to 135/ by the Government Control of Prices Board, and with the further increase in supplies lower prices are anticipated. Production for the week is estimated at 7665 boxes.

GENERAL INSURANCE.

BUSINESS IN N.S.W., 1914-15.

We have received from the Government Statistician (Mr. J. B. Trivett) a summary of the operations during the year ended June 30, 1915, of the fire, marine, and accident insurance companies doing business in New South Wales. The particulars are contained in the statement below, which shows, in regard to each branch of insurance, the total receipts received by all the companies and the total expenditure in New South Wales during the year mentioned. The total premiums received in the State were £1,457,823, while the total losses were £887,031, and expenses of management £562,341, which included commission paid £180,328. The excess of receipts over expenditure was £41,759. Losses were 61.7 per cent. of premium income, and expenses of management, including commission, 39.2 per cent. The figures quoted in the table are subject to slight amendment.

BUSINESS EFFICIENCY.

EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYEE.

ELEMENTARY CONSIDERATIONS.

NO. V.

(BY A. E. H.)

In importance to the nation, as well as to the individual, business efficiency ranks next to character. But, while considerable study has been given to materials and the technical processes of manufacture and consumption, comparatively little study has been given to the individual who performs the technical operations. The applications of psychology in business are scarcely known as yet. Nevertheless, there is a class of get-rich-quick charlatans who possess a knowledge of influencing human nature that should be known to all honest business men. It is the purpose of these articles to assist in making that knowledge known. Business efficiency depends upon a widespread enlightenment that will itself, eventually, remove the charlatan and the bluffer.

In order to illustrate the bearing of psychology in business, and the testing of physical and mental conditions affecting the individual, it may be well, first, to describe some actual conditions to be met with, supplementing these by some details of experiments in this very interesting field of human endeavour. But, prior to this, let it be repeated that many practical business men indeed, well grounded in one or more of the technical branches of business, i.e., manufacturing, distributing, accounting, and so on, are disposed to regard phychology in business as something theoretical. Well, that is just history repeating itself. The criticism is good. It imposes a test. It compels the adoption of scientific method. In any case the average business man may be excused for doubting the claims of psychology. It's meaning is not altogether clear. Just what does it mean? So far as business is concerned, it may be interpreted as common sense, the useful knowledge that is to be gained from experience, and is analysed, classified, and concerted into a code of rules for guidance whenever possible.

At this point it may be well, also, to note one or two rules serviceable to employers and employees alike, who desire to gain the greatest advantage from clear thinking, and the largest profit from psychology. These rules may be indicated as follows:—

1. The selection of simple, easy, and familiar things to start with.
2. Proceeding from what is known to what is unknown gradually, step by step, without haste.
3. Accepting nothing as true, on the one hand, that is not clearly known to be so; but, on the other hand, not expecting the same degree of certainty in all matters.
4. Keeping clearly in mind the end sought by the inquiry or investigation, and suiting the method to the proper attainment of that end.

These general rules apply, of course, to all branches of knowledge. They are not limited to special departments. Just as it is impossible to sharply separate the sciences from one another, so in actual business practice it is not possible to limit certain knowledge to this or that special division, and to that alone. Yet many commit this error continually. Thus the general knowledge known as business is divided into many special departments. Some, for example, are salesmanship, accountancy, advertising, storekeeping, etc. These, again, are divided into further special departments. Take salesmanship only. There are wholesale selling and retail selling. Then, within these two divisions are special classes of goods, special classes of people, special methods. The overlapping in certain features is quite transparent—notably in respect to influencing and dealing successfully with men, which demands a knowledge of human nature.

This process of specialising points out anew the danger of classification, when its purpose as an artificial aid, merely, is not understood. It is frequently made a restriction upon the mind, an impediment to progress, a stultification of the individual, and a barrier to efficiency. The specialist in one branch of knowledge is often required to confine himself to that, and that one alone. If a salesman, so it is thought, he cannot be an accountant; if an accountant, he cannot be an advertiser; and so so. He is expected to know his one speciality from A to Z, as a prevalent expression puts it; and this is so exacting in its demands that he can know little, or nothing, about anything else. If he does, so think many business men, then he cannot know his supposed speciality thoroughly. He is meddling in things in which he has no business. All this, of course, overlooks the fact, the final conquering truth, that the mind unifies and uses all knowledge; that it is not to be cramped in this artificial manner; that only comprehensive knowledge qualifies for the positions of direction and control, and the ultimate realisation of business efficiency.

Deferring, for a moment, the consideration of human nature in respect to certain physical and mental operations, a brief comment on the four rules above, taken seriatim, will prepare the way for a review of business psychology:—

1. Selecting simple things to start with: What is simple, easy, familiar, will naturally depend upon what the business student already knows. These words have, therefore, a relative and variable meaning. The reader must himself judge, from his own personal knowledge, what branches or details of business are most easily understood by him. As knowledge is added to, more and more becomes easy to grasp.

2. Proceeding gradually, step by step, not hastily: Many errors arise from neglect of this counsel. Scientific method requires that every step should be carefully examined and tested, as far as is necessary. Hasty conclusions are to be avoided. Problems of business are to be analysed, separated into various parts, so that what is superficial or a chance connection only may be distinguished from what is essential. Thus, a certain type of man, say, our friends, the hardheaded, practical merchants who made a fortune, will ascribe their success to their personality, their shrewdness, their own pet methods. Is the conclusion justified? What other factors are there to be taken into account? Are their methods, or their personality, essential? Or is some unsuspected factor, say a tariff, a new field, a new fashion, a new need of the public, etc., the essential one? Might not other methods have been even more successful? Or a different personality?

3. Accepting nothing as true, but not expecting the same degree of certainty in all matters: As pointed out in article No. 4, certain physical and mental operations do not lend themselves to mathematical proofs. Yet the practical utility of a study of the human constitution is not lessened on this account. None of the human sciences—social, economic, political, ethical—permit of mathematical certainty. Their value, nevertheless, needs no demonstration. Still, some business men insist on figures for everything. If it is proposed to offer a reward to employees as an incentive to greater efficiency, or to reorganise the office on scientific principles, figures are demanded and figures only. Obviously, success follows not from the proofs of figures in advance, but from efficient management. Insistence, like this, on mathematical proofs discloses an undeveloped judicial faculty.

4. Keeping clearly in mind the end sought, and suiting the method to that end: This brings into vivid clearness the distinction between vague ideas, haphazard methods, hasty conclusions, groping in the dark, and the painstaking ways that remove ignorance, eliminate error, guide towards truth and efficiency. Thus, just as the thorough accountant examines figures carefully, so that clerical errors, fraud, or errors of omission, commission, principle, or compensation may be detected, so business efficiency requires a thorough examination, renewed continually, of all the factors and data inseparable from it. The all too frequent friction between employers and employees calls loudly for the special treatment of such an essential factor as human nature. The ability to get the maximum of work out of others, or oneself, is more to be desired in the business world than anything else. Hence, the importance of the human factor.

Practical business psychology, i.e., commonsense, the application of useful knowledge already gained, and to be gained, from observation and experiment with human elements, will do very much to abolish friction and loss, and bring about harmonious relations between employers and employees. In the present article, however, owing to lack of space, only a brief sketch of the ground can be given. Nor can the claims championed for personality, originality, intuition, enthusiasm, self-confidence, bluff, etc., as business talents be considered until later. In the meantime the following indicates the solid substance of study on which business efficiency rests:—

1. Relation of sense stimulations to sensations.
2. Relation and interaction between the body and the mind.
3. Special functions of the nervous mechanism: Automatic actions, fatigue points.
4. Deceptions of the senses: Seeing, hearing, feeling.
5. Variations between different individuals, and variations in the same person at different times. Reserves of strength.
6. Assimilation of ideas. Effects of emotions.
7. Conditions in the formation and facilitation of habits. Cultivation of initiative. Effects of suggestion, imitation, repetition.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT FINANCE.

PARTIAL FAILURE FINANCIALLY.

(BY GEO. H. PITT.)

Prior to the application of the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1906, the area incorporated was 2830 square miles. In January 1907 self-government was extended to the whole of the Eastern and Central Divisions of the State, thus increasing the area incorporated to 185,100 square miles. By this operation the Central Government was relieved from January 1907 of participation in the direct administration, construction, and maintenance of roads, bridges, ferries, punts, public watering places, etc. (other than those classed as national) within a territory comprising three-fifths of the whole area of the State.

During the last year of the old system, 1905-6, the Government expended £546,000 on local works and services; in the following year, 1906-7, the period which marked the change from centralisation to decentralisation, the expenditure reached £660,000; in the succeeding year, 1907-8, which was the first complete financial year in which the general scheme was in operation, the outlay from the Treasury declined to £475,000; in the next year, 1908-9, the minimum expenditure was reached, the total being £403,000. From that year the outgo from the Treasury increased until a sum of £510,000 was expended in 1913-14, an amount closely approximating to the outlay annually on roads, bridges, etc., when the system of centralisation was in full swing; in 1914-15 the expenditure declined somewhat, the amount being £460,000. These figures show that the burden on the Treasury on account of local government is now practically as great as that which obtained in the years when the Central Government had the full responsibility of the direct administration, construction, and maintenance of local works and services. If to this heavy annual expenditure be coupled the yearly loss to the Consolidated Revenue Fund of some £250,000, which has arisen through the abolition of the land tax in the Eastern and Central Divisions and the diversion of tolls and rents of ferries, public watering places, etc., then the 8½ years' application of the general scheme of self-government has not been, as far as the Treasury is concerned, a success.

These results point to the fact that the Act of 1906 has not encouraged the necessary measure of self reliance, and that the spirit of dependence on the Central Government would appear to be as strong now as it was before the statute was passed; in other words, the 8½ years' experience of the working of the Act strongly supports the conclusion that the local authorities are either unable or unwilling to divorce themselves from the practice of expecting the parent body to be the senior partner in expenditure on works and services of local importance and benefit.

The drain on the Treasury which prevailed prior to 1907 has not been arrested, and consequently the Act from this standpoint has been a failure, and as a result one of the main purposes for which the Local Government Act, 1906, was passed has been defeated. When the proposed department of local government is established, this unsatisfactory feature in the working of the Act will, no doubt, receive the earnest attention it deserves, and a definition will be arrived at as to the extent of the relations which should exist between the Treasury and the local authorities.

PROSPECTS OF NORTH SEA FISHERIES.

All fish from Europe, such as sardines and herrings, are difficult to obtain. The war has taken charge of most of the fishing boats and those which were not efficient enough for war purposes are obtaining practically only sufficient for local consumption. This small supply will probably have one good effect. It will mean an abundant supply after the war. The steam trawler, so closely has it ploughed the bottom of the North Sea, has with succeeding years brought fewer and fewer fish to port; but, with the increase of price the smaller supply did not affect profits. A close season by international agreement had been suggested; but, owing to the war, the "Economist" point out, this will not now be necessary. Of the British fishing fleet about 75 per cent. is in Government hands for patrol work. Practically all the French boats have been requisitioned, and the few German trawlers which attempted recently to enter the fishing grounds were captured. The result of almost closing fishing operations during the war will be to make a prolific fishing afterwards, and there are already indications that after peace has come we shall have big supplies, and fish will consequently be a cheap food for a long time. This was so a dozen years ago after the fishermen's strike, when the ships were laid up for only three months. The trade appear to expect years of plenty, for most of the owners are keen to obtain ships, and new boats, which five years ago cost £7000 to built, are now being ordered for delivery after the war at £9000. Few trawlers seem to have been lost in transport and patrol work, so that, with the hundred odd new ships which have been delivered during the war the fleets should be as large as ever, and instead of having to go down to Iceland and the White Sea there is the possibility of such abundant fishing in home waters that for some time after the war a long voyage will be saved. Fish prices in England show increases on pre war rates varying from 100 to 150 per cent.

CARGO RATES.

"Wool Shipper" writes:—

Sir,—With reference to your paragraph as to the probable rise in freights on wool, shippers to Europe and America have already been advised by the oversea companies of an advance, commencing Monday, of ⅛th of 1d, or equivalent to 70/ per ton—surely an abnormal rise, and not justified even under present circumstances. The rate of freight for wool will then be £14 per ton for greasy, with corresponding increase for scoured. Allowing £5 per ton as full current rate for wheat (most of the Government charters are at 95/), and £2 extra for expenses on wool cargoes over and above wheat, this gives £7 per ton as a fair equivalent. Why, then, should wool pay £14? The advance probably means to woolgrowers a reduction of ¼d per lb at the forthcoming Sydney sales.

TEN MILLION WAR LOAN.

The subscription list for the war loan of ten millions sterling closes at the end of the month. All classes of the community, and more especially the well-to-do classes, should fully realise their responsibility to provide the funds with which Australia is to assist in bringing the war to a successful issue. By the end of June next Australia expects to have put into the field approximately 300,000 men, and the equipping and maintenance of this large force will throw upon the Commonwealth Government unprecedented expenditure, which can only be provided for from loan money. Such loan money must be raised within Australia. The privilege of defending our country in person does not fall to every one of us, and those of us who are unable to take a personal part in the great conflict should, wherever our means permit, have a direct personal interest through subscribing to the war loan, and thus assisting the Empire to the utmost of our capacity. From a purely business point of view the loan is an absolutely gilt-edged investment, and has many attractions, including absolute security, and also freedom from State and Commonwealth income tax and stamp duty; and, though the considerations which should induce subscribers to the loan should be primarily patriotic motives, still the additional attraction of a remunerative investment must also be borne in mind.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive in Darling Harbour on Saturday was 913 bales.

At Darling Harbour on Saturday 3712 tons of wheat and 203 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

RAILWAY MARKET.

There was an ordinary Saturday yarding at the Railway Markets on Saturday. The attendance of buyers was fair, but the bidding was very dull and competition at a standstill. As on Friday, but more strongly marked, there was no demand for medium grades, and only slight demand for best quality wheaten and oaten chaff. On the whole, however, the market was a little easier.

The ruling prices were:—Wheaten Chaff: Prime, 5/3, good 4/6 to 4/11. Oaten Chaff: Prime 5/, medium 4/3 to 4/5. Lucerne Hay: 5/6. Prime Oaten Straw: 5/.

There were no potatoes, onions, or wheat for sale.

The truck in position to-day as per manifest were: Forage, 37; grain, 7; potatoes, 2.

The manifested arrivals for Monday are:—Forage, 192; grain 56; potatoes, 6.

Wheaten Chaff.—O'Reilly, Matong (11261), passed, 4/9; Brill, Duraip (19219), 4/11; Horley, Geurie (14253), 4/6; ex Calcairn (17712), 3/11; ex Bowen (2009), 4/1; Bell, Geurie (4577), passed 5/2; ex Brundah (2549), 5/3 per cwt.

Oaten Chaff.—Bullock, Wattamondara (15009), part, 40 bags 5/; (16012), 5/; (223), 5/; Kirkman, Woodstock (15683), 4/5; Death, Watervale (19266), mixed with oaten, 4/3 per cwt.

Lucerne Hay.—Ex Singleton (12088), 5/6; Kanter, Lochinvar (18261), 5/6 per cwt.

Oaten Hay.—Andrews, Narellan (5516), passed 4/ per cwt.

Lucerne Chaff.—Ex Glen Innes (2416), passed 6/ per cwt.

Oaten Straw.—Ex Albury (17681), 5/ per cwt.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

The market was rather dull on Saturday. There was a better demand for French beans, choice lots bringing up to 4/6 per bushel. Marrows and cucumbers were plentiful and cheap, but there were not many choice tomatoes offering. There were a few choice lots in the latter from Bora Creek, Gosford, and Niagara Park. The price paid for the best was never more than 6/5 per half-bushel-case. Choice cabbages were also scarce, but there were plenty of inferior grades, which sold as low as 4/ per dozen. The other prices remained unaltered, and the quotations were:—

Cabbages, local, prime 1/6 to 6/, inferior 2/6 to 4/; Melbourne, prime 4/ to 5/; vegetable marrows, 3/ to 5/; lettuce, 1/ to 1/6 per dozen; carrots, 2/ to 2/6; parsley, 2/6 to 3/; white turnips, 3/ to 3/6; beetroot, 2/9 to 3/; watercress, 2/ to 2/6; mint, 1/ to 1/3; herbs, 1/ to 1/6; spinach, 1/6 to 2/; eschalots, 1/ to 1/6; rhubarb, 3/ to 4/; parsnips, 3/ to 3/6; celery, 2/6 to 3/; radishes, /9 to 1/; asparagus, 6/ to 10/ per doz. bunches; onions, local, Silverskins, 8/ to 10/; Brown Spanish, 4/ to 7/6; Melbourne white, 2/ to 4/ per cwt; French beans, local, choice 2/ to 4/6 per bushel; peas, local, choice, 6/ to 8/, inferior 3/6 to 5/6; Melbourne, 4/ to 6/; Tasmanian 4/ to 8/, per bushel; potatoes, Tasmanian Bismarcks (new) 16/6 to 17/, Victorian, Pinkeyes, 15/ to 16/, Western Australian Up-to-date, new Early Rose 18/, Up-to-dates 18/ to 20/; sweet potatoes, 10/ to 12/ per cwt; tomatoes, 4/ to 6/5 per half-bushel case; chillies, 7/ to 8/ per box; cucumbers, /9 to 1/3 per doz, good to 3/ per half-bushel-case and 10/ to 12/ per sack.

EMMAVILLE, Sunday.

Shortage of water has caused Bismuth and Butters (Torrington) to close down after a very short run. About 40 employees were put off.

Bourke's Hill resumed sluicing last week with one plant, and most of the small syndicates are sluicing on payable ground. The erection of the new plant at Y Water is proceeding satisfactorily, and in the near future sluicing will be resumed.

The report of the Block 14 Torrington (No Liability) for the fortnight ended December 22, 1915, states that at Fielder's Hill Mine No. - level crosscut was extended 12ft, to a total of 94ft from shaft, the face carrying granite of no value. During the same period the mill ran 268 hours, crushing 1690 tons, assaying 2.83 per cent. Wo/3 and .054 Bi, which yielded 4 tons 10cwt concentrates, assaying 66.75 per cent. Wo/3 and 4.47 per cent Bi.

The manager of the Sulphide Corporation, Ltd., reports for the week ended December 15, 1915, that at the Central Mine, Broken Hill, the ore milled amounted to 3209 tons, the concentrates produced 682 tons. The assay of concentrates resulted:—Silver 39.0oz, lead 61.8 per cent., zinc 8.4 per cent. At the Cockle Creek Works 434 tons of bullion were produced, containing 4380oz of gold and 31,784oz silver.

FRENCH'S FOREST.

A DISAPPOINTING MUSTER.

SMALL WORKING BEE.

There was a splendid response on New Year's Day to Dr. Arthur's appeal for voluntary workers to initiate the work of clearing the 30 odd allotments set aside at French's Forest as farms for returned soldiers. On that occasion there were upwards of 150 willing helpers organised into working bees, and an enthusiasm was shown that promised well for the success of the scheme. The second muster was called for Saturday, but for some reason there were only 26 workers to make up the day's quota; while of these half a dozen were veterans who had passed the three-score age limit, and only a small proportion of young men put in an appearance. Dr. Arthur felt that this patriotic work of preparing farms for men who had served their country at the front (and were not able to resume strenuous callings) would have made an appeal to the young men of Sydney, and prompted them to join working bees to assist their less fortunate, but more heroic brothers, by preparing the farms to be made available at French's Forest. It may, however, be that many willing workers were not aware of the opportunities offering to carry out the work Dr. Arthur voluntarily undertook to organise. It is hoped this excuse will now be removed, and that next Saturday there will be a full muster—Dr. Arthur desires 200 workers—because the system of clearing and breaking in the land is well in train, so that the best use can now be made of every available man. An appeal is also made to owners of motor cars and launches to assist in carrying working bees to and from French's Forest. Dr. Arthur requires more tents for the accommodation of helpers who are prepared to camp on the land for a week or more, and spend their time in carrying on the useful work. Anniversary Day (January 26) will afford another opportunity for city men to put their holiday to a patriotic use, as arrangements are being made to commence the building of two cottages. Therefore, amateur craftsmen who are not partial to plying a maddock or axe may be utilised in constructive work. Several rifle club secretaries and the Amateur Fishermen's Association, have expressed their intentions of starting working bees at French's Forest. Probably force of example will bring forth other projects to assist on Dr. Arthur's scheme, and hasten the settlement of soldiers on the land. There are already a number of applications in for soldiers' farms.

PERSONAL NOTES.

AUSTRALIANS AT THE FRONT.

SAPPER W. W. JONES.

Sapper Wilfred W. Jones, who was killed on October 17 at Lone Pine, was born at Emu Plains, and was only 19 years of age. At the time of enlistment he was employed at Isherwood and Bartlett's warehouse, York-street.

PRIVATE A. E. SALMON.

Private Albert E. Salmon, who died of wounds at Gallipoli on December 3, aged 23, was the only son of the late Albert E. Salmon. He was educated at the Crown-street Superior Public School, and was for nine years with the firm of P. J. Firth, Ltd. He enlisted in June last, joining the 3rd Reinforcements to the 20th Battalion. He left for the front in August, and was wounded on December 2.

PRIVATE C. W. MORRIS.

Private C. W. Morris (3rd Battalion), who is reported seriously wounded and missing, was the eldest son of Sergeant Morris, of Gosford, and received his wounds in the Lone Pine engagement of August 6. Prior to this he had been wounded in the landing of April 25, and it was not until late in November that his parents received official communication regarding him. Private Morris, who spent his twenty-first birthday in the trenches, was a fine athlete and runner, and was among the first to offer his services.

PRIVATE W. WHITEFORD.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Whiteford, of English-street, Kogarah, have received a cablegram informing them of their son's illness. Private W. Whiteford (13th Battalion 5th Brigade) was five months in the trenches. He was taken to Lemnos Hospital in September for rest, when he contracted bronchitis. He disembarked at Malta on September 26.

OLD GOLD FUND.

FIRST SALE OF ARTICLES.

The committee of the Old Gold and Silver War Fund, of which the Chief Justice is the president, held the first sale at one of Paling's ticket-counters on Saturday morning. The two hon. secretaries, Miss M. W. Bird and Mr. J. S. Richardson, sold a number of "complete articles," which had been sent to the committee rooms and head receiving depot, City Mutual-chambers, 62 Hunter-street, in response to the appeal for "old or broken gold and silver."

Mr. Richardson stated on Saturday that more than a thousand articles had been received, including very old gold and silver watches, antiques of all kinds, snuff boxes, nuggets of gold, precious stones, cut and uncut rings, brooches, cigarette cases, and silver cups with interesting inscriptions. Several fine specimens of brasswork had also been presented. It is the intention to make the ticket counter at Paling's a receiving as well as a selling depot. The fund is for the benefit of Australian soldiers, and the proceeds will be divided among the war chest and sheepskin waistcoat funds, and such other war funds as the committee may decide.

Mr. J. Russell French and Mr. H. H. Massie, general managers of the Bank of New South Wales and the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, who are the vice-presidents of the fund, have consented to suburban and country branches acting as branch receiving depots. Packets may therefore be sent to or left at any suburban or country branch of the Bank of New South Wales or the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney.

TRYING WEATHER.

NO CHANGE IN SIGHT.

Warm to hot and sultry weather prevailed on Saturday almost generally throughout the State. Along parts of the coast and Central western districts the skies were heavily clouded, but elsewhere the weather was fine and bright.

Indications on Saturday did not favour any decided change in the type of weather prevailing over Eastern Australia. A great anti-cyclone extends over the sea-board districts from Thursday Island to Gabo, and remains almost stationary, with the result that warm, moist northerly winds prevail in Eastern Australia, and the monsoonal depression over the central parts of the continent is prevented from moving eastward, and its influence is limited to the production of scattered thunderstorms. The other States also are experiencing hot dry weather fairly generally.

The rainfall reports received on Saturday morning showed that light scattered rain and thunderstorms occurred in the south-eastern quarter of New South Wales, and at a few isolated places elsewhere, the principal falls being Jindabyne 144 points, Cooma 56 points, and Adaminaby 55 points.

In Sydney, Saturday was warm and sultry, and at 1 p.m. the temperature was 80.8, and the humidity 65 per cent.

Up to 9 p.m. yesterday 2 points of rain were registered in Sydney.

AMERICA.

NAVAL RIVALRY.

America's naval policy was referred to in a recent speech by Lord Rosebery, as Chancellor of the University of London, presiding at a series of five Rhodes lectures by Professor J. H. Morgan, on "The War and the Political Unity of the Empire."

Lord Rosebery pointed out that "the signature of Prussia to any instrument of any kind had lost all value for any measurable distance of time, which we may contemplate. But this general distrust must go beyond Prussia. After what we have seen, no nation will feel itself safe which bases its apprehension of peace on anything but some material guarantee of its own. In the long vista that means force.

"I do not know anything more discouraging than the announcement that the one great country, which was so remote and so powerful, that one might think it might free itself from the hideous and bloody burden of war—the United States—is about to embark on a huge armada destined to be equal to our own, or second only to our own. It means that the burden will continue on all other nations, and be increased exactly in proportion to the fleet of the United States. I confess that that is a disheartening prospect—that so great and intelligent a nation, and one so happily remote, should voluntarily take up the burden which after the war will have been found almost to have broken our backs."

TURNING THE TABLES.

BRITISH AIRMAN'S FEAT.

An extraordinary story is related by the Boulogne correspondent of the London "Daily Telegraph."

During the early hours of a November morning a British flight commander went up in his machine on a reconnaissance trip. When over the German lines his engine suddenly stopped, and he was forced to descend in the enemy's positions.

As soon as he came to a standstill on the ground he was surrounded by German soldiers, with fixed bayonets, and when he got down from his seat two German officers approached him and told him in French to give up his arms. He was then ordered immediately to repair his engine, and was given every assistance by the officers.

When the motor was once again in working order, the two German officers told the British airman to get into his machine. The aviator did as he was told, but took the precaution of strapping himself in.

The officers proceeded to get into the machine behind him, each holding a revolver, and the aviator was told to fly over the British lines. The machine was soon high up in the air, midway between the two sets of trenches.

Suddenly the airman gave a quick turn to the wheel, and the machine "looped the loop." The two German officers, who were not in any way strapped in, at once fell out of the aeroplane, and the British airman, righting himself with ease, proceeded on his way to the English lines.

MAILS BY MOTOR.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

In pursuance of his policy to establish a Government motor service—to carry mails and cater for the passenger traffic in districts where contracts are now let to private firms—the Postmaster-General (Mr. Webster) is asking the Deputy-Postmaster-Generals in the various States to furnish him with details of all motor service contracts amounting to over £500 a year, together with an indication of the cost of running the service, and the number of passengers usually carried by the contractors.

Mr. Webster is making these inquiries as a preliminary to a closer investigation of the whole position, to see whether the taking over of the services by the Government is not imperative in the interests of the public. "I am not going to see the people plundered," he said on Saturday. "If there is going to be a monopoly, then let it be for the people, and not for any particular firm."

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

During the 24 hours ended 9 a.m. Saturday, a very pronounced development occurred in the pressure distribution in Australia and the surrounding seas.

At 9 a.m. on Saturday an extensive inland depression was shown over all Central Australia, being practically embraced by isobars of a huge high pressure, with the central part (or highest barometric values) over the Southern Ocean, from the Leeuwin eastward to the Tasman Sea.

At the present time, however, the depression is so shallow (containing only one isobar) as to favour heat and sultriness rather than good rains, although scattered thunderstorms should be experienced during the next day or two. But much depends on the future developments and movement of this relatively low pressure area, for intensification would in all probability result in cloud formation and some important rains in the eastern States.

An intense form of disturbance is now shown over New Caledonia, and is causing south east gales there, and should bring rough seas to parts of the Queensland coast.

COUNTRY NEWS.

BATHURST, Saturday.

Nurse Wyse, former matron at the Bathurst District Hospital, has been on a visit to Bathurst, after having been to Egypt with a hospital ship. The nurse is returning to Egypt shortly on duty.

Nurse Whittaker, who has been on the district hospital staff for about four years, and who possesses an A.T.N.A. certificate, has been promoted head nurse at the institution in succession to Nurse Hogg, who has been elevated to the position of matron.

Mr. W. C. Keik has decided to relinquish the position of a member of the local land board, which office he has held in a lay capacity for the past 30 years.

COFF'S HARBOUR, Sunday.

For the third time within the past few months the State Government has imported large cargoes of softwoods. The latest arrived on Monday by the American four-masted barquentine Echo, from Pattan, Pacific Coast. She brings 878,000 feet of timber.

LITHGOW, Sunday.

Since the holidays, the local coal trade has been about the same as for many weeks. The West supply of empties has been a little more satisfactory. It is stated that many of the men have not yet returned since the Christmas holidays, and their absence has interfered with the output.

ORANGE, Sunday.

The office of the central branch of the A.W.U. has been removed to Sydney, where it is estimated that 4000 members of the branch reside.

At present £100,000 worth of work is being carried out in Orange, inclusive of £45,000 for additional water supply, £45,000 for sewerage, and £10,000 worth of municipal work, which includes £3600 for the remodelling of the gas works.

PARKES, Sunday.

Mr. S. W. Down, of Apsley Shire has been appointed engineer to the Goobang Shire Council.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

The Australian Trotting Club holds a meeting on the Victoria Park racecourse this afternoon, and a highly interesting programme has been provided for the occasion. A number of high-class performers are engaged, large fields seem assured, and as the track is excellent going, the sport should be well worth witnessing. Special trams run from Circular Quay and the Railway-square loop to the racecourse gates, the ordinary traffic to Zetland will also be available, and the first event starts at 2.30 p.m.

Entries will be received up to 4 p.m. to-day by the secretary, Mr. A. H. Hart, for the half-dozen events on the card for the Kembla Grange Racing Club's meeting on the 18th instant.

The weights for the Warwick Farm January meeting are promised this forenoon.

There was nothing in the previous performances of the Featherstitch filly, Inverkip, to entitle her to the position of hot favourite in a field of 22 for the Maiden Handicap at Canterbury Park, on Saturday, but when she left the paddock only a shade of odds was available against her, while the best supported of the others was the Ayr Laddie filly Related. Neither, however, got a situation, for Lone Gull, who was one of the first to get going, never left the issue in doubt, and scored comfortably from the Mooltan filly, Eastern Pearl, and the Orcus gelding, Orclad, who were separated by a length. The favourite was just beaten out of a place, and the second favourite was never in the hunt. The winner, who is an English-bred mare, imported by the Eumaralla studmaster, Mr. H. R. Denison, is by The Gull from Faraway, by Eagar, and is trained at Randwick by J. Tuckerman.

Nominations for the seven events on the card for the pony and galloway meeting to be held at Victoria Park racecourse on Saturday next, close with the secretary, Mr. H. Coberoft, at 5 p.m. to-day. The prize money aggregates 700 sovs., equally distributed over seven events.

Backers made no mistake in sending Smoky out at the head of the market quotations for the Nursery Handicap in a field of 14, at Canterbury Park, on Saturday, for, holding a good position from the start, she turned for home in line with Lounoody and Kilmarnock, and silencing opposition as they neared the half-distance, scored easily from Dandelion and Earl Desmond, with Lounoody next. The winner is the property of Mr. Leslie English, who purchased her at the Melbourne yearling sales for 200 guineas. She is by that good sire, The Welkin (imp.), from Cape Hatteras (imp.), by William the Third (son of St. Simon), from Hattie, by Kendal, from Skarte, by Silvester, and was bred in Victoria by Mr. E. E. D. Clarke. Smoky is an inmate of Kelso's stable, and was piloted by G. Meddick. Dandelion, who finished second, is by Featherstitch from Flower of the Field (imp.), by Winkfield from Flordelice, by Martagon, was bred by Messrs. Main Brothers, and brought 100 guineas as a yearling; while Earl Desmond, who filled third place, is by Earlston (imp.), from Desmine (imp.), by Desmond from Dauda, by Wild Fowler, was bred at the Combadello stud by Messrs. Moses Bros., and was sold as a yearling for 200 guineas.

The Featherstitch mare Herringbone was in such strong demand for the New Year's Gift at Canterbury Park on Saturday that in a field that was one short of a dozen she left the paddock at a slight shade of odds on, and, taking charge at an early stage, she never caused her backers any uneasiness, for she won with consummate ease from the second favourite, Linera, with Chantry (a stable mate of Lone Gull) in the other situation. The winner is engaged in the A.J.C. Challenge Stakes with 7st 12lb, or 4lb less than she carried on Saturday, and her success does not incur a penalty. Linera, who ran second, and Chantry, who finished third, are also engaged in the Challenge Stakes with 7st 8lb and 6st 12lb respectively, and St. Bavon, who also took part in the race, is similarly engaged with 6st 7lb. Linera carried 2lb, Chantry 4lb, and St. Bavon 2lb more than they will have to put up in the six furlongs race at Randwick.

There were 11 starters for the Stewards' Mile at Canterbury Park on Saturday, the most fancied of whom was Flamboyant, who was closely followed in the market quotations by Miss Sylvanite, Balustrade, and Rualma, while several others were marketable at more expansive prices. Nothing, however, had a chance with Rualma, who led from the jump to the judge's box, and scored easily from Balustrade, while the favourite was never in the hunt. The winner is a four years old gelding by Ruenalf from Mount Alma, by Lennox from Mount Royal, by Blue Mountain, and was bred at the Belltrees stud. He is engaged in the A.J.C. Challenge Stakes with 7st 5lb, and does not incur a penalty.

At Canterbury Park on Saturday the topweight, Toa Tere, was sent out an even-money favourite for the principal event, the Canterbury Handicap, in a field of five, and the son of Maniapoto justified his position in the market by taking charge about half a mile from home and scoring comfortably at the end from Kenilera and the imported mare Value, after Emden had set the pace for more than half the journey. Toa Tere is not engaged in the A.J.C. Anniversary Handicap, but Kenilera is weighted in that event with 6st 10lb, or 2lb less than she carried on Saturday, when she had the benefit of the apprentice's allowance, 3lb; and Value, who ran third, is similarly engaged with 6st 8lb, or 4lb less than her Saturday's burden.

The Park Stakes at Canterbury Park on Saturday attracted a field of 15, and the popular selection was Kagal, while Maidan was the only other supported with any degree of confidence. Backers had sized up the situation fairly well, for the pair had the settlement of the question between them from the home turn, and Maidan proved successful after an interesting battle. The winner, who carried the livery of C. Gallimore, is a three years old filly, by Persian Knight (imp.) from Malva, by Malua from Mulpra, by King of the Ring, and was bred by Mr. R. C. Allen at the South Wambo stud.

PLACE BETTING IN VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

The V.R.C. Committee, at its meeting on Friday, had under consideration the rules governing place betting. In the past, every bookmaker who indulges in place betting has done so under his own rules, and that frequently led to disputes which were referred to the club for settlement. The V.R.C. Committee adopted the English rule, which provides that when there are seven starters in a race, only the first and second horses must be paid, and when there are eight or more starters, three places must be paid. All the other clubs in this State are likely to follow the lead of the V.R.C. in the matter.

CANTERBURY PARK RACE CLUB.

JANUARY MEETING.

HERRINGBONE WINS NEW YEAR'S GIFT.

TOA TERE THE CANTERBURY HANDICAP.

The Canterbury Park January Meeting was held on Saturday in fine but very sultry weather, but the conditions did not prevent a large gathering of sporting folk. The track was excellent going, and the card was run through without accident or unpleasantness. With the exception of that for the principal event the fields were of goodly proportions, wagering was about as usual, and, though a 20 to 1 chance won the opening event, backers were pretty well on the mark for the rest of the card, first favourites winning three events, and the successful horses in the other two races were stanchly backed. The general arrangements were carried out efficiently under the supervision of the secretary, Mr. W. L. Davis. The details of the racing are subjoined:—

MAIDEN HANDICAP of 100 sovs.; second horse 20 sovs., and third horse 5 sovs. from the prize. 6f.
Mr. H. R. Denison's ch m Lone Gull (imp.), by The Gull—Faraway, 4yrs, all. 7lb, carr. 7st 2lb (F. Wilkinson) ... 1
Mr. O. Israel's b f Eastern Pearl, 3yrs, 7st 8lb (K. Bracken) ... 2
Mr. J. Power's b g Orclad, 4yrs, 8st (B. Dickson) ... 3

Other starters: Quinologist, all. 7lb, carr. 8st (L. Bragg); Orra, all. 7lb, carr. 7st 3lb (W. H. Newton); Khaf, inc. 2lb over, carr. 7st 12lb (H. Dorington); Silentia (J. Reynolds); Tartan Queen, inc. 3lb over, carr. 7st 10lb (H. Curran); Lovely Night, inc. 2lb over, carr. 7st 9lb (W. Lillyman); Resby, all. 5lb, carr. 7st (W. Dines); Hellothar, (F. Russell); Petury, all. 7lb, carr. 7st 7lb, inc. 3lb over (R. Maxwell); Courante (M. Madden); Volt Ilario (F. Foley); Inverkip (G. Meddick); Paradalf, inc. 5lb over, carr. 7st 8lb (P. Maher); Lattice Work, all. 5lb, carr. 6st 12lb (D. Rosen); Unanimous, all. 3lb, carr. 7st 3lb (G. Pinn); Related, all. 5lb, carr. 6st 8lb (S. Meekings); Mortdale, all. 5lb, carr. 6st 7lb (W. Simpson); Lilyholme, all. 5lb, carr. 8st 7lb (A. Walker); Harmonist Lady, all. 3lb, carr. 8st 9lb (H. Webster).

Betting: 6 to 4 v Inverkip, 4 to 1 v Related, 8 to 1 each v Orclad, Volt Ilario, and Petury, 10 to 1 v Eastern Pearl, 15 to 1 each v Paradalf and Unanimous, 20 to 1 each v Lone Gull, Khaf, Resby, Hellothar, Lovely Night, Orra, and Quinologist, 25 to 1 v others.

Eastern Pearl and Lone Gull moved off in front, and at the end of the first furlong the latter was leading from Eastern Pearl, Orclad, and the favourite. Passing the half-mile post Lone Gull was a couple of lengths in front of Eastern Pearl and Orclad, after whom came Courante and Hellothar. Lone Gull came round the bend just clear from Courante, Eastern Pearl, Inverkip, and Orclad. Courante faded out of it as they turned for home, and Lone Gull was followed into the straight by Eastern Pearl, Inverkip, Courante, and Orclad. Lone Gull held her own in the run home, and won by two lengths from Eastern Pearl, with Orclad a length away third. Inverkip was fourth, followed by Lattice Work, Courante, Related, and Harmonist Lady, with Khaf and Orra in the rear. Time, 1m 15½s.

NURSERY HANDICAP of 100 sovs., second horse 20 sovs and third 5 sovs from the prize. 5f.
Mr. Leslie English's b f Smoky, by The Welkin (imp.)—Cape Hatteras (imp.), 8st 3lb (G. Meddick) ... 1
Mr. D. U. Seaton's b f Dandelion, 7st 12lb (J. Lightfoot) ... 2
Messrs. H. J. Winten and W. Glasson's b c Earl Desmond, 7st 12lb (W. Barnett) ... 3

Other starters: Queen Clarit, 8st 8lb (W. M'Cabe); Royal Salute, 8st 7lb (M. Madden); Lord Sucre, 8st 7lb [illegible]; Kilmarnock, 8st 4lb (J. M'Keown); Kilmarnock, [illegible]

nock, 8st 4lb (W. Doyle); Almond Cake, 8st 2lb (R. Maxwell); O'Leary, 8st 2lb (M. Connell); Lounoody, 8st 1lb (J. Reynolds); Maid of Ayr, 8st 1lb (F. Wilkinson); Airy Mary, 8st (F. Lohden); Native Belle, 7st 10lb (F. Foley).

Betting: 6 to 4 v Smoky, 6 to 1 v Earl Desmond, Kilmarnock, and Queen Clarit, 7 to 1 v Lounoody, 10 to 1 v O'Leary, 15 to 1 v Dandelion, 20 to 1 v others.

Lounoody and Kilmarnock were the first into their strides, and when they reached the half-mile post Lounoody was still in charge from Smoky, Kilmarnock, and Dandelion. Lounoody held her own to the bend, where Kilmarnock drew up on terms, and the pair had Smoky at their heels; then, after a gap of two lengths, came Dandelion, Earl Desmond, and O'Leary. Lounoody, Kilmarnock, and Smoky turned for home in line, and they were still together at the distance, but inside that point the favourite took command, and won by two lengths from Dandelion, who was a similar distance in front of Earl Desmond. Lounoody was a head away fourth, followed by Queen Clarit, Kilmarnock, Scythian, and O'Leary, with Airy Mary last. Time, 1m 4s.

NEW YEAR'S GIFT, a handicap of 100 sovs., second horse 20 sovs., and third horse 5 sovs. from the prize. 6f.
Mr. H. S. Rich's ch m Herringbone, by Featherstitch (imp.)—Tranquility, 5yrs, 8st 2lb (A. Wood) ... 1
Mr. W. Booth's b f Linera, 3yrs, 7st 10lb (W. Lillyman) ... 2
Mr. H. R. Denison's b c Chantry, 3yrs, all. 5lb, carried 6st 11lb (S. Meekings) ... 3

Other starters: Salue, all. 5lb, carr. 7st 7lb (M. Madden); Miss Persian, 7st 9lb (Bracken); Collar Box, all. 5lb, carr. 6st 12lb (W. Simpson); Brilliants, all. 5lb, carr. 6st 11lb, inc. 2lb over (W. Kirkton); Without, 6st 10lb (F. Russell); St. Bavon, 6st 9lb (L. Siely); Molly Dear, 6st 7lb (T. Rooke); Vif, 6st 7lb (F. Foley).

Betting: 5 to 4 on Herringbone, 9 to 2 v Chantry, 6 to 1 v Linera, 12 to 1 v Salue, 15 to 1 v Miss Persian and Collar Box, 25 to 1 v others.

Miss Persian was first away from Linera and Herringbone, but at the end of the first furlong Herringbone and Molly Dear were together in front, followed by Without and Linera. Passing the half-mile post, Herringbone was in command from Linera, Without, Chantry, and Brilliants. Without change they came round the bend, and Herringbone turned for home, with Linera, Without, and Chantry in pursuit. Herringbone was not afterwards troubled, and won easily by four lengths from Linera, who was a couple in front of Chantry. Brilliants was fourth, followed by Collar Box, Without, and Miss Persian, while the others were whipped in by Molly Dear. Time, 1m 14¼s.

STEWARDS' MILE of 100 sovs., second horse 20 sovs., and third horse 5 sovs. from the prize.
Mr. J. A. Dunn's br g Rualma, by Ruenalf—Mount Alma, 4yrs, 9st (R. Maher) ... 1
Mr. J. H. Andrew's br g Balustrade, 6yrs, 8st 7lb (M. Connell) ... 2
Mr. E. F. Walker's ch m Lalla, 5yrs, 8st 9lb (L. Walker) ... 3

Other starters: Guncar, 9st 6lb (A. Wood); Miss Sylvanite, 9st 2lb (W. M'Lachlan); Flamboyant, all. 5lb, carr. 8st 5lb (S. Meekings); Cavan Boy, 8st 9lb (W. M'Cabe); Box Seat, 8st 7lb (H. Malcolm); Blackacre, all. 7lb, carr. 7st 10lb (L. Bragg); Phalaris, all. 3lb, carr. 7st 11lb (L. Siely); Poserino, 8st (W. Lillyman).

Betting: 3 to 1 v Flamboyant, 4 to 1 v Miss Sylvanite, 5 to 1 v Balustrade, 6 to 1 v Rualma, 8 to 1 v Guncar, 10 to 1 v Poserino, 12 to 1 v Box Seat, 14 to 1 v Lalla, 20 to 1 v others.

Rualma made play, and passed the judge's box, followed by Blackacre, Guncar, Lalla, and Poserino. Rualma showed the way down the hill by two lengths from Blackacre, and opened up the back stretch with three lengths advantage from Blackacre, Guncar, Lalla, Miss Sylvanite, Box Seat, and Poserino. That order was preserved along the back and past the far corner, and, coming round the bend, Rualma increased his lead to six lengths from Blackacre, Miss Sylvanite, Guncar, and Balustrade. Balustrade ran into second place at the distance, but could not reach Rualma, who won by nearly three lengths from Balustrade, who was a length and a half in front of Lalla. Blackacre was close up fourth, followed by Cavan Boy, Guncar, Miss Sylvanite, and Flamboyant, with Box Seat in the rear. Time, 1m 43s.

CANTERBURY HANDICAP of 125 sovs; second horse 25 sovs, and third horse 10 sovs from the prize. 1¼m and 100 yds.
Mr. J. Hawkin's br g Toa Tere, by Maniapoto—Gallantry, 6yrs, 9st 3lb (K. Bracken) ... 1
Mr. T. M'Gowan's b f Kenilera, 3yrs, all. 5lb, carr. 7st (S. Meekings) ... 2
Mr. H. Hamer's ch m Value (imp.), 4yrs, 6st 12lb (G. Meddick) ... 3

Other starters: Emden, 8st 7lb (J. Mayo); Dave Whitton, 6st 10lb, inc. 3lb over (W. M'Cabe).

Betting: Even money on Toa Tere, 7 to 4 v Kenilera, 9 to 2 v Value, 20 to 1 v Emden and Dave Whitton.

Emden and Value moved off in front, followed by Toa Tere, with Dave Whitton next and Kenilera last; and so they came round the bend and down the running. Emden passing the judge's box, with Value at his heels, Toa Tere and Dave Whitton next, and Kenilera still in the rear. Toa Tere moved up to the heels of Emden as they raced down the hill, and they were followed along the back by Kenilera and Value. At the far corner the favourite took charge from Emden and Kenilera, with Value four lengths away. Kenilera moved up to the girths of the favourite as they rounded the bend; and so they turned for home, with Value and Emden in pursuit. Kenilera tackled Toa Tere at the distance, but the New Zealander had plenty in hand, and, coming on, won by a length from Kenilera, who was a couple of lengths in advance of Value. Emden was eight lengths off, and a couple in front of Dave Whitton. Time, 2m 16¼s.

PARK STAKES, of 100 sovs; second horse 20 sovs., and third 5 sovs. from the prize. 1m.
Mr. C. Gallimore's br f Maidan, by Persian Knight (imp.)—Malva, 3yrs, 7st 3lb (G. Meddick) ... 1
Mr. F. Williams' br or blk f Kagal, 3yrs, 7st 9lb (W. Lillyman) ... 2
Mr. D. U. Seaton's ch h Tawdry, 4yrs, 7st 9lb (J. Lightfoot) ... 3

Other starters: Trouen, 9st (C. Keir); Lochform, all. 7lb, carr. 7st 9lb (H. Webster); Bright Ray, all. 7lb, carr. 7st 2lb, inc. 2lb over (J. Toohey); Noceur, all. 7lb, carr. 6st 13lb (L. Bragg); Dick Wedgewood, all. 7lb, carr. 6st 13lb (R. Maxwell); Earl Grafton, 7st 3lb (J. Reynolds); Wolma, 7st 2lb (F. Foley); Caesium, all. 5lb, carr. 6st 8lb (S. Meekings); Bright Orange, 6st 12lb (W. M'Cabe); Ennispona, 6st 12lb (F. Russell); Barnstormer, all. 2lb, carr. 6st 7lb (D. Hickson); More Fun, 6st 7lb (W. Simpson).

Betting: 5 to 4 v Kagal, 4 to 1 v Maidan, 10 to 1 each v Tawdry and Caesium, 12 to 1 each v Lochform and Wolma, 20 to 25 to 1 v others.

Lochform, Caesium, and More Fun moved off in advance, and Caesium passed the judge's box with Dick Wedgewood and Kagal almost on terms, and followed by Lochform and Maidan. Caesium showed the way down the hill from Dick Wedgewood, Lochform, and Kagal; and Caesium and Maidan opened up the back stretch just in advance of Dick Wedgewood, Kagal, and Lochform. That order was preserved along the back to the far corner, where Maidan shook off Caesium, and came round the bend two lengths from Caesium, Kagal, and Lochform. Maidan turned for home with Kagal, Lochform, and Tawdry in pursuit, and from the distance the issue lay between Maidan and Kagal, the former winning by half a length, with Tawdry four lengths away. Earl Grafton was fourth, followed by Lochform, Caesium, and Noceur, with Dick Wedgewood and Bright Ray at the tail of the hunt. Time, 1m 43¾s.

ROSEBERY RACING CLUB.

OSFIELD WINS MILE HANDICAP.

The pony and galloway fixture at Rosebery on Saturday was well attended. The feature of the meeting was the closeness of the finishes in three of the races. S. R. won the Fourteen-one Handicap by half a head from Agnes May; Elsie Phast in the Flying Handicap beat Schottische half a head, Canley being a head away third. In the Fourteen-two Handicap Real Silk, Kitty Pie, and Fireglow finished in that order. Again the judge's verdict was "half a head and a head." In the Maiden Handicap Royal Glory, Liable, and Padova fell near the turn. William Walker, who was riding Padova, sustained severe concussion. The stewards cancelled the license of W. T. Moore, an apprentice, who rode Royal Glory. Details:—

Maiden Handicap of 100 sovs., second 15 and third 10 from the prize; 5½f.—B g Pymble, by Cuneiform—St. Swithin mare, 3yrs, 7st 9lb, inc. 2lb over (T. Moulden), 1; b or br g Lord Ibex, 3yrs, all. 7lb, car. 7st (J. Strachan), 2; b f Haughty Ena, 3yrs, 9st (B. Porter), 3. Other starters: Miss Bunty, all 7lb, car. 8st 3lb; Royal Glory, all 7lb, car. 8st 1lb (fell); Location, 8st 3lb; Lady Yuel, 8st; Liable, 7st 12lb (fell); Helvinia, all. 7lb, car. 7st 2lb; Catina, 7st 9lb; Brewery Girl, 7st 7lb; Turfite, 7st 7lb; Denbigh, 7st 7lb; Ardilly, 7st 7lb; Padova, 7st 8lb (fell); and Silver Arm, 7st 3lb. Betting: 2 to 1 v Pymble, 4 to 1 v Haughty Ena, 5 to 1 v Lady Yuel, 7 to 1 each v Ardilly and Royal Glory, 10 to 1 v Brewery Girl, 12 to 1 v Lord Ibex, 15 to 25 to 1 each v the others. Won by three lengths, a neck between second and third.

At Centennial Park Kiora beat Lewisham Juniors, 14-11.

GOLF.

PROFESSIONALS BEAT AMATEURS.

A match which attracted much attention and was keenly contested was decided at Manly on Saturday, when the two Manly professionals, Messrs. Soutar and Kirkwood, defeated the chosen amateurs, Messrs. Apperley and Howard, by 1 up. The game was played to help to raise funds for the Manly Cottage Hospital. In the morning the play was 18 holes, best ball, and good golf was the order of the day. Mr. E. L. Apperley was not up to his usual form. He had just returned from the Mountain links at Leura, where he had been spending a holiday. His play at times was brilliant, notwithstanding his spell from Manly links. T. E. Howard played very steady golf. Soutar was not up to his best form, but Kirkwood played excellently.

Details are as follows:—

Soutar and Kirkwood.

Out	4, 4, 3, 3, 5, 3, 2, 4, 4=32
In	4, 5, 4, 2, 4, 3, 3, 4, 5=34
		66

E. L. Apperley and T. E. Howard.

Out	4, 5, 3, 4, 6, 3, 3, 4, 4=36
In	3, 4, 5, 3, 6, 3, 4, 3, 4=35
		71

Soutar and Kirkwood finished 4 up on the morning round.

In the final round of the afternoon the golf was of a very high-class standard. The cards were as follows:—

Soutar and Kirkwood—
Out: 4, 4, 5, 3, 6, 4, 3, 4, 4=37
In: 3, 4, 5, 3, 6, 4, 3, 3, 4=35—72
E. L. Apperly and T. E. Howard—
Out: 3, 5, 3, 5, 5, 4, 3, 3, 4=35
In: 4, 4, 4, 3, 5, 3, 3, 3, 5=34—69

At the tenth the morning lead was reduced to 2 up, and at the fifteenth the match was all square. Soutar holed a 4 at the last, and Apperly and Howard had each putts for a half, but failed to negotiate them, with the result that the professionals claimed victory by 1 up.

With the subsidy offered by Sir Allen Taylor, the Manly Hospital funds should benefit to the extent of £20 or £25.

LAWN TENNIS.

COUNTRY CARNIVAL.

The country carnival was continued on Saturday, the morning being devoted to the men's teams competition, whilst in the afternoon the tournament events were proceeded with. The attendance was good, as is usually the case at this annual country gathering. Amongst those present in khaki were three men prominent in lawn tennis affairs who will soon be leaving Sydney with the expeditionary forces. They were Dr. J. Metcalfe, Dr. Byron Russ, and Mr. L. M. Howell.

Richmond River gained supporters by defeating Tamworth easily, this being the team's third consecutive win. Blair, who came down two years ago, is again playing well. He has a good partner in Avis, who played for Kenilworth Club last season. Trundle I. had the bye, but in future matches will lack the services of C. Todd, who, yielding to medical advice, will take no further part in the carnival. This is hard luck for Trundle, but the competition now becomes much more open.

J. O. Anderson, who had entered, has found it impossible to come to Sydney, and E. J. Smith has also withdrawn from the events in which he intended to compete.

Some exhibition sets which were played by H. Rice and L. Todd against G. W. Wright and H. Moore were appreciated by the onlookers. Rice and Todd won the first two, but lost the third.

The two visiting teams of ladies—Lithgow and Wollongong—met two Birchgrove sides, victory resting with the country players in each of them.

The results were:—

SAILING.

A LIGHT DAY.

The second half of the sailing season was commenced on Saturday afternoon, when the breeze veered between ESE and ENE. The lightness of the breeze did not conduce to spirited racing, but a fine display of kites was made, and the contests were finished in good time. Results:—

18-FOOTERS' PATRIOTIC RACE.

Advance (H. E. Thompson), 5½m, £9 ... 1
Mississippi (R. W. Bodnick), 4½m, £5 ... 2
Desdemona (A. C. Roberts), 9½m, £3 ... 3

Viking (J. Muston) ... 2
Crooee (R. Millard) ... 3

Won by 54s, with 8m 54s between second and third.

NOTES ON THE RACING.

The 21 boats entered for the 18-footers' patriotic race, under the joint auspices of the Sydney Flying Squadron and Sydney Sailing Club, all started, but instead of the skippers listed Boronia was sailed by G. Findlay and Mavis by J. Moppett, both from the skiffs.

At the start the breeze was from ESE, but just when the question was being asked why the working, instead of the leading, handicaps had been given, it backed round somewhat to the north, and on the work thus given to the Sow and Pigs light the longmarkers, Desdemona, Swastika, and Advance, did well, while Golding and Nimrod stood out from the back division, the latter sailing close on Australian, despite this boat's new big, but unstretched, suit of sails.

Desdemona led by 48s at the Sow and Pigs light, the order of the others being Swastika, Advance, Acme, Mississippi, Sunny South, Enid, Golding, Rosetta, Sydney, Pastime, Nimrod, Mavis, Arline, Australian, Quibree, Moyana, Scot, Vision, and Kismet.

Top-sail-head-ballooners were set for the lead to Shark Island, but Nimrod spoilt what looked a splendid chance of getting a place by trying to carry her extra boomed out. The immediate result was that she was relegated from twelfth to fifteenth place before reaching Shark Island, where Advance had supplanted Swastika and Mississippi had displaced Enid, Golding also having improved her position.

The addition of spinnakers and ringtails enhanced the spectacle as the boats ran to Clark Island, and with the three first disputing the lead the contest was at an interesting stage. Advance succeeded in reaching the Clark Island mark first, 18s ahead of Desdemona. Swastika was a close third approaching the mark, but the for'ard hands struck trouble in getting the extras off, and her chance was materially depreciated. She was, however, third round, followed by Mississippi, Enid, Golding, Acme, Sunny South, Rosetta, Pastime, Australian, and the rest.

Golding had sailed so well throughout that there were some who still gave her a chance of winning, but the work to Taylor Bay set all doubts at rest, for Advance, which carried her second suit and a very light crew, continued to sail a great boat, and eased away at the Taylor Bay mark 24s ahead of Desdemona, which in turn was 46s in front of Mississippi, this boat having done very well under her nice new suit. Swastika was fourth, and Golding fifth.

Golding displaced Swastika on the reach to Shark Island, during which the master of the Howard Smith liner Cooma showed commendable consideration by slowing down so as not to interfere with the boats.

On the run to the finish Mississippi passed Desdemona (whose spinnaker was carried too far forward), but could make no impression on Advance, which won by 55s, Mississippi, Desdemona, Golding, and Swastika being followed home by Australian, Enid, Rosetta, Pastime, Sydney, Sunny South, Acme, and Quibree.

PORT HUNTER CLUB.

NEWCASTLE, Sunday.

The second heat of the Port Hunter Sailing Skiff Club's championship took place yesterday, and resulted in an easy win for Edgar (Walters), with Philips (Puckeridge) second, and Linet (Sharman) third. There were 11 starters.

BOXING.

UREN BEATS GILMORE.

Tommy Uren (9st 13½lb) beat Fred. Gilmore (10st 6¼lb) on points in a 20 rounds contest at the Stadium on Saturday. The bout was disappointing, Gilmore failing to act up to the form shown in his training exhibitions. He proved a finished boxer, with a fine defence, but lacked aggressiveness and pace. Uren carried the fight to his taller adversary practically all the time, and won by a big margin, Gilmore being very tired at the finish.

TAYLOR BEATS ELLIS.

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

In a contest held at the Stadium last evening George Taylor (8st 12¼lb) beat Frank Ellis (9st 2lb) in eight rounds. Taylor led all the way. At the end of the eighth round Ellis' seconds threw in the towel.

HOLLAND STOPS SIMPSON.

BRISBANE, Sunday.

After seven hard rounds, Fritz Holland (11st 8lb) defeated Nicol Simpson (11st 4½lb) at the Stadium on Saturday night, the towel coming in from Simpson's corner.

MOTOR CAR BURNT.

BROKEN HILL, Sunday.

While returning from Menindie last night, a motor car caught fire. The occupants were Messrs. O. C. Macdougall, A. C. Macdougall, W. M'Knight, and T. Jobling. The three former were slightly burnt and injured, and lost all their property, including £37 in cash. The car was completely destroyed.

KILLED WHILE WORKING.

JUNEE, Sunday.

At Marina Siding, a few miles from Junee, a railway labourer, travelling on the mail train, threw out a portmanteau full of tools, weighing one hundredweight, the bag striking a man named Spriggs, who was working on the line, full in the face, causing frightful injuries. The sufferer was removed to the Junee Hospital, where death took place to-day. It appears that the owner of the tools intended getting out at Junee, and then returning to Marina, where he was employed. Deceased will be buried in Victoria, where his relatives reside.

LIQUOR CONTROL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your paper of Tuesday morning appeared a letter from Dr. Creed which, I think, should be taken as a serious and valuable contribution to the discussion of the control and reform of the liquor traffic in the Rocks area. Without going into the detail which Dr. Creed has so fully done, I should like to emphasise three principles in his letter. First, there is the direct responsibility of the Government for the best possible administration of the liquor business in the district. The whole matter should be taken up and dealt with as adequately as possible. Second, there is the insistent public demand for reduction of liquor bars, and the feeling that intoxicants are perilous, and should be made less attractive. And, last, Dr. Creed shows how to safeguard the social and club value of the public house, while restricting the use of liquor. The real problems are thus faced, and a capable attempt is made to solve them. The whole question raised deserves early and earnest attention.

I am, etc.,
N. J. COCKS.

THE BEST MOP,

THE "DAVID JONES" POLISH MOP,

6/6.

Commencing To-day Practical Demonstrations just inside Barrack-street Entrance.

In addition to possessing all the advantages of other polish mops, the "David Jones" has one most important and exclusive feature. This is the

"ANY-ANGLE" ATTACHMENT,

by means of which the mop can be used in absolutely any position and at any angle. It consists of a pair of steel Clamps at the end of the handle which are simply and firmly attached to a circular steel knob in the head of the mop. The result is that whether you are cleaning under a bed, reaching up to a picture-rail, or polishing the floor, the slight pressure necessary to move the mop back and forth is borne always in the correct place, viz., the centre of the head.
The "David Jones" Mop is triangular in shape, thus having the advantage over the ordinary round style of getting easily and surely into corners.

"DAVID JONES" POLISH.

This polish is a vegetable compound, and therefore not of a sticky nature; it produces on linoleums and hardwood floors a brilliant and lasting shine, and can be safely and effectively used on pianos and all classes of polished furniture. When the mop requires cleaning you simply wash it in boiling soap suds with the addition of a little soda or borax, dry thoroughly, then apply a small quantity of the polish as directed and it will be found equally as good as new.

A PERSONAL INVITATION.

To realise the many advantages of the "David Jones" mop over other patterns it is necessary to see a practical demonstration, therefore we specially invite all who are interested to call and see it in use, ask any questions concerning it, and, in fact, actually try it yourself.
This is a personal invitation from David Jones, Ltd. You will not be pressed to purchase, nor need feel the least obligation whatever.
Demonstrations commence this morning on Ground Floor, close to Barrack-street entrance.

THE "DAVID JONES" POLISH MOP, COMPLETE IN STRONG CASE, ALSO 55-INCH HANDLE, 6/6.

THE "DAVID JONES" POLISH IN 4OZ BOTTLES, 10½d EACH; IN 12OZ BOTTLES, 1/9.

We do not pay carriage on Polish Mops, but deliver free in City and Suburbs.

SMART COSTUMES.

WE HAVE A CHOICE ASSORTMENT OF VERY CHIC READY-TO-WEAR COSTUMES IN WARM WEATHER TEXTURES.
THEY ARE ELEGANTLY MADE, STYLISHLY CUT, and FINISHED OFF IN OUR WELL-KNOWN AND POPULAR FASHION.
WE STOCK THEM IN ALL SIZES, and
THE PRICES THROUGHOUT ARE VERY REASONABLE, AS A GLANCE AT THE SUBJOINED LIST WILL SHOW.
HERE ARE SIX LINES CULLED AT RANDOM FROM THE VERY EXTENSIVE STOCK.
IT WILL PAY YOU TO COME and INSPECT THE STOCK.

SMART COSTUMES.

A NEAT ROBE, in plain Navy or Spotted Cambric (as desired). Bodice is made with Raglan sleeves, and has smartly-shaped collar piped with white. Plain skirt, giving the new fashionable fulness.
Sizes, S.W., W., and O.S., 8/6.
DRESSY COAT AND SKIRT, suitable for matron, in Mercerised Poplin of excellent quality. The coat is very stylishly made with belt at back and front, and military collar of coloured Tartan Silk, which also finished the turn-back cuffs. Plain skirt, with slight fulness at back. Supplied in Navy, Black, or Biscuit coloured.
Sizes, S.W., W., or O.S. style, 37/6.
CHIC SUMMER COSTUME, in light washing Crepe. The coat is smartly cut, and has collar rising high at back, while the new shaped vest, belt and cuffs are of checked Crepe to contrast effectively with material. A tucked seam down front on skirt forms its only trimming, while the slight fulness at the back is caught at waist with strap and buckle. In Saxe Blue, Tan, Navy, Biscuit, in S.S.W., S.W., W., and O.S., 21/9.
STYLISH LITTLE AFTERNOON ROBE, in striped washing Crepe. The skirt is made to fall in graceful folds, while the bodice has set-in sleeves, finished at wrist with neat turnback cuffs. A very neat vest of plain white Crepe, and roll collar at neck, help to make the gown look very smart.
In S.S.W., W., and O.S., 10/9. Also supplied in plain crepe, various shades.
A BECOMING GOWN, most suitable for matron, nicely made of soft foulard, which lends slightness to the figure. A dainty white muslin vest, and hemstitched collar and cuffs to correspond adorn the bodice, which folds over near waist with a large button. Smartly-cut skirt, with panel back and front. In Navy with white spots, or Black with white spots, 27/6.
Stocked only in large sizes.

SPECIAL HOLIDAY SKIRT.

Smartly cut white Linen, made with the new hip yoke, finished three good pearl buttons at foot.
Sizes, Maids', 32 to 37 inches, 4/11.
Women's, 38 to 42 inches, 5/11.

GREEN COUPONS

ARE THE MOST POPULAR.
At least that is the assertion of
PEOPLE OF TASTE AND JUDGMENT,
And if they say so it must be so.
THRIFTY HOUSEWIVES always make their purchases at stores where GREEN COUPONS ARE GIVEN, for they know from their own pleasurable experience
THAT THEREBY THEY SECURE A VALUABLE BONUS IN THE FORM OF DISCOUNT for their cash purchases, in addition to obtaining A FULL TWENTY SHILLINGS WORTH for every pound they spend.
OUR CUSTOMERS ARE LOUD IN THEIR PRAISES OF THIS SYSTEM, which is more particularly attractive now
WHEN WAR PRICES PREVAIL
and the cost of living has increased so greatly.
Therefore

A DENTAL STORY

WITH A MORAL.

He was poor, but fully realised the value of having good teeth. Having lost those bestowed by Dame Nature, he had recourse to artificial ones. For a while he was happy. His artificial set looked well and felt comfortable. But one day a tooth broke. Back he went to his dentist, only to find that it would cost 10/6 to repair the plate. And, having no guarantee, he had to pay. Now, the obvious moral is: Get a guarantee with your dentistry. I realise that my patients are entitled to receive some surety, and so I give a guarantee with platework and fillings. I give you always the most skilled work. But if a tooth should break off or a filling fail, I will replace it even five years after. Isn't it better to obtain this protection than to run the risk of having to pay for any faults that may develop? My own special method of painless extractions is REALLY painless. I will hand you £5 if you feel the slightest twinge. Call to-day and let me examine your teeth free of charge, and I will tell you if you need work done or not.
OPEN TILL 6 P.M. DAILY (SATURDAYS INCLUDED), UNTIL 9 P.M. FRIDAYS.

JOHN STRANGE WINTER'S

DENTAL CREAM.

One of the most important features, and one that is most essential to beauty, is the charm of pearl white teeth. The latest addition to the list of John Strange Winter's Toilet Preparations is a delightful Antiseptic Dental Cream, prepared scientifically from the purest ingredients, which, after numerous tests, has been made essentially perfect. Not only does this Cream thoroughly whiten and preserve the teeth, but it also acts as a delicious antiseptic wash, destroying all bacteria, whilst imparting to the mouth a delectable piquancy of tone and flavour, the distinction of which has commended itself to our clientele throughout the world.

THOSE MOSQUITOS.

ARE YOU LOSING ANY REST OR TEMPER OVER THEM?

There is mighty little satisfaction in smearing evil-smelling preparations over your face, or even in slapping at the pest, for you have to keep awake to do it, and you miss him five times out of six, anyhow.
BETTER SETTLE THE MATTER ONCE FOR ALL BY GETTING A PITT-STREET HORDERN MOSQUITO CURTAIN, the Curtain that costs little, looks neat, wears well, and KEEPS 'EM OUT.
As a careful mistranslation of the words ascribed to Catullus has it:—
"Let those buy nets who never bought before,
"Let those who always bought now buy some more."
For the next few weeks are going to be the "Skeeters' Busy Season." Mosquito Curtains to fit—to FIT, mark you—Half-tester or Ballon Bedsteads.

A WARNING THIS MORNING FROM SNOW'S.

The Garden Calender says,
"About this time look out for a Hot spell." It certainly has come—in Storekeeping as well as in the atmosphere—for we see many warm things going on.

Let the Buyer beware of the lure of the Red Price Ticket. Frequently the marked-down price so noisily flourished in big Red Figures is first marked up and then marked down.

SNOW'S

think it very queer indeed when they mark their own Lower than Elsewhere prices should be equalled in Lowness by these noisily Advertised "BARGAINS."

On the 3rd of December we announced:—

40-INCH COTTON VOILES, USUALLY 1/6½ to 1/7½ YARD, 12½d YARD.

Now we see, in several parts of the city, the same line posted up as a Sale Bargain at 12½d—although that has been our selling price for over one month.
On the 8th December—we give day and date so that anybody may verify these facts—we announced

ALL REMAINING VOILES, FORMERLY 11½d, NOW 8½d YARD.

That this Store is ahead of the bunch is again demonstrated by the Red Tickets which now appear in certain parts of the city, reading "Ordinary Value 12½d, Sale Price 8½d."

You will find the biggest and best assorted Stock of Floral Voiles at Snow's to-day.
You will find them at the prices that are lower than Elsewhere at ordinary times, and Lower than most other Stores' Sale Prices.
If you want Floral Voiles at any price, come to Snow's.
